Greece Permits Departure After Forcing Vessel To Return and Clear in Proper Shape.

PIRAEUS, Greece, March 18.—(Sunday)—(P)—Samuel Insull pulled another ace from his sleeve early today and sailed for points unknown aboard a grimy Greek tramp steamer which he had made virtually a kingdom of his own.

Ordered back by the Greek government after a 75-hour false start, the steamer Maitos sailed again at 1:25 a. m. without being required to tell the Greek government where it is going.

Engine trouble halted the steamer in the outer harbor soon after it sailed, but this was merely a temporary setback at worst, since it was learned Insull had three days in which to depart. The engine was fixed after a short time and the vessel plodded onward.

As real master of the ship (the charter was for "somewhere or other"), Insull, the 74-year-old fugitive from justice and former Chicago utilities czar, is the lone arbiter of his destiny so long as he is on the high seas.

May Go to Abyssinia. Greek port officials made only one demand—that he wireless them where he is going to land, if he chooses to land. Port authorities demanded only that he enter Greece by a route to which Insull could readily be expected to agree.

While it was widely believed he was headed for "somewhere or other," the probably Abyssinia, which is just east of the Suez canal, he obviously gained a trump trick by not being required to tell where he was going.

The Maitos was in port barely six hours after plodding slowly back at the call of Greek authorities who claimed Insull violated regulations by his sensationally dramatic secret departure Wednesday.

Port physicians and Insull's personal doctors examined Insull again during the stay in port and certified that the fugitive was in good health, despite a reported heart attack earlier in the day when he discovered for the first time that he was being pursued.

McIntosh To Make Race FOR RAIL TRAVEL

Boost in Utility Assessments Stirs Opposition; Commissioner G. C. Adams To Run Again, Spikes "Ill Health" Rumors.

By L. A. FARRELL. All doubt regarding formidable opposition to Governor Eugene Talmadge's campaign for re-election appeared to have been swept aside Saturday as the city and state hummed with talk of the chief executive's drastic increases in the tax assessments of utilities which have successfully fought off rate cuts ordered by his public service commission.

On whom the combined opposition which may develop into a coalition will center remains considerably in doubt, but from reports heard last week it would be indicated that Henry T. McIntosh, editor of the Albany Herald, former member of the state board of control and now member of the planning board for the public works administration, in charge of South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama, has been definitely approached and would be "highly acceptable" in numerous quarters.

Mr. McIntosh, who in addition to his other duties is president of the Albany board of education, the Dougherty county board of education, chairman of his county democratic executive committee and the state's leading crusader for improvement of the common schools, was in Atlanta Saturday, and while he admitted that he had been asked to run he added that he was "not considering" opposing Governor Talmadge.

Urged To Make Race. "I have had numerous groups and individuals urge that I become a candidate for governor," Mr. McIntosh said. "I have never been a candidate for a public office and have held only honorary and appointive posts. At present I am devoting all my spare time to aiding the common schools and I want it known that in doing so I am not laying the basis for a campaign of any kind. I am working for the schools solely because I believe that the growing paralyzation of our educational system, lower and higher, is imperiling the future of our state."

Mr. McIntosh did not say that he would not be a candidate, but he did say that in some respects he approved of the actions of Governor Talmadge, without defining which acts of the governor he approved and which he disapproved.

The Albany editor was appointed to the board of control by Governor R. B. Russell, but supported former Congressman Charles R. Crisp for the senate in 1932 when he was defeated by Governor Russell. He resigned from the board of control after accepting the PWA appointment last year.

Mr. McIntosh long has been a leader in state affairs and his Herald is one of the strongest dailies in the state. Although Judge Claude Pittman, of Carversville, has eliminated himself from the race, the candidacy of J. J. Mangham, resigned chairman of the state highway board, continues, as does that of Senator William H. Key, Monticello, and Judge James Maddox, of Rome. There are widely scattered reports of gubernatorial ambitions on the part of President Hamilton McIntosh, of the state senate; Abner Nix, of Athens, and Congressman John S. Wood, of Canton. However, it is generally believed that these three, especially Mr. Nix and Judge Wood, will not enter the race this year but may be heard from in 1936.

No announcement has come from Senator Key but his friends say he will be in the race. Mr. McIntosh, it is said, is highly acceptable to Mr. Mangham and to William Schley Howard, one of the leaders of the Talmadge opposition, who has made it clear that he will not run himself he is anxious to support someone.

Chairman Hugh Howell, of the state democratic executive committee, is expected to issue a call for a meeting of his committee shortly. The meeting probably will be held here about noon Monday.

JOHNSON SEEKS TO CALM WATERS

Automobile Situation Comes to Definite Head Tuesday When Manufacturers Make Proposals.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(UP)—Defiance of President Roosevelt by the railway unions and threats of widespread strikes in the automobile industry brought the administration's recovery program to a crisis tonight. While General Hugh S. Johnson sought to stave off further labor trouble in the motor car field, the question of a prolonged controversy over wages paid by the railways was brought to the direct attention of the White House.

The unions said flatly that they would not postpone revision of their present wage scales for six months, as requested by President Roosevelt. They said further they fully expected railway wages to be increased 10 per cent by July 1, in accordance with the contract under which they now are operating.

Outcome Unpredictable. Joseph B. Eastman, federal transportation co-ordinator, expressing deep disappointment over the attitude of the unions, revealed that he would be willing to attempt settlement of the controversy should Mr. Roosevelt request it.

The announcement by A. F. Whitney, chairman of the railway labor executives' association, who as a blow to the administration and to the conference committee of railway managers, who had expected the unions to agree to the president's proposal that conditions be postponed until after wage settlement.

Several weeks ago President Roosevelt requested the railways and the unions to postpone their wage settlement.

"Under present conditions," Mr. Roosevelt said, "the prosecution of a bitter controversy between the railways and their employees would have a most disturbing influence and I am further convinced that conditions are not yet sufficiently stable to permit a wise determination of what the wages should be for the future."

W. F. Thieshoff, chairman of the railroad executives' association, said that the unions had agreed to postpone their wage settlement until after the conference committee of railway managers had made proposals.

BORGUM AGREES TO CONFAB HERE ON BANKHEAD BILL

Efforts of the Georgia monumental commission to reduce the size of the Bankhead compulsory cotton control bill today in the house after an agreement was reached for a vote on passage Monday.

The measure was branded by democratic and republican opponents as a "bankhead" bill, and the door to the measure was closed by the secretary of agriculture.

As opposition piled up in both parties, indications were that the measure will have still going on the roll call Monday. Notice was served by Representative Snell, of New York, the republican leader, that an "aye" and "nay" vote will be demanded.

A rubber hose fitted to a gas meter disclosed that the operators had been stealing the gas. Charred barrels containing 150 gallons of whiskey and 125 empty sugar sacks indicated the quantity of the whiskey already disposed of in the Atlanta vicinity.

A raid on W. M. Stevens' room in a hotel on Calhoun street by police officers at 9:30 a. m. Saturday night resulted in confiscation of six quarts of whiskey in a keg and five quarts in a bottle, and a quantity of paraphernalia for aging and bottling liquors. Stevens, 32, a resident in the hotel, was arrested.

Drop to Twenty DUE HERE TONIGHT

A cold wave with 20-degree temperature, the severest since February 27, was predicted Saturday for tonight in the weather bureau's forecast. There will be a drop of 50 degrees from Saturday's summertime maximum of 70 degrees.

The cold wave is moving across the northern part of the country from the west, where abrupt falls of the thermometer were the most startling. In the North Platte, Neb., reported 78 degrees Friday, and on Saturday the temperature had dropped to 10. Haron, S. D., dropped from 68 to 22 degrees in the same period.

Today will begin with temperatures in the fifties with showers. This will be followed by brisk northwest winds and a drop to 20 degrees tonight. Snow or sleet is not expected, although it was snowing Saturday as far south as Kansas.

Due to stormy conditions and falling temperatures were reported in the southwest Saturday, notably in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. In other places the dust, heaviest in years, was mixed with snow.

The New Orleans weather bureau Saturday issued a cold-wave warning for southwest Texas.

Saturday in Atlanta was warm, the temperature in the city was 68.

They are among the world's greatest works, and this contest should bring an even greater appreciation of Poe, Lanier, Harris, Grady and other southerners who have produced fine literature.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, was also enthusiastic over the plan and said that parents and the official family of traitorous elements "misadvised him on cancellation of private air mail contracts."

The man who sent 26 enemy planes plunging to the French terrain, made this statement before the senate post office committee in a continuation of the testimony taken in which Colonel Charles A. Linbergh and Clarence Chamberlin yesterday attacked announcement of the contracts.

Eight routes were penciled across a map of the United States at the war department for the resumption of air mail carrying by the army. It was scheduled to begin Monday at 12:01 a. m. The routes follow: New York to Chicago; Chicago to

Student at Georgia Ends Life With Shot

THOMASTON, Ga., March 17.—Frank Hightower, 20, student at the University of Georgia, Athens, and son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hightower, shot himself through the heart about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon at his parent's home here shortly after his arrival to spend the week-end.

He left a short note indicating despondency.

F. D. R. INDORSES INDUSTRIAL BANK

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(P)—A plan, approved by President Roosevelt, for extending long-time government credit to private industry was submitted to congressional leaders today with word that on Monday President Roosevelt will formally recommend its enactment.

Regional banks capitalized by the government at $140,000,000 would be set up in each federal reserve district for loans direct to industry or through banks, with the latter guaranteeing 20 per cent of them.

Governor Black, of the federal reserve board, submitted the plan in tentative form today to Chairman Fletcher and Stengall, of the senate and house banking committees. Only a few hours earlier the senate committee had held up action on an alternative plan submitted by the Reconstruction Corporation.

New Industries Seen.
Fletcher said Black was confident $300,000,000 could be pumped into industry almost immediately under the plan. It could be put into operation, he added, as soon as congress gave the word.

He predicted, Fletcher told newspapermen, that the proposal would start a number of new industries which are only waiting a supply of credit and would "give a lot of new employment."

Original capital for the banks would be furnished by the treasury, Fletcher said, out of the profits from gold devaluation. The banks would have authority, however, to issue debentures to obtain additional capital.

It was to await submission of this plan, that the senate committee earlier in the day held up action on the private credit plan submitted by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

excess of the facts by stating that $354,000,000 in additional benefits to veterans were carried in the bill passed by the senate," Commander Hayes cited the Congressional Record as disclosing that the entire cost of the Steiwer-McCarran amendments covering basically three points in the Legion's four-point program, would be less than $45,000,000. Of this sum, the first year cost incident to restoring presumptive cases would be $10,000,000, he said.

"Despite the claims of adverse critics that they approve of restoring payments taken from admittedly service-disabled persons of the World War, we find continued opposition to all legislation," Hayes said. "There can be but one conclusion. The opposition is either uninformed or prejudiced. Otherwise, why would they oppose it, at least that part of it involving approximately $33,000,000, which all must admit pertains to proved service-disabled claimants?"

"The Legion will continue to seek restoration by legislation, not regulation, of benefits taken away from service-connected disabled veterans under the economy act. We cannot turn our backs on the disabled just because of the misleading and false statements by the organized opposition, which includes the $15,000 a year director of the National Economy League and

Opens Own Offices

For the past two and a half years, as promotion manager of The Constitution, Joe Rosenfield Jr., has become widely and favorably known to the advertising profession and business-men of Atlanta. Starting Monday, Mr. Rosenfield, whose offices will be in the Norris building, will act as public relations counsel for various firms and professional men. In addition he will specialize in advertising, merchandising, promotion ideas and their execution. He will maintain an art department, and sales force.

General Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, while the joint investigating committee of congress was considering veterans' expenditures, the same General Frank T. Hines, in his official capacity admitted of record before that committee that his estimates as to veterans' expenditures were in error approximately $2,000,000,000 a year. The original estimate made by General Hines was in executive session and the correction showing his approximately $2,000,000,000 a year error was not made until the country had been misled by the original estimate. Mathematical determination easily demonstrates the accurate accounts, and the Hines statement does the unfair thing of projecting the estimate over a five-year period.

Commander Hayes inspected Base Hospital No. 48 during the afternoon and talked with the patients. Late in the afternoon he made a 15-minute talk over radio station WSB, and attended a meeting of the executive committee of the state department of the Legion before going to a dinner at the Ansley at 8:30 o'clock. The main address on the roofgarden of the Ansley followed the dinner.

Commander Hayes said that in many sections of the country students in colleges are being taught that there is no God, that there is no reason to uphold the sanctity of the marriage laws, and that there is no reason to be loyal to the flag. Unless these practices, which smack of communism, are stopped, they may ruin the country, he warned. Commander Hayes spoke enthusiastically of the Legion's fight for universal service as a means of stopping war profiteering.

Among those at the meeting were Mrs. Charles H. Miller, of Little Rock, Ark., national vice president of the southern division of the Auxiliary, and Miss Moins Michael, of Athens, the "Poppy Lady."

Commander Hayes will fly back to Washington this morning.

TALMADGE FOES SEEK MINTOSH

April 15. The committee will set the date for the September primary and immediately after the meeting the campaign doubtless will get under way.

While the gubernatorial situation's compelling interest overshadows inter competition in other prospective races spirited competition is forecast in other contests and in them the name of Eugene Talmadge will be heard considerably. As in recent years second interest doubtless will revolve around the race for commissioner of agriculture in which Tom Linder, Talmadge's executive secretary and right hand man, looks like a candidate unless he is forced on the sidelines by potent opposition to the governor, which will necessitate him passing up the commissioner's race to help his chief. As time goes on and the probability of strong opposition to Talmadge appears to grow, the probability of Linder entering the commissioner's race lessens.

Adams to Run Again.
Commissioner G. Claude Adams Saturday put at rest rumors which had been current about the capitol that he would not be a candidate for re-election because of his health. "I have not been in better health for years," Mr. Adams said, "and I will most certainly be a candidate for re-election as commissioner."

The legislature cut his appropriation considerably last year after clearing him of charges of alleged jobbing in department, and because of curtailed finances the office has not cut the figure in the days when Talmadge and J. J. Brown had it. Those who are supposed to know say that Mr. Adams faces a hard campaign.

The friends of Judge Max L. McRae, a member of the high court, are urging him to enter the commissioner's race. But if the rising opposition to Talmadge withers, Linder undoubtedly will be the Talmadge candidate. Anyway, Judge McRae seems happy on his high way job and probably will stay there.

Secretary of State John Wilson seems to have pretty clear sailing, although there is some talk that Jess Hall, defeated by Mr. Wilson two years ago, will try again.

Madison Bell, of Cartersville and Atlanta, is being talked up as a candidate against Comptroller General William B. Harrison. What effect, if any, Mr. Harrison's part in raising the assessments of the utilities will have on his future cannot be told.

State Treasurer George B. Hamilton has what looks like the most open political road in the state. Two years ago he got a greater popular vote than the late Treasurer Mark L. Ledford, although he failed by a small margin to obtain the greatest unit vote. On Mr. Ledford's death he was appointed to the vacancy by the governor. At present it appears that he will not have to run.

Of course both Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, and Attorney General M. J. Yeomans are candidates for the legislature. Although he has been considered for federal funds, Dr. Collins has managed to keep more schools open for a full term of year than in a long time. As a result satisfaction with his conduct of office appears pretty general over the state. He may not be opposed.

Because of Governor Talmadge the law department is one of the busiest departments of the state at present and undoubtedly will be busier than ever when the case goes into court with their tax litigations. Judge Yeomans won't have much time for campaigning even if he does have opposition to his re-election. But while the attorney-general and his staff will have plenty to do it looks like there will be work for lawyers all the way down the line. The utilities will have to have a large number and the governor will have to hire more to combat the activities of those employed by the utilities. It seems that Talmadge is going to provide relief for lawyers if he does nothing else this summer.

Wilhoit, Daniel Up.
Governor Talmadge undoubtedly will play a part in the race of J. P. Wilhoit, chairman, and J. T. (Tobe) Daniel, member of the public service commission.

Both Mr. Wilhoit and Mr. Daniel are Talmadge's appointees, having been named when he suspended the old public service commission last July. Wilhoit was appointed to the post of J. A. Perry, of Atlanta, and Daniel succeeded Walter R. McDonald, of Augusta.

Both are expected to have opposition but from whom it has not been learned. There is just a little talk that Mr. Perry may oppose Mr. Wilhoit and about an equal amount that Mr. McDonald will try to get his old place back again.

Julio W. Felton, of Montezuma, also one of the suspended public service commissioners, has said that he intends to oppose Justice John B. Hutcheson of the supreme court, also a Talmadge appointee. He has not said he will run for the court but has merely said he intends to. Judge Hutcheson was appointed two months ago to fill the vacancy created by the death of Justice H. Warner Hill.

Judge Russell May Have Contest.
There also are reports that Chief Justice Richard B. Russell Sr., of the supreme court, may have opposition in the person of Judge Alexander H. Stephens, of the court of appeals. However, Judge Stephens has said nothing public about such a race. All off he talk has come from his friends.

Judge Vivian L. Stanley, of the prison commission, is up for re-election. If he is to have opposition it has not developed.

Judges Homer Suttan and Hugh McIntyre, the rest of appeals judges are up for re-election but no talk of opposition has been heard.

There appear to be strong contests in prospect for the speakership ality and an internationally famous lecturer, is here to tell Atlanta women of her simple rules for health and weight control.

"There is no age limit for beauty," says Madame Chernoff. "I don't recognize age at all. I tell women about the fundamentals of youth; how to increase their attractiveness in appearance, figure and clothes, and in their voices, too, because women show age in their voices almost before anywhere else. Permanent beauty depends on care and attention to hair, eyes and skin, correct posture, pleasing voice control and placement, and, above all, on correct diet."

In her lectures, she will give simple, practical advice free of charge on all these important points. Madame Chernoff has lectured in Atlanta before and has many friends here who will welcome her back. Lectures will be at 12:30 and 3 p. m. daily in the corset department on the third floor.

Finances of World Are Much Improved

NEW YORK, March 17.—(P)—The national industrial conference board made public today a survey of world economic conditions which said that revival in world industrial activity noted in the summer of 1932, continued at an accelerated pace during 1933.

In the United States, the survey says, the physical volume of industrial production declined 46 per cent from 1929 to 1932, but recovered 20 per cent from 1932 to 1933. The corresponding figures for Germany were stated to be 39 per cent and 12 per cent; for France 31 per cent and 12 per cent; for Sweden 21 per cent and 3 per cent; and for Great Britain 17 per cent and 3 per cent.

of the house and the presidency of the senate.

Speaker E. D. Rivers, of Lakeland, says he is running for re-election, although there still is talk that he may enter the race for congress in his eighth district against Representative Braswell Deen. The friends of Speaker E. D. Rivers, of Lakeland, of Newnan, are talking his candidacy for the speakership, although he has done nothing to indicate that he will make the race.

2,000 Candidates for House.
The candidates for the senate presidency are numerous. Among them are Senator Walter A. Sims, former mayor of Atlanta; F. H. Scott, of Thomasville, a Talmadge leader in the 1932 house of representatives; former Senator Charlie Redwine, of Fayetteville; Representative John C. Bousley, of Tattall county, and Representative Clarence Vaughn, of Rockdale county.

Reports from over the state indicate that only two men with experience in the senate are candidates for seats in the upper branch of the assembly this year. They are Mr. Sims and Mr. Redwine.

If reports coming in from various sections of the state are to be believed there are about ten candidates for every seat in the house of representatives, making more than 2,000 in all, and decidedly too many to mention.

Reports from over the state indicate that only two men with experience in the senate are candidates for seats in the upper branch of the assembly this year. They are Mr. Sims and Mr. Redwine.

If reports coming in from various sections of the state are to be believed there are about ten candidates for every seat in the house of representatives, making more than 2,000 in all, and decidedly too many to mention.

BORGULM AGREES TO CONFAB HERE

Borglum, a copy of it was furnished to him in Washington, and he agreed to set a date for the meeting within the next few days.

Work Long Abandoned.
Work on Stone mountain has been abandoned for many months, due to lack of funds, but the action Saturday was taken to indicate that the commission has hopes of obtaining money shortly to resume the carving.

"Until I receive the letter, I can make no reply beyond a general acceptance," Borglum said Saturday afternoon in a communication to The Constitution. "I wish Stone mountain was now done, and a great completed task with 1,000,000 visitors touring from everywhere to your city to visit the carving as they do in Italy and have begun in South Dakota (referring to the Mount Rushmore project, he has just completed).

"Nothing would please me more than to see that an accomplished fact and to help in bringing it about. The time is opportune in the great national comeback and when the task is understood, both securing of funds and doing the work will be easier. The undertaking is not as difficult as the discouragements have made us believe."

Letter to Borglum.
Text of the letter to Borglum, which was released through the office of Mayor James L. Key, chairman of the commission, follows:

"Mr. Gutzon Borglum,
"Metropolitan Club,
"Washington, D. C.
"Dear Mr. Borglum:

"The Georgia monumental commission, which has charge of the contemplated carving of a Confederate memorial on Stone mountain has for some time had under consideration ways and means of carrying forward work on this project. Plans have progressed to a point that we desire a conference with you at the earliest time practicable in furtherance of our deliberations.

"I am, therefore, authorized to invite you to attend a conference to be held at such time and place as may be mutually agreeable.

"Will you be kind enough to advise us what date will be convenient for you to attend this meeting? An early reply will be appreciated.

"Yours very truly,
"JOHN I. KELLEY,
"Secretary, Georgia Monumental Commission."

Congressman Deen Returns to Duties

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(P)—Representative Deen of Georgia, returned to his office today after a week's illness from intestinal influenza and acute indigestion. The Georgian still was weak and was unable to attend the debate in the house on the Bankhead cotton bill. He said he favored the measure and would seek a pair if unable to be present when the vote was taken.

Deen became ill just after his wife and three children had recovered from measles, which has been widespread in Washington for several weeks.

W. A. Sirmon Resigns As Adjutant of Legion

W. A. Sirmon, adjutant of the department of Georgia of the American Legion, Saturday night resigned that position at a meeting of the executive committee at the Ansley hotel, subject to the pleasure of the committee, to enter another field of activity.

Sirmon said that he will remain in office until his successor is named and acquainted with the duties. He has been adjutant of the department since January, 1930. Sirmon was a captain in the 325th infantry, 82d division, during the World War, and won numerous decorations and honors. He was decorated twice for bravery in Philippine service.

LULL IN ACCIDENTS REPORTED BY POLICE

Rites for Richard Phillips,
Auto Victim, Will Be Held
This Afternoon.

A lull in traffic accidents came Saturday following two auto fatalities Friday in East Point and Atlanta as funeral services were being planned for Richard Phillips, 13-year-old Russell High school student, who was one of the victims. Four persons were hurt in crashes during the day, according to police reports.

The Phillips boy will be buried in the College Park cemetery this afternoon following funeral rites at 2:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church of East Point, at which Dr. W. A. Duncan will officiate.

The other fatality was that of J. T. Clark, negro boy, who was struck and killed by a hit-and-run driver, whom police are seeking. Witnesses said the driver was a woman who sped away after her car had run through a red light and hit the negro boy.

Mrs. Beulah Garrett and her two daughters, Miss Mary Elizabeth Garrett and Miss Virginia Garrett, all of 407 Ashby street, S. W., were injured late Saturday afternoon when struck down on Forsyth street, near the Union Station by an automobile driven by T. L. Keith, of 225 Third street, N. W.

Keith did not stop. Another motorist overtook him and told him he had knocked the three down, whereupon he returned to the scene. The women were taken to Grady hospital and treated for bruises and shock, and dismissed. Keith was given a copy of charges for reckless driving.

Sidney Head, negro truck driver, was slightly injured Saturday afternoon when his machine collided with the truck of L. W. Green, white, on North avenue. He was treated at Grady hospital and dismissed.

Prevention of accidents through observance of traffic rules and careful driving was being pushed Saturday by the Atlanta Motor Club, which is sponsoring the safety campaign.

COUNTY COMMISSION TO MEET ON RELIEF

A special session of the board of county commissioners has been called for Wednesday, it was announced Saturday by Chairman George F. Longino, who stated that at that time the government will probably have made known what is expected of the county in the way of relief. If such is the case, Mr. Longino stated that the county's appropriations for Grady hospital and the Community Chest will be decided upon and general plans for relief will be considered.

Mr. Longino said that if the government asks the county to continue its appropriation of $25,000 per month, a revision of the county budget will be necessary in order to meet the request.

MUSICIANS SUPPORT EDUCATION PROGRAM

More than 50 Atlanta musicians have signified their willingness to cooperate with the adult education department of the Auburn branch, Carnegie library, in its drive to increase "appreciation of music" in the community. It was announced Saturday. Community choruses, activity with music study organizations, assistance in church music and mass co-operation of group leaders are the projects to be undertaken.

SESSION TO BE HELD BY COLLEGE WOMEN

The eleventh annual convention of the National Association of College Women will be held in Atlanta, beginning March 30 and continuing through April 2, with the Atlanta branch of the association acting as hostess, it was announced Saturday. This is the first time that an annual meeting of this organization has been held in the south.

The convention theme for 1934 is "Education and the Changing World." The meetings which will be of special interest to the public are the opening session which will be held in the exhibition room of the Atlanta University library on Friday night, March 30, at 7 o'clock, the Saturday noon luncheon meeting to be held in Morgan hall, Spelman College, the special session for students on Saturday afternoon, and the annual banquet Saturday night.

AROUND LOCAL CONTRACT TABLES

by Whitney Carly

Your fast-aging commentator has just left the afternoon bridge wars at the Capital City Club, where the particular battle in progress now is the open pair championship. As 36 boards were played in the afternoon and as there were 26 more to play tonight and as hostilities start in 45 minutes from now, I ask your indulgence in the following account.

To begin with, the 1934 Georgia state tournament, now in closing stages, has been a success from a standpoint of class of competition, number of contestants and management. My second observation would be that to date it has been a great triumph for Mrs. Humphrey Wagar and the Barrett family.

A hasty glance over the results of the three championships so far decided reveals that Mrs. Wagar has won two and finished third in the other, that Mrs. William Barrett has finished first in one and that Mrs. William Derry, sister to the famous Billy Barrett, her husband, Billy Derry, and the above-mentioned Billy have finished first in the other event. The other victorious citizen is Don Daniel, who played with the last three named players on the winning team of four event which was finished in the early hours of Saturday morning.

Surround for Losers.
Speaking of the team-of-four will always bring joy to those winners, but it will bring equal sorrow to the runners-up. Mrs. Nash Broyles, Mrs. Creed Taylor, G. S. Vardaman and Erskine Jones.

At the conclusion of the seventh round this team had not lost a match and was out in front with an extent that it looked as if only a miracle could keep it from the title. Then the miracle happened. This time four some took a slumber and the next three matches. The Barrett-Derry-Daniel quartet which had been playing desperately all afternoon and evening, and which was within striking distance of the leaders, faltered, staged a mighty stretch run and proceeded to win the last three matches to take the title.

The team consisting of Mrs. Humphrey Wagar, Roy Govan, Fred Levy and Henry Chanin finished in third place. Eleven teams competed in this great battle.

RAILWAY UNIONS REFUSE TO EXTEND SLASH IN WAGES

railway managers, agreed with the president on March 15, and in a formal statement urged that present wages, including the 10 per cent "deduction" be continued for another year and that no further wage notices be posted for six months. He withdrew altogether the railroads' demand for a 15 per cent basic wage reduction.

This afternoon, before 1,500 union chairmen and the members of this committee, Whitney read the formal statement of the unions, rejecting the president's proposal and insisting that rail wages be restored to old levels this summer.

"Will Not Acquiesce."
"In response to what we then considered an unjustified demand by railway management," Whitney said, reading slowly from a statement of six closely typed pages, "we consented in January, 1932, to this 10 per cent deduction from the earnings of the men and women we represent. What shadow of justification there was for this deduction at the low point of the depression has now disappeared. . . . We are asked to confirm a program of restricted wage payments and of reduced employee purchasing power. We cannot and will not acquiesce."

Whitney chided the railway managers for their "spirit of pessimism, defeat and despair," called their proposal "one more stanza to the dirge to which we have listened for four years" and said it was not surprising that many citizens believe "the railway industry to be upon its deathbed."

"But the facts show the situation to be exactly the reverse," he said, presenting figures to show that the railroads have profited "very definitely" in the general business recovery. He charged that the railroads were attempting to continue their "hopelessly top-heavy capital structure," which he called a "legacy from the days of festive finance."

Charges Starvation Wages.
He charged that section men on the Atlantic Coast Line are paid $1.70 a day and that laborers on the New York Central get $7.74 a week, little more than half of the PWA minimum. He said that living costs are rising and give evidence of going even higher, leaving the average incomes of railway employees totally inadequate.

Thiehoff replied two hours later that the unions' rejection of the proposal "came as a surprise and shock to us, especially in view of the request which the president of the United States made upon your association and our committee to preserve the status quo in the railroad situation in the interest of national recovery."

He said that the railroads would reply formally to the union's ultimatum Monday afternoon.

Auto Strike Brewing.
Automobile men held hurried conferences in Detroit and in New York where Johnson will go Monday in a final attempt to straighten out automotive labor troubles.

Unless definite results are obtained, union leaders said that 75,000 men would walk out of the motor factories Wednesday. They insist that the companies agree to permit new elections of workers' representatives and to set up arbitration committees to hear complaints of union discrimination.

At the White House it was announced that Johnson was hopeful of obtaining a compromise. President Roosevelt, it was emphasized, has far taken no hand in the situation.

A government agency within the last few days has compiled, for the information of the industry and the administration, data on the close interrelation of automobile industry to other basic industries.

Many Ramifications.
Steel, one of the greatest of the nation's industries, is vitally dependent on the welfare of automobile manufacturing. 17.1 per cent of all steel production going to the motor car factories.

The list shows that 80.4 per cent of rubber production goes into the automobile trade, 33 per cent of the upholstery leather production and 43 per cent of plate glass with a dozen industries concerned in varying degrees.

The 60,000 to 70,000 persons American Federation of Labor men estiwinning and runner-up teams when supper hour arrived. This team, which has drawn much praise from other players, met the Barrett team immediately after supper and lost. It was their next match but that proved its final gesture as from then on it faltered badly.

It might not be amiss at this juncture to say that besides playing splendid bridge the Spartans players have made a great impression on the local talent. No finer sportsmen have ever attended a tournament in this city than those four who come from the Palmetto state. Let us hope that they return soon.

Mixed Pair Close.
The mixed pair championship resulted in an extremely close finish with Mrs. Wagar and Fred Levy winning with 331 points. Second place fell to Mrs. E. E. David and Sidney Smith with 328, while Mrs. Hugh Page and Billy Barrett were third, with 323. Mrs. Bert Fox and Joe Rosenfield Jr. were fourth, with 322. Miss Evelyn Fain and Bill Dickey, fifth, with 302 1/2 and Mrs. Gladys Peabody and Joe David, sixth, with 293 1/2.

It was a hard fight and the finish was one of the closest on record in a Georgia state bridge championship. A fast field and Mrs. Wagar and Levy deserve much praise for their fine showing. The same goes for the other three who were so close to fame and glory.

The team-of-four winners also deserve high praise for winning the title from such a strong team. Mrs. Wagar, Mrs. Derry, Don and Billy were in their old Vanderbilt cup form and they got full co-operation from Mr. and Mrs. Derry. The team of four went to the top in the championship. Never during the entire grueling test did they falter. Their steady play brought rich results.

Speaking of class and hard fights you should see the field in the open pair which is about to start its final session. I make bold to say that it is the fastest field that ever went to the post in an American tournament. No less than 19 pairs and practically every one of them seasoned tournament players. All of which reminds me that it is nearly time to start that 36-board grind that will take us well past midnight to finish. Look for the winners in Monday's Constitution.

mat would be involved in an automobile strike—if one came—was, however, only a portion of the number of workers involved directly and indirectly in the industry itself. Exclusive of Ford company employees, estimates of the number of automobile factory workers range around 180,000.

STEVEDORES THREATEN PACIFIC COAST STRIKE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—(UP)—A general strike of Pacific coast stevedores, which would tie up shipping from Vancouver to San Diego, effective March 23, was supported today by San Francisco and Oakland stevedores, union officials announced after a count of members' ballots.

Bay region stevedores voted more than 97 per cent in favor of a walk-out to enforce the demands of the International Longshoremen's Association, for a 30-hour week, $1 an hour standard wages and recognition of their union, it was announced.

1,800 ON STRIKE IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 17.—(UP)—Labor difficulties troubled Cleveland industry tonight. More than 1,800 workers already are out on strike. A sealed vote has been taken which is expected to call for a walkout of some 7,300 additional workers in three major industrial plants next week.

The 1,825 striking workers of the Joseph & Feis Company, Cleveland's second largest manufacturers of men's clothing, were awaiting results of negotiations between Sidney Hillman, national president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, and Paul L. Feis, president of the company. Ralph A. Lind, of the regional labor board, is mediating.

Walkout of 6,000 employees of the Fisher Body Company is believed imminent. Wednesday was set as the deadline.

ARMY WILL CARRY AIR MAIL MONDAY

San Francisco; Boston to New York; Chicago to Dallas; Salt Lake City to San Diego; Salt Lake City to Seattle; Cheyenne to Denver, and New York to Atlanta and Jacksonville.

Army planes were grounded last Sunday after the president had asserted that deaths among the fliers must stop. Since then intensive preparations have been taken to resume flying on a curtailed schedule which would assure the aviators' safety.

The war department first said nine routes would be flown, including Chicago to St. Paul. Later, however, the postoffice department said service on this line would not be undertaken now. Rickenbacker is vice president of North American Aviation, Inc., parent company of Eastern Air Transport, Western Air Express and Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., for which Lindbergh is technical adviser.

These three companies held mail agreements prior to the cancellation of all domestic awards on February 19 because of the postoffice department's decision, since vigorously disputed, that the contracts were awarded through fraud.

Not Industry's Loss.
But, Rickenbacker said the loss was not that of the aircraft industry or the air transportation industry.

"That is incidental," he said. "That can be wiped off the slate and forgotten. We can forget we ever owned an airplane."

He said that up until the mail episode the president "has been guided in a great measure by the divine spirit."

For this reason, he said, he urged the elimination of the "traitors, few in number, I presume, who have misadvised, or advised, without giving full facts, and have caused him (the president) to act contrary to American principles and American judgment."

The aviator said, however, after Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, called for a halt that "he did not intend to attack the president and 'it is my confidence in him which I do not wish destroyed.'"

Senate Critics.
Senator Logan, democrat, Kentucky, who has been critical of the administration's air bill, could not see "any such thing" as an attack on the president in Rickenbacker's outburst.

Senator Barbour, republican, New Jersey, agreed with the Kentucky.

Before his impromptu address, Rickenbacker read a prepared statement to the committee on the administration's permanent air mail bill. He assailed the clause which would bar the private companies from awards if they press claims against the government. "Virtually, every witness has taken a verbal slam at this section and it is to be eliminated."

The flyer said he felt the proposal in a house bill, introduced by Representative Kelly, republican, Pennsylvania, to pay for air mail haulage on a pound mile basis was preferable to the administration's space-rate pay clause.

He opposed also the provision in the pending measure which would bar manufacturing companies from affiliation with a line having a mail award.

"I should like to state that I am in favor of a provision that there shall be no interlocking directors or stock ownership in competitive air transport companies," he said.

Urges Return of Contracts.
Rickenbacker strongly urged the restoration of the contracts to the private air mail companies which formerly held them until a review could be made of "this whole deplorable situation."

"If there are guilty ones," he said, "punish them, but give them a fair hearing first."

Brigadier General William Mitchell, former chief of the army air corps, testified recently that American aviation was far behind that of other countries. Rickenbacker disagreed.

"I don't think General Mitchell is up on aeronautical development," he said.

The text of the war department announcement follows:

"General Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the army air corps, in a telephone message to army air corps officers in Washington this morning stated that after a personal inspection in the eastern and central zones, and after a conference in Chicago with all zone commanders, that the army air corps is ready to resume transporting the air mail."

"He recommended to the war and postoffice departments that the resumption be effective at 12:01 a. m. Monday, March 19. This recommendation has been approved by the war and postoffice departments and the army will resume its air mail activities on that date and hour."

temperatures between 50 and 72 degrees.

Forecaster George W. Minding would not predict the extent of the cold wave tonight, whether or not it would cover the entire state, but was inclined to think it would be most severe in north Georgia. There was a possibility, he said, that the temperature might fall below 20.

The Washington forecast for the south was for warmer weather this morning to be followed by a cold wave tonight.

While the low temperature of 13 degrees on February 21 is not expected to be equalled, the cold wave will be felt quite as keenly because of the sudden change from summer temperature.

COLD WAVE CHALLENGES SPRING'S ADVENT IN DIXIE
NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—(AP)—A capricious March spun the dials on the weather controls again today as a prospectively severe cold wave pushed into the deep south, challenging the appearance of spring for the up-to-date time this month.

In scores of southern cities, where pleasant temperatures ranging from 60 to 80 prevailed during the last 24 hours, the mercury started to tumble and the weather bureau forecast much colder weather throughout the area tonight.

Rain and snow, accompanied by temperatures of 14 to 30 degrees were predicted for Oklahoma and Arkansas. Sub-freezing temperatures in Texas, even in the southwest, were indicated in special bulletins issued this afternoon. Cold wave warnings flew in Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky and Georgia. Other southern states, with the exception of Florida, were expected to have proportionately sudden drops in mercury readings.

The new cold wave moved in out of the northwest, scattering snow in Kansas and rushing on into Texas and Oklahoma during the day. Dust storms, rising on the wings of icy winds, hurried the southwest. Kansas saw the phenomenon of a combined dust and snowstorm and Amarillo, Texas, was swept by a dust-laden 40-mile-an-hour wind. The disturbance was termed the worst in years in some parts of the southwest and at Elk City, Okla., hampered search for a 3-year-old child missing since yesterday.

R. A. Dyke, forecaster for the New Orleans area, expressed the opinion that spring would again get the upper hand in the south "in a day or so."

"These waves pass rather quickly at this time of year," he said.

or any regulation issued under it by the secretary of agriculture.

Penalties Advocated.
Chairman Jones, democrat, Texas, of the agriculture committee, then offered amendments which modified it by making the maximum penalty for "willful violation" one year imprisonment and a $1,000 fine or both, and imposing a $200 fine for violation of regulations. These were adopted after one by McGugin to reduce the penalty for violations to a $100 fine was defeated.

The measure imposes a tax of 50 per cent of the market value on cotton produced in excess of quotas allocated to farmers. McGugin proposed an amendment to prevent punishment for willful failure to pay the tax but it also was rejected.

In defending the bill, Chairman Jones said that "the people of the south almost unanimously want this bill."

"If we are going to have planned industry we must have planned agriculture," the Texan said. "They go hand in hand. This will be a means of stabilizing values."

N. Y. Taxi Drivers Vote General Strike

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP)—A general strike of New York taxi drivers, effective at once, was voted early today by 5,000 cheering delegates of the Taxi Drivers' union at a meeting in St. Nicholas rink.

The strike vote was declared unanimous by the leaders, recognition of the union was described as the principal issue at stake.

There also was some resentment over the division of a 5-cent tax which New York city, under the Tammany regime that preceded Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia assessed for each taxi ride.

Arts Association Chooses Officers At Final Session of Convention

New officers for the Southeastern Arts Association were elected at the final general session and business meeting of the association on the roof garden of the Ansley hotel Saturday morning. Miss Blanche Cahoon, of Tampa, Fla., the new president; Mrs. Lenore A. Eldred, of Birmingham, vice president; and Mrs. Wanda Wheeler, of Knoxville, auditor, who were proposed by the nominating committee, were unanimously accepted by the members.

The retiring officers are president, George S. Dutch, of Nashville; vice president, Blanche Cahoon, and secretary-treasurer, May Klutz, of Winston-Salem. Mr. Dutch presided at the Saturday session.

The Georgia group organization is headed by Miss Katherine Comfort, of Girls' High, who is the state sponsor. The committee chairman are Martha Griffin, of Rome, in charge of membership; Laura Blackshear, of the University of Georgia, publicity; and Leroy Jackson, of Bass Junior High, exhibit.

Registered members present for the convention numbered 113, exceeding the figures for the last two meetings. Mr. Dutch declared that the association was "going to live in spite of the difficulties which face it now and will continue to face it."

A highly instructive and entertaining feature of the meeting was the illustrated lecture given by Alfred Pelikan, director of art in the schools of Milwaukee. Mr. Pelikan's subject was "The Methods of Teaching Art in Europe and America." He declared that art education in the public schools should follow as closely as possible the methods of art schools. The purpose of the primary grades is to discover what the children have in them and then to help them accomplish it. "Freedom must be controlled," said the director. "Art in the primary school does not attempt to turn out finished artists, but to make the students art conscious. The same problems confront teachers all over the world."

In reviewing the methods of teaching art in Europe Mr. Pelikan used the work of Rothe, director of art in the public schools of Vienna, and that of Czech, instructor in mechanical drawing in the industrial art school of the same city. The German method of teaching industrial art was presented as thorough and methodical. A development of Mexican art illustrated with slides was also discussed.

JUNIOR MACCABEE BAND BEING ORGANIZED HERE

Organization of a junior Maccabee band will be undertaken by Professor Thomas Altobelli, bandmaster and teacher, it was announced Saturday by R. E. Leatherman, assistant state manager of the Maccabees. The membership of the band will be composed mainly of boys and girls ranging in age from 11 to 16 years. Beginners' classes will be held from 3 to 5 o'clock each Monday and Thursday afternoon.

Other activities of the junior Maccabees include the teaching of a class of 80 boys and girls in tap, athletic and ballroom dancing from 3 to 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoons, by Miss Jane Boyd, and the teaching of dramatics by Mrs. Ethel Gilbert from 3 to 5 o'clock Friday afternoons. Miss Lily Allen is teaching piano, pipe organ and voice, and Mrs. P. J. Dittie is teaching piano and glee club work under the sponsorship of the Maccabees.

ROBERTS REVEALS FULL FDIC STAFF FOR ATLANTA AREA

W. Clyde Roberts, supervising examiner of the sixth federal deposit insurance district, Saturday announced the complete personnel of the district organization with headquarters in Atlanta. The district covers Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi. In collaboration with banking commissioners, examinations are now in process in each of the states.

The staff includes, in addition to Mr. Roberts and his assistant supervising examiner, Wilmer L. Moore, the following field examiners and assistants: T. F. Adams, George L. David, O. S. Crosthwait, M. B. Emmich, P. L. Etheredge, J. V. Harrison, Barney Howard, Robert C. Jones, R. N. McLeod, Ross Rainer, W. F. Rainier, W. H. Wright, W. S. Anderson, P. W. Barcliff, Russell A. Bynum, R. D. Cannon, F. M. Coleman, W. F. Crenshaw, Charles E. Kells, J. G. Lundy, George Medlock, W. H. Paul, J. W. Roberts, Albert S. Turner, Howard V. Williams, J. H. Woody and W. J. Woolard.

The examiners are to make periodic examinations of the state banks (non-members of the federal reserve) under the federal deposit insurance corporation part of the banking act of 1933 in order to see that the banks conform to the deposit insurance law.

ASSOCIATION TO LAUNCH "INDEPENDENCE WEEK"

Atlanta Life Underwriters' Association will meet at 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon in the roof garden of the Ansley hotel to launch Financial Independence Week. Clark Howell Sr., editor of The Constitution, will be the principal speaker. The underwriters will be the guests of the Retail Credit Company, of which Walter Hill is president.

Plans for Financial Independence Week observance have been made by a committee headed by Walter Powell, including Baxter Maddox, Frank Akers and Henry Powell. Arrangements for Monday's meeting include a short musical program, "The Volga Boatman," by a well-known baritone.

Over Seas

By CHARLES E. HARNER.
Associated Press Staff.

The stamp of Italian fascism spreads unmistakably over central Europe.

In Rome, Mussolini spread the sphere of his influence in conferences with Chancellor Dollfus, of Austria, and Premier Goemboos, of Hungary.

The economic outcome: A probable "corporate state" for the Danube powers modeled after the Italian set-up with Italian aid.

The political outlook: The apparent emergence of Il Duce as the protector of Danube peace; a warning to the Nazi Reich to forget its desire for a union with Austria; a distinct challenge to the French hegemony prevailing in southeast Europe since the World War.

The conferences undoubtedly will strengthen the influence of France in the little entente—Yugo-Slavia, Rumania and Czechoslovakia. Before going to Rome, Doughty Dollfus issued a public address to hint strongly to the Croats they would be better off under Austrian rule than under Yugo-Slavia domination.

The Austrian developments framed one question into sharp relief: What about young Archduke Otto, heir of the Hapsburgs?

The pretender remained silent in Belgium retreat.

But tenants of the Hapsburg palace were ordered out by the end of summer. And the government confiscated a newspaper that printed disparaging remarks about the archduke.

Austria accord nearest?

This was the question the powers asked after the French publicized their first concrete disarmament proposal.

The French avowed a willingness to accede to a disarmament convention if four points were met:

German "storm-troopers," the bulwark of Nazi strength, would be included in any count of the Reich's soldiers; France would not be asked to disarm immediately if rearmament is granted Germany; strict guarantees of good faith must be made; disarmament must be achieved quickly.

In an arms note sent to Paris prior to the disclosure of the French four-point plan, Chancellor Hitler reiterated his position that "storm-troopers" can not be classified as soldiers.

Subsequently, Chancellor Hitler sent to Paris a note expressing conviction that an agreement with France on armaments is possible.

When the disarmament problem is settled, he said, Germany will discuss her relations with the League of Nations.

Germany has no thought of weakening the post-war Locarno pact, the arms memorandum said, and has never doubted its validity. Making it clear she must have more armaments than provided for in the Versailles treaty, Germany accepted a scheme for supervision of armaments, and agreed the brown shirt organizations should not be armed and receive no military training, provided semi-official military organizations in other countries were treated likewise.

The Japanese-soviet squabble in the far east again sounded a disturbing note.

Two Russian aviators were forced down in the Japanese-protected empire of Manchukuo.

Tokyo protested loud and long, said the plane was a bomber. Moscow replied it was a passenger craft.

The Japanese army, the Tokyo foreign office said, is unable to "remain indifferent to this incident."

Moscow found a point for retaliation. A fishing ship was in distress in Siberian waters. Aboard were some young Japanese scientists, with a short wave radio set.

The Soviets started an inquiry of their own to determine if espionage were the purpose of the party.

A dynamite explosion destroyed the port of El Salvador, La Libertad. A hundred and fifty persons were killed.

The Japanese torpedo boat, Tomonari, capsized in heavy seas. The loss of life approximated 100.

The Swedish government advanced 100,000,000 kronas to the Soviet Union. This is the first credit extension of any government to the bolshevik union.

Kentuckians To Get Whisky by Glass

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 17.—(AP)—The old saying that the Kentucky colonel had to have his toddy for his health's sake was written into law today, and he can now get it by the glass in his hotel, restaurant, club, or bar.

The state prohibition amendment, which stands, but it expects medicinal liquor to the doctor. That Governor Ruby Laffoon signed today, permits the sale under permit of liquor.

Any liquor containing any percent of alcohol which is used as a curative, alleviative or palliative for bodily disorders or bodily pain, or as a tonic or stimulant for nervous or mental fatigue, or other necessities of the human body.

Note Reveals Germany Is Willing To Go to "the Most Extreme Limit" To Avoid Violence.

BERLIN, March 17.—(UP)—Germany is prepared to go to "the most extreme limit" in order not to resort to violence under any circumstances," the government informed France in an armaments note made public today.

The note, sent on Tuesday, offered a non-aggression understanding with France analogous to the German-Polish understanding in 1926. However, Germany does not intend to invalidate the Locarno treaty by concluding actual formal non-aggression pact.

"After the disarmament problem is settled," the note said, "the moment will be ripe to discuss Germany's future relations with the League of Nations."

"It is a universally recognized fact," the note continued, "that the armaments race in the present state of affairs is not under any circumstances considered applicable to Germany."

"Germany agrees," it said further, "to undertake a restriction on her armaments outside the army shall not possess military arms, receive military instruction or maintain common organs with the army."

The demand did not mention the previously proposed figure of 300,000 as the strength of the German army, but clearly indicated Germany was aiming at such by demanding that, besides more troops, French colonial forces which can easily be transported to the continent be considered in future comparison of the German and French armies.

The memorandum insists that the German army be equipped with the latest type of arms, and that the French army be equipped with the latest type of arms.

The German offer already has reached the minimum requirements for the safety and defense of the continent, Germany concluded, "but Germany would even accept further reductions, provided they are applied to the French army."

first time that he was being returned to Greece soil.

Mrs. Insull Stays Behind. The captain of the Maitos said Insull was cheerful and happy. He did not leave the boat.

When or where Mrs. Insull will be reunited with her husband is as uncertain as his destination appears to be, but she is leaving Athens with a maid for Marseilles, France, Tuesday or Wednesday.

Asked about Greek reports that she was bitter toward the United States, Mrs. Insull said "Why should I be bitter toward America? I've been away so long."

Upon the departure of Insull's vessel, the Maitos, the Greek government, the foreign minister and the minister of marine, giving the time of arrival and departure.

After examinations the Maitos departed carrying Insull, according to government instructions, the messages said.

Is King at Sea. Americans and others who have followed the Insull case for the last year and a half believe he pulled the smoothest trick of all out of his bag today.

In control of a vessel, master of his destinies much as were ancient mariners who sailed out of the same port in Homeric times, he can disappear without leaving a trace.

Insull said before sailing that he expected to land at Djibouti, a small, isolated port on the Gulf of Aden, French Somaliland, entry to the barren sandy wastes and fertile valleys of northern Africa. It is the regular port for Abyssinia, connected up by a railroad for that kingdom.

Only a few shadows loomed in Insull's path. It was pointed out here that the lack of a French visa, the French passport, and the Greek passport, might prevent him from landing at Djibouti.

Too, there is a possibility of arrest if he tries to run the gauntlet of the Suez canal. Djibouti is just the other side of the canal.

The demand was raised in Athens official quarters. Canal authorities and the Egyptian government will be the deciding factors if Insull's flight is successful.

Insull left his Athens apartment Tuesday night, the Greek lawyer said, meeting an Englishman in a near-by hotel and taking a taxi to the port. Insull and Insull stole aboard the tramp steamer in the darkness.

Other reports said he was wearing a disguise which made him look like a young man, with dark hair replacing his gray locks.

Pop further disclosed that Insull did not decide until he was on the high seas during the first voyage that he would head for Suez. This strengthened a belief here that he would similarly delay this time a decision about his destination, making a new itinerary and keeping his plans secret.

Members of the Maitos' crew were stopped 100 yards from the ship and their launch was not allowed to get closer.

Breach of Gratitude. Insull's secret departure Wednesday was said by authorities to have been a breach of gratitude for hospitality given him here and of regulations requiring the registration of foreign departure. Also, it was said, the Maitos, as a freighter, can not carry passengers.

While the Maitos, however, these laws were apparently satisfied, and the government issued its orders for its expulsion—one of many since the residence permit first expired in December.

At 4:50 p. m. a marine guard left by launch to meet the Greek freighter. While the Maitos approached Greece, rumor-mongering thrived.

One newspaper said King Carol, of Rumania, had issued a decree granting Insull permission to live for five years in Galati, in eastern Rumania. In Bucharest, however, an official said Insull would not be welcomed in Rumania.

The American state department was said to have been informed of the Maitos' departure. It was said that under an American-Rumanian extradition treaty, American officials would immediately seek his arrest there.

Would End Life. Mrs. Insull this afternoon was quoted as saying that her husband would commit suicide if delivered to American authorities.

Mrs. Insull, however, a friend of Mrs. Insull, was charged today with making false statements to authorities. She was credited with having been in making arrangements for the escape.

She and Mrs. Insull were questioned for hours by police after Insull's flight. The police said that he was simply carrying out a government order to leave the country.

Several morning newspapers, meanwhile, attacked the government, claiming that the courts should result from increased pressure by the United States on Greece.

U. S. READY TO TAKE IMMEDIATE ACTION. WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP)—The United States is prepared to take immediate action to force the Greek government to expel Insull.

Insull left his Athens apartment Tuesday night, the Greek lawyer said, meeting an Englishman in a near-by hotel and taking a taxi to the port. Insull and Insull stole aboard the tramp steamer in the darkness.

At 4:50 p. m. a marine guard left by launch to meet the Greek freighter. While the Maitos approached Greece, rumor-mongering thrived.

One newspaper said King Carol, of Rumania, had issued a decree granting Insull permission to live for five years in Galati, in eastern Rumania. In Bucharest, however, an official said Insull would not be welcomed in Rumania.

The American state department was said to have been informed of the Maitos' departure. It was said that under an American-Rumanian extradition treaty, American officials would immediately seek his arrest there.

She and Mrs. Insull were questioned for hours by police after Insull's flight. The police said that he was simply carrying out a government order to leave the country.

Several morning newspapers, meanwhile, attacked the government, claiming that the courts should result from increased pressure by the United States on Greece.

U. S. READY TO TAKE IMMEDIATE ACTION. WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP)—The United States is prepared to take immediate action to force the Greek government to expel Insull.

Insull left his Athens apartment Tuesday night, the Greek lawyer said, meeting an Englishman in a near-by hotel and taking a taxi to the port. Insull and Insull stole aboard the tramp steamer in the darkness.

Other reports said he was wearing a disguise which made him look like a young man, with dark hair replacing his gray locks.

Pop further disclosed that Insull did not decide until he was on the high seas during the first voyage that he would head for Suez. This strengthened a belief here that he would similarly delay this time a decision about his destination, making a new itinerary and keeping his plans secret.

first time that he was being returned to Greece soil.

Mrs. Insull Stays Behind. The captain of the Maitos said Insull was cheerful and happy. He did not leave the boat.

When or where Mrs. Insull will be reunited with her husband is as uncertain as his destination appears to be, but she is leaving Athens with a maid for Marseilles, France, Tuesday or Wednesday.

Asked about Greek reports that she was bitter toward the United States, Mrs. Insull said "Why should I be bitter toward America? I've been away so long."

Upon the departure of Insull's vessel, the Maitos, the Greek government, the foreign minister and the minister of marine, giving the time of arrival and departure.

After examinations the Maitos departed carrying Insull, according to government instructions, the messages said.

Is King at Sea. Americans and others who have followed the Insull case for the last year and a half believe he pulled the smoothest trick of all out of his bag today.

In control of a vessel, master of his destinies much as were ancient mariners who sailed out of the same port in Homeric times, he can disappear without leaving a trace.

Insull said before sailing that he expected to land at Djibouti, a small, isolated port on the Gulf of Aden, French Somaliland, entry to the barren sandy wastes and fertile valleys of northern Africa. It is the regular port for Abyssinia, connected up by a railroad for that kingdom.

Only a few shadows loomed in Insull's path. It was pointed out here that the lack of a French visa, the French passport, and the Greek passport, might prevent him from landing at Djibouti.

Too, there is a possibility of arrest if he tries to run the gauntlet of the Suez canal. Djibouti is just the other side of the canal.

The demand was raised in Athens official quarters. Canal authorities and the Egyptian government will be the deciding factors if Insull's flight is successful.

Members of the Maitos' crew were stopped 100 yards from the ship and their launch was not allowed to get closer.

Breach of Gratitude. Insull's secret departure Wednesday was said by authorities to have been a breach of gratitude for hospitality given him here and of regulations requiring the registration of foreign departure. Also, it was said, the Maitos, as a freighter, can not carry passengers.

While the Maitos, however, these laws were apparently satisfied, and the government issued its orders for its expulsion—one of many since the residence permit first expired in December.

Official Blames 'Stavisky Curse' For Frenchman's Suicidal Attempt

PARIS, March 17.—(AP)—The "Stavisky curse" fell again today in the person of Emile Blanche, an official in the agriculture ministry.

Troops on the rifle range at Fontenay-lez-Paris found him lying in a pool of blood, his throat cut by a knife still clutched in his hand.

In a hospital he was later notified by his wife that he was charged with swindling and complicity in swindling in connection with his affairs.

Today the Stavisky scandal has now piled on one of the most extraordinary records in criminal history, with the end not yet in sight.

Its toll tonight was: At least 30 persons lying in street corners last night in the outgrowth of intense popular sentiment.

the past. They have not been regarded as new debts but merely in the light of deferring payment of debts already contracted.

The suit to prevent validation which, if successful, would impose a blanket salary cut amounting to 14 percent on 15,000 non-school employees of the city, was filed by B. F. Locklear, a railroad man.

Colman H. Turner, of the first ward, Saturday asserted that a check of Locklear on the city tax books discloses that the only property returned is $500 personal property.

Locklear, therefore, would pay only 75 cents a year tax on his holdings. He also would be subject to a check of the records shows that he has not paid his taxes in the last three years.

"I can not see how the plaintiff in this case would have any rights as a taxpayer," Locklear said. "Every time I hear anything about the city of Atlanta we are harassed like this."

City Leaders. Others were equally emphatic concerning the matter, and were concerned about the validation proceedings. Mayor Key has asserted that the city council has no right to allow the federal government to abandon expenditures of the large sums in Atlanta.

He holds that the city would be forced to make up the $400,000 a month to prevent people now on relief from starving, much less to provide jobs at living wages.

The entire fiscal structure of the city, including the 1934 budget, is in the hands of the courts in the validation suit. The city council has no right to make up the $400,000 a month to prevent people now on relief from starving, much less to provide jobs at living wages.

Such a condition was regarded as untenable, he said Saturday that the people of Atlanta have an equity in the validation.

Legal Technicality. "Hungry men, women and children are pinning their hopes on continued expenditure of federal funds here as they are elsewhere," Key said. "Regard for the city council will play important roles in the development of this program."

Mr. Soong believes that China will come a vast market for American goods. He said that the city council will play important roles in the development of this program.

It would be a sort of "swap" of goods and all quarters agreed that an exchange of products would be about the only way for China to pay for the return of the public to its use under the so-called experimental rates.

Upon a consideration of the record and all other facts and circumstances, the commission has decided to reduce the rates on intrastate passenger fares to 20 percent of the current rates.

Georgia is fair, reasonable and just. The commission has decided to reduce the rates on intrastate passenger fares to 20 percent of the current rates.

The commission desires to encourage the carriers in their efforts to find a solution of their passenger service problem. It has decided to reduce the rates on intrastate passenger fares to 20 percent of the current rates.

After listening for nearly four hours to arguments, the court, composed of Circuit Judge Samuel H. Silas and District Judges William H. Barnes and John H. Barnes, decided to reduce the rates on intrastate passenger fares to 20 percent of the current rates.

The financial plight of Georgia's railroads is the subject of a prominent part in the arguments. Assistant State Attorney-General John T. Gore asserting, "It is not fair to assume that the public should bear all the expense of the railroads."

Allen Post, Atlanta attorney, who intervened in the case on behalf of a group of farmers, declared "If the railroads are in such a state, the farmers are in worse."

The commission's reduction order would be in effect March 10, but was held up by Judge Barrett signed a temporary restraining order which will remain in effect until the injunction issue is decided.

Counsel for the railroads, including Frank W. Gwathmey and W. N. McGehee, of Washington, and Blair Foster, of Atlanta, argued that the commission did not allow them a full hearing before issuing the order and declared it was arbitrarily made without regard for the evidence in the case.

2 DILLINGER AID CONVICTED IN OHIO

Trial of "Sleepy" Clark, Third Gang Member,
Will Begin Monday.

LIMA, Ohio, March 17.—(AP)—The Allen county jail building—scene of the violent death of Sheriff Jess Sarker last October—became the residence today of two Dillinger gang members doomed to the electric chair, Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley.

Two juries in as many weeks have decided that these two men murdered the sheriff when they freed their pal, John Dillinger, from the same jail. The second jury reported its findings—guilty without recommendation of mercy—today, obligating Judge E. E. Everett to impose the death penalty upon Makley. A third Dillinger mobster will face another jury Monday on the same charge. He is "Sleepy" Russell Clark. The state says he was with Makley and Pierpont when Dillinger was released. Sentencing of Pierpont and Makley was delayed until after Clark had been tried. Makley was not impressed a great deal by the verdict. He sat quietly by his counsel, restricted by handcuffs and leg chains.

Two sisters, Mrs. Florence Makley Maus and Mrs. Mildred Makley Bartholomew, of Eldorado, Kan., were considerably more affected by the verdict than the brother they had not seen for 17 years before coming to Lima. The jury took but two ballots. On the first they were unanimous for a vote of guilty but disagreed on whether mercy should be extended. After being locked up for the night the verdict of guilty without mercy was returned.

TRAIL OF DILLINGER IS GROWING COLD

PORT HURON, Mich., March 17.—(AP)—The "hot trail" of John Dillinger, which officers believed they had picked up in the fatal gun battle with his negro escape companion, appeared to have cooled tonight, although law enforcement officers throughout this region were pressing their investigation of scores of clues and "tips."

In addition to the search of many houses in South Port Huron a special watch was being maintained at the Michigan-Ohio border here and highways leading out of the state in various directions were being patrolled.

MAE WEST SUMMONED IN FUR COAT SUIT

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—(AP)—Mae West was asked today to make a personal appearance in the municipal court Monday.

The bid came from Judge James H. Pope, as a summons in the suit of Downing & Downing, Chicago furriers, through a Chicago bank, to collect $200,000. They claim she ordered a coat with black fox fur, and then returning it, declined to pay, saying: "It just doesn't click, boys."

In her answer she claimed she asked for black silver fox fur, and just got black fox fur. The claimants demurred at the answer, saying one must ask for either black fox fur or silver fox fur.

Fireman Long Tends Garden Between Trains and Alarms

By BARBARA BAKER.
A train whistles by leaving a cloud of smoke and steam and dust. Railroads rattle as freight cars pass. Tiny particles of dirt and cinders smart the eyes and sift through the clothes of a man working the ground along the right of way—working in a garden.

There was the garden of Allah; the garden of Daphne and, most noted of all, that Biblical place called Eden, the Garden of Paradise. Picture a garden beside a railroad track, and a real one!

Motorists and street car riders passing the intersection of Moreland and DeKalb avenues may notice a man busy with trowel or rake along the Seaboard tracks in front of the fire station. About six weeks from now that plot will be green with tender young plants entirely unaffected by the smoke and dust from the railroad.

The master of this garden spends most of his time in the fire station. He has been a member of the department for 23 years. He drives one of the big red trucks and always gets a thrill out of a dash to a blazing building. In less hectic moments he may be found in his railroad garden tending sweet potato slips.

C. W. Long, the fireman-gardener, started his agricultural venture 20 years ago, when he was assigned to station 12.

"This space," he said, pointing to a plot about 150 feet by 17 feet, "was just a big hole full of rocks and rubbish when I first started. We cleared 27 two-horse loads of rocks and rubbish. The first space I worked back in 1914 was a little plot about 4 feet square. I bedded only two bushels of potatoes."

Now he takes 150 bushels from 20 different beds. The beds are 5x17 1/2 feet and are separated by walks about 2 1/2 feet in width. The plots are walled in with planks to prevent washing and are 12 inches deep. This depth is cleared of the original soil and filled with a mixture of sand and a fertilizing agent. The potatoes are bedded about 8 inches below the surface. When the young sprouts come up they are reset in the ground and are ready to be sold as slips.

Until two years ago the garden was a source of profit. Mr. Long sold the slips by the hundred and will sell as few as 25 to hobby gardeners in the city. Most of the trade goes to country people passing through town.

"I have sold as much as $500 worth," he said. "That was when times were good, of course. They used to sell as high as $4 a 1,000. Supply and demand governs the price. I used to have more orders than I could fill."

In the early fall the garden is planted in turnip salad, radishes and other vegetables in season. When the beds are cleaned out for the spring planting the soil is sold and the potatoes start a new cycle.

Mr. Long works the garden in his spare time and when he is especially busy he hires a man to help him. Watering the beds is an all-day job, because the sand drinks up the water. Mr. Long had a water meter put on the edge of the garden at a cost of $80.

The space has been leased for many years from the Seaboard railway. "Just a nominal sum, which they tell me to keep me from thinking I own the land," he said laughing.

Three-foot posts are placed at intervals on the DeKalb avenue side to keep automobiles from pressing down delicate plants. On the opposite border the Seaboard trains roar along the tracks and to them Mr. Long's green rectangles are immune.

High School Essayists Will Write
On Citizenship in Civitan Contest

The Atlanta Civitan Club announced Saturday that the subject chosen for its annual essay contest among high school students this year is "Good Citizenship, the Safeguard of the Nation."

The contest is open to all students of the high school of Greater Atlanta. Copies of the rules have been sent to the principals of the schools.

If a girl student wins the contest she will be allowed to attend a scholarship at Agnes Scott College, $50 of it to be furnished by the club and the balance by the college. If a boy wins the contest he will be awarded $100 on a scholarship at Emory University, $50 to be furnished by the club and the balance by the university.

The second prize is a scholarship to Draughon's Business College. If a girl wins she will be given a stenographer-secretarial course, and if a boy wins he will be given a first-year accounting course.

The committee of the Civitan Club sponsoring the contest is composed of Clark Harrison, chairman; Lee Edwards, M. M. Forben and L. A. Scott. Other Civitan clubs over the country are sponsoring similar contests.

The rules provide that the essay must be not more than 750 words and the school must have at least five contestants to enter the competition. The best essay from each school will be selected by a committee of faculty members and forwarded to Mr. Harrison's committee. This group will name a group of prominent Atlantans to the board of judges which will make the final award.

The winner of the contest will be announced at the June commencement season.

Ohio Will Deport Undesirable Aliens

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 17.—(AP)—Deportation of undesirable aliens incarcerated in Ohio penal institutions was ordered today by Governor George White.

A general policy for deportation of the aliens was outlined by the governor to Welfare Director John McSweeney, but caution was urged in selecting the men for removal to their native lands.

Deportation was directed by the chief executive with a view of reducing the prison population and the cost of operating the penal institutions.

Five Persons Perish In Memphis Flames

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 17.—(AP)—A young couple perished with their two small children and the wife's unmarried sister when fire trapped them in an upstairs apartment in a residential section of Memphis early today.

Earl R. Hammond, 27, an employee of a lime and cement company; his wife, Auba Kay Hammond, 28; Earl Hammond Jr., aged 3; Baby Hammond, a 12-day old unnamed baby girl, and Miss Kate (Kitty) Kay, 20, Hammond, died almost instantly from burns or suffocation.

Mr. Hammond died trying to save his little son. Mrs. Hammond lost her life while trying to rescue her infant daughter.

Twenty-eight deputies-collector of the Georgia internal revenue division will begin an inspection Monday of the stocks of 200 or more licensed liquor dealers in Georgia, and all whisky found in their possession and not marked with the proper distiller and wholesale and retail stamps will be seized and sold at public auction.

The campaign will include all liquor dealers in the state violating the revenue law, and that applies to bootleggers also, Page said.

"We are going to call first on the licensed dealers—after that we'll make it unanimous," the collector said. "The drive will take in drug-gists who are licensed to sell alcohol, because their goods likewise must bear the federal stamps."

The retail or "red strip" stamps of the government represent a revenue assessment of approximately a penny a quart. Wholesale dealers stamps cost $2 a gallon. Seized whisky will be advertised for sale three weeks prior to the auction, and at the expiration of the three weeks, if no claim for the whisky has been made, it will be sold on government property.

Claimants of unstamped whisky will be required to post bond pending final settlement.

Violators of the revenue law will be subject to federal prosecution, and each case will be reported in full to the federal district attorney, Page said.

Folding Bed Smothers St. Louis Girl, 2

ST. LOUIS, March 17.—(AP)—Estelle Frances, two months old, smothered to death today in a folding bed which her father closed without noticing she was inside.

Walter Markwardt, the father, said he went into the bedroom after breakfast and closed the bed, according to custom, thinking the baby was in another room with her mother.

Fifteen minutes later he noticed the child was missing, and found the body in the bed.

U. S. To Sell Legal Liquor Here, But the Buyer Must 'Watch Out'

Georgians will have the opportunity of buying legally-made whisky from Uncle Sam, at a price of $2 a gallon up following seizure of the liquor for failure to bear federal revenue stamps, but—and there's a big catch in it—the buyers will not be immune from any state officer who might be standing by to catch violators of the state bone dry act.

This announcement Saturday by W. Eugene Page, collector of internal revenue, excited considerable interest until the "but" part of the announcement dampened the ardor of would-be purchasers, after explanation by the collector.

Twenty-eight deputies-collector of the Georgia internal revenue division will begin an inspection Monday of the stocks of 200 or more licensed liquor dealers in Georgia, and all whisky found in their possession and not marked with the proper distiller and wholesale and retail stamps will be seized and sold at public auction.

CITY-OWNED UTILITY SUED FOR BOND DEBT

Question of Where Funds of Such Auxiliary Sources Will Go Raised.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 17.—(AP)—The question of whether revenues from auxiliary sources, such as publicly owned utilities, are part of governmental resources and must be used for payment of bonds, was raised here today in a far-reaching case filed in the supreme court.

It was a mandamus action brought by Roger Babson, financial statistician, against the city of Sebring. The court granted an alternative writ and set March 27 for an answer by the city.

Babson, who said in a petition that he holds $18,000 of city of Sebring "light and water" bonds, seeks payment of past-due interest.

He claims "full faith and credit and resources" of the city were pledged to repayment when the bonds were issued in 1924 and 1925. The municipality-owned light and water plant is described as a municipal resource, and Babson contends profits from its operation must be devoted to payment of bond interest and principal.

Net profits from Sebring's light and water plant for the fiscal year of 1932 were listed in Babson's petition at $53,921, and for 1933 at $53,229. He estimated net profits for the year ending June 30, 1934, would be $55,000.

He seeks an order from the court requiring that these profits be turned into the city's general treasury for operating expenses, because, the petition asserts, the city failed to provide by taxation, revenues sufficient to make payments on bonds.

McINTOSH URGES AID FOR SCHOOLS

Editor Sees Need for Improvement; Teachers Laud Use of Road Funds.

Likening Georgia's educational handicap to a malignant scourge which cannot be lifted until the searchlight of truth reveals to the people its evils, Henry T. McIntosh, editor of the Atlanta Herald, made an appeal Saturday to the people of Georgia to get busy and do something about the state's educational plight by demanding action of the next legislature.

Although well in the foreground with regard to expenditures in handling crime, Georgia stands forty-ninth on the list of states when it comes to educational appropriations, Mr. McIntosh told Fulton county teachers at a general meeting held at Fulton High school, adding that notwithstanding the state's lowest appropriations for education, its cuts in educational expenditures since the depression have been greater than those of any other state.

Following Mr. McIntosh's address, the teachers present, representing the entire teaching body of the county, passed resolutions commending Governor Talma for his planned economies in the highway department for the purpose of liquidating the indebtedness of the state and the accumulation of $2,000,000 during the term of office to be used by the incoming legislature for this purpose. Candidates for the legislature are called upon to state their position as to this liquidation. Superintendent M. D. Collins was also commended in the resolution for his efforts to secure for the schools of the state $2,000,000 through federal aid, and Mr. McIntosh was commended for his address and his general work in behalf of the schools of the state.

Mr. McIntosh paid great tribute to Georgia's teachers and visioned them as missionaries struggling against tremendous odds in an educational wilderness.

"The enormous expenditures for courts, jails and other facilities for handling crime," the speaker said, "are traceable largely to the lack of sufficient funds for education," referring as a specific instance to the Georgia Training School for Girls, declaring that its existence would not be necessary were the proper funds for education supplied.

Mr. McIntosh quoted statistics from state records showing per capita expenditures of tax money, and asserted that for agencies tending toward character building the state shows a shocking lethargy.

Georgia Ranks Lowest.

Not only does the state of Georgia rank lowest in its monetary provision for education, the editor continued, but in literacy and every other item connected with the school system its position is shameful.

"In nine cases out of ten," Mr. McIntosh said, "delinquent boys and girls come from broken homes, and it is the province of the teacher to step in and help to supply some of the necessary training lacking in such homes. The boy and girl of Georgia are being deprived of their rights and her people are sitting idly by, many of them not at all cognizant of the inevitable result which will manifest itself in a future generation unable to cope with the responsibilities of citizenship, unless something is done and done quickly."

Mr. McIntosh urged his hearers to read President Roosevelt's recent book, "Looking Forward," particularly that portion which treats of the rapid deterioration of the country's natural resources, which he declared have been used wantonly and wastefully for 150 years.

"It is time that we realize," he continued, "that our childhood of today is our greatest resource of tomorrow. The salvation of the coming generation today is an awakening of the public consciousness and a demand for adequate educational facilities."

Favors Revenue Action.

Declaring that he is in favor of any legitimate method of raising school revenue, whether it be by sales tax, bond issue or other process, Mr. McIntosh urged a "buttonhole campaign" of every candidate for the legislature, and an assurance before casting a ballot that the candidate chosen will place the Georgia child above good roads, cattle or pigs, at the same time announcing his intention of devoting the major portion of his time in the future to arousing the people to the true situation existing among the children of the state.

Mr. McIntosh stated that he has never held public office and has never been a candidate, but that he is willing to go anywhere at any time and do his bit toward awakening the citizens to a realization of the state's plight.

CWA Conductor Here Has Plan For New Symphony Orchestra

By MOZELLE HORTON.

Earle Landis, conductor of the CWA Symphony orchestra, is a genuine, honest, sincere musician with high symphonic ideals backed by a firm determination to carry them out. He is a man little in stature, but a very few minutes conversation reveals the largeness of his vision and the reach of his ambition. And even his modest and unassuming manner does not hide the nobility of his purpose in "putting Atlanta on the map symphonically—for that is his aim—a civic pride as well as a musical pride, you see."

Mr. Landis was born in Toledo, Ohio. When about 15 years of age he went to New York for study with the world famous Belgian violinist and teacher, Ovide Musin. Before coming to America he was professor of violin at the Royal Conservatory of Music at Leige.

Although well in the foreground with regard to expenditures in handling crime, Georgia stands forty-ninth on the list of states when it comes to educational appropriations, Mr. McIntosh told Fulton county teachers at a general meeting held at Fulton High school, adding that notwithstanding the state's lowest appropriations for education, its cuts in educational expenditures since the depression have been greater than those of any other state.

Following Mr. McIntosh's address, the teachers present, representing the entire teaching body of the county, passed resolutions commending Governor Talma for his planned economies in the highway department for the purpose of liquidating the indebtedness of the state and the accumulation of $2,000,000 during the term of office to be used by the incoming legislature for this purpose. Candidates for the legislature are called upon to state their position as to this liquidation. Superintendent M. D. Collins was also commended in the resolution for his efforts to secure for the schools of the state $2,000,000 through federal aid, and Mr. McIntosh was commended for his address and his general work in behalf of the schools of the state.

Mr. McIntosh paid great tribute to Georgia's teachers and visioned them as missionaries struggling against tremendous odds in an educational wilderness.

"The enormous expenditures for courts, jails and other facilities for handling crime," the speaker said, "are traceable largely to the lack of sufficient funds for education," referring as a specific instance to the Georgia Training School for Girls, declaring that its existence would not be necessary were the proper funds for education supplied.

Mr. McIntosh quoted statistics from state records showing per capita expenditures of tax money, and asserted that for agencies tending toward character building the state shows a shocking lethargy.

Georgia Ranks Lowest.

Not only does the state of Georgia rank lowest in its monetary provision for education, the editor continued, but in literacy and every other item connected with the school system its position is shameful.

"In nine cases out of ten," Mr. McIntosh said, "delinquent boys and girls come from broken homes, and it is the province of the teacher to step in and help to supply some of the necessary training lacking in such homes. The boy and girl of Georgia are being deprived of their rights and her people are sitting idly by, many of them not at all cognizant of the inevitable result which will manifest itself in a future generation unable to cope with the responsibilities of citizenship, unless something is done and done quickly."

Mr. McIntosh urged his hearers to read President Roosevelt's recent book, "Looking Forward," particularly that portion which treats of the rapid deterioration of the country's natural resources, which he declared have been used wantonly and wastefully for 150 years.

"It is time that we realize," he continued, "that our childhood of today is our greatest resource of tomorrow. The salvation of the coming generation today is an awakening of the public consciousness and a demand for adequate educational facilities."

Favors Revenue Action.

Declaring that he is in favor of any legitimate method of raising school revenue, whether it be by sales tax, bond issue or other process, Mr. McIntosh urged a "buttonhole campaign" of every candidate for the legislature, and an assurance before casting a ballot that the candidate chosen will place the Georgia child above good roads, cattle or pigs, at the same time announcing his intention of devoting the major portion of his time in the future to arousing the people to the true situation existing among the children of the state.

Mr. McIntosh stated that he has never held public office and has never been a candidate, but that he is willing to go anywhere at any time and do his bit toward awakening the citizens to a realization of the state's plight.

in a series of educational programs for the city school system. Mr. Landis says that the greatest thrill of his whole career has come from these school programs, the children have manifested such unbounded enthusiasm in their reception and appreciation of the programs. The orchestra's next public performance will be Sunday afternoon, March 25, at 3 o'clock, in Wesley Memorial auditorium.

Atlantians, watch our new symphony orchestra grow! And Atlantians! let be said that each of you loyal music supporters had a hand in the developing!

which he uses with fine musical intelligence. His radio programs are favorites to a host of listeners. Miss Early is a young artist whose brilliant playing promises her a bright and successful future. Their joint recital should attract wide attention.

Among Miss Early's numbers on the program will be Sonata in E major, and "Pastorale," both by Scarlatti; "Impromptu," Op. 90, No. 3, Schubert; "Hark, Hark, the Lark," Schubert-Liszt; a Chopin Etude, Nocturne, and Waltz; "Intermezzo," Op. 117, No. 2, and "Rhapsody," Op. 79, No. 2, by Brahms; and the "Rigoletto Fantasy," Verdi-Liszt.

Mr. Mullins' selections are "The Evening Star," from Tannhauser, by Wagner; "Monotone," Corneilus; "When the Heart Is Young," Dudley Buck; "The Spirit Flower," Campbell-Tipton; and "By the Waters of Babylon," Clarke E. Howell.

Parsifal Operaplogue.

Another program of the day will be the operaplogue based on Wagner's "Parsifal," to be presented by Mrs. J. G. Addy at the Deatur Woman's club at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. C. S. Hamilton will play the musical motives at the piano, and Mrs. W. F. Talley, soprano, will sing selections from the opera. Mrs. Frank Harwell and Miss Adelaide Eberhart will exhibit and explain several famous pictures appropriate to the text of the opera. The public is invited.

Choir Presentation Wednesday.

The vested choir of over 50 voices of All Saints' Episcopal church, under the direction of Joseph Ragan, organist and choirmaster, will present the sacred cantata, "The Message From the Cross," by Will MacFarlane, at the church on Wednesday evening, March 21, at 8 o'clock. An invitation is extended the public.

Brahms' "Requiem."

Brahms' "Requiem" will be presented by the vested choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church, under the direction of Hugh Hodgson, organist and choirmaster, at the March 21, at 8 o'clock. The Atlanta Music Club, which will be Tuesday evening, March 27, at the Atlanta Woman's club auditorium, at 8:30 o'clock.

O'Keefe Musicals.

The musical festival at O'Keefe Junior High school will be given in the school's auditorium on the evening of March 29, at 8:15 with a vast chorus of boys and girls singing under the direction of J. D. Shackelford, director of music in the school. Mozelle Horton, pianist, and Bowen Davis, vocal soloist, will be guest artists for the program.

Two Weeks of Grand Opera.

Atlanta music lovers are delighted over the announcement of another opera season this year, with a two-week program this time. The New York Grand Opera Association will present the favorite operas in a series of the Atlanta theatre beginning April 23. The first week's program is as follows: Monday evening, April 23, a double bill, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci"; Tuesday evening, "Carmen"; Wednesday matinee, "Faust"; Wednesday evening, "Rigoletto"; Thursday evening, "La Traviata"; Friday evening, "Aida"; Saturday matinee, "Lucia di Lammermoor"; and Saturday evening, "La Forza del Destino."

The week beginning April 30 offers: Monday evening, "Il Trovatore"; Tuesday evening, "Martha"; Wednesday matinee, "Rigoletto"; Wednesday evening, "Otello"; Thursday evening, "Samson and Delilah"; Friday evening, "Norma"; Saturday matinee, "Carmen"; and Saturday evening, "La Gioconda."

All presentations are to be at popular prices. The association has received wonderful criticisms for their presentations from the country's leading critics, and their Atlanta season will be a much-heralded event.

Studio Club Musicals.

Reports from every side have it that the musicals presented by the music group of the Studio Club last Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Sanders, featuring Irene Lettwith, pianist, and Mrs. D. C. Adams, soprano, was an outstanding musical event. This writer regrets having to forego this program.

Federation Jottings.

Georgia Delegation To Protest Change in Pulp Industry Code

Amendment, Designed To Prevent Installation of New Machinery, Would Be Unfair to South, Georgians Declare.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Aroused over efforts of the paper and pulp industry to secure an amendment to its present NRA code which, it is claimed, would prevent the development of an important newspaper industry in the south, Representative Carl Vinson, of Georgia, today called a meeting of the state congressional group for next Tuesday with a view of drawing up formal protests for presentation to National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

The offending amendment, designed to prohibit the installation of new machinery for the manufacture of pulp and newspaper, was drafted by the code authority for the paper and pulp industry. Hearings on the proposed amendment have already been held by Deputy NRA Administrator W. W. Pickard and a decision is expected shortly. In calling a state caucus to consider the matter, Representative Vinson, dean of the Georgia delegation, said that if the machinery restrictions were imposed, the south would be severely handicapped to go forward with the successful experiments conducted by Dr. Charles Herty, of Savannah, who has shown that paper can be manufactured from Georgia pine much more cheaply than that produced from Canadian spruce, the source of considerable part of the American supply.

To Join in Protest. At the same time Senator Walter F. George announced that he and Senator Richard B. Russell would join with the house group in sending a vigorous protest to General Johnson against adoption of the amendment. "There is no reason why the south should be discriminated against in a matter of such potential importance," said the senior Georgia senator, "and I intend to make the proper protest with the national recovery administration. The way is apparently open for the establishment of a flourishing new industry in Georgia and the other southern states by the experiments of Dr. Herty."

Both Senator Russell and Dr. Herty, now deputy NRA administrator, attended the recent hearings on the amendment and assailed the purpose behind the machinery restrictions.

Representative Vinson, whose home town, Milledgeville, is the birthplace of Dr. Herty, said that the amendment offers a serious threat to the southern section. He pointed out that the federal government through control legislation is now seeking to curtail the acreage of cotton farmers and that while the farmers are cooperating in the program it would be unfair to deny them the future possibilities of a market for a new crop by preventing the newspaper industry to enter there.

Hundreds of thousands of acres of land now planted in cotton are available for growth of pine trees suitable for paper and pulp use, he added, adding that the contemplated amendment would simply penalize southern farmers for the benefit of the Canadian newspaper industry.

Representative Eugene Cox, of Columbia, was another member of the state group who voiced a sound protest to the program. He pointed out that the amendment would take away from the south the possibility of a market for a new crop by preventing the newspaper industry to enter there.

Representative Robert Rampeck, of Atlanta, said:

"We are sorely in need of another money crop in the south, and the curtailment of cotton and tobacco production. This would be provided by a demand for young pine arising from the development of a newspaper industry there. I have no fault to find with NRA codes so long as they do not interfere with industrial expansion of a healthy nature, but I do feel that if our southern pine can be made into commercial paper the south would benefit not only by cheaper newspaper, but by the employment offered in a new industry and the market created for a new farm product. There should be no interference from the NRA with the development of this industry in the south."

Representative Homer Parker, whose district embraces much of the Georgia coast, said:

gia coastal region, said the possibilities of the newspaper industry was most vital to his constituency. Representative Vinson said that after the caucus of the Georgia group Tuesday efforts would be made to have other southern congressmen join them in demanding that the amendment be rejected.

There is a distinct suspicion here that the Canadian pulp and paper industry, which is dominated by American capital, projected the proposed amendment as a means of forestalling the development of a competing newspaper industry in the southern section of the United States.

Two weeks' revival will open at Calvary Methodist church, 1471 Gordon street, S. W., tonight. The pastor, Rev. W. M. Barnett, will be assisted by Rev. Marvin Williams.

Georgia Congressmen Back Bankhead Bill

Talmadge Request for Adverse Vote Turned Down; Brown, Parker Explain.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Members of the Georgia delegation in the lower house have informed Governor Eugene Talmadge that they were unable to go along with him in his opposition to the Bankhead cotton control legislation now pending in congress. A canvass of the delegation revealed today that all 10 of the Georgia congressmen are planning to support the measure when it comes to a vote Monday.

In telephone and telegraphic messages to Georgia members during the past week Governor Talmadge voiced vigorous objection to the bill and urged the state group to vote against final passage. Replying indirectly to the governor and other critics of the legislation, Representative Marvin Jones, of Texarkana, chairman of the house agricultural committee declared on the floor that defeat of the measure would cause cotton to decline several cents per pound.

Representative Paul Brown, of Elberton, and Representative Homer Parker, of Statesboro, two of those whom Governor Talmadge personally communicated with in his effort to defeat passage, declared today that they have been proponents of the measure from the start and denied any suggestion that they have been identified with the opposition, which is led by middle-western and eastern elements.

Seek Time Limit. While giving courteous consideration to the objection raised by the Georgia chief executive, both were definitely committed to the bill long before Governor Talmadge stated his opposition and so informed him at the time his views were brought to their attention.

The two Georgia congressmen have sought minor changes in the bill with respect to the time limit for continuing the cotton control provisions, but it was explained that these are insignificant in character and in no way designed to defeat or embarrass ultimate passage. Representative Brown, who is a member of the Georgia delegation, said that the Georgia delegation is not in a position to limit the cotton control provisions, but that the Georgia delegation is not in a position to limit the cotton control provisions.

The bill makes provision for a three-year period of operation. Proclaiming his support of the measure, Representative Brown declared on the floor the other day that he was satisfied "the speculators of the country will put cotton down three or four cents per pound overnight, if essential features of the legislation are not enacted into law."

Explains Position. "We can re-enact the bill next January if it is necessary. This will be the first experience with the compulsory program and we will know whether or not it is really a benefit to the cotton farmer of the south. We will extend the provisions this fall. The most independent man on earth is the cotton farmer of the south, in action and in thought, and I think if the provisions of the bill work all right, the farmers will know it and we will know it. I can assure you that any harm can come from the amendment which I have offered. We can extend the provisions during January of next year."

In a similar speech Representative Parker declared he was very much in favor of the principle of the legislation but advocated that it be treated as an emergency measure rather than a permanent policy.

It is another feature of the bill that concerns me. I want it to be written in unmistakable terms showing it when the seasons are unfavorable and when nature smiles abundantly on the cotton farmer and he makes an allotment to him, that it will be understood by everyone that the farmer can hold his surplus cotton in the seed, or if it has been ginned and baled, in his barn, and that it will be possible for him to sell it the next year or in succeeding years as a part of his allotment. I do not want to see him required to pay a tax on cotton he produces just because the season may be unusually good with the result that he produced more cotton than was allotted."

NO TRACE IS FOUND OF ESCAPED PRISONERS

CHATTANOOGA, March 17.—(AP)—Despite a diligent search by authorities, no trace has been found today of seven prisoners who last night escaped from the jail and eight trucks and pieces of iron torn from their beds, forced Tom McPhail, evening jailer, and his trustees into the "bull pen," snatched McPhail away and escaped through a rear door.

Here are three of the many sterling entertainers promised visitors at the Rogers Pure Food Show and Show this year, which is to be held at the Palais Peachtree March 29 to April 7. They are, left to right, Laurie Lasser, little Charlotte Bishman and Jacqueline Gullatt.

With stars from the Gordon-Eggle School of Dancing numbered among the many star offerings planned by Director John W. Gates, the Rogers Pure Food Show, scheduled for the Palais Peachtree March 29 through April 7, promises to be one of the outstanding events of the spring season. There such juvenile stars as Charlotte Bishman, Jacqueline Gullatt and Laurie Lasser, the show will be one long remembered by Atlantans and other residents of Georgia. According to John W. Gates, nationally famous food show director, the entertainment features for the show this year surpass anything ever offered in the past.

"The Rogers organization," stated Mr. Gates, "has already taken booths at the Palais Peachtree and have signified their desire to co-operate by placing unusually attractive displays of their products therein. New firms are coming into the show daily, according to Mr. Gates, and the event this year will be the biggest one of its kind ever held in the south."

U. S. Recognition of Russia Dims Chance of War in East, Hindus Says

By RALPH MCGILL. Probabilities of a Russo-Japanese war are regarded as about 50-50 since recognition of Russia by the United States instead of about 70-30 for war as before recognition.

Recognition of Russia will open up a vast market for southern cotton—Russia is not spending money to form unrest, strikes and disorder in other countries, all claims to the contrary notwithstanding. Russia is too busy and needs the money too much to turn her attention to her own development.

Charges that Russian money has been spent on strikes and sabotage in other countries have never been substantiated. Russia is sympathetic toward the American experiments toward the world, but is not vitally interested in anything else but her own problems. Only a Few Communists. The Russian monetary system is backed by a small amount of gold but this makes no difference. Russian money is merely a commodity money—man on earth is the cotton farmer of the south, in action and in thought, and I think if the provisions of the bill work all right, the farmers will know it and we will know it. I can assure you that any harm can come from the amendment which I have offered. We can extend the provisions during January of next year."

These were just some of the subjects discussed Saturday by Maurice Hindus, brilliant Russian author and noted authority on affairs in the U. S. S. R. He was entertained Saturday at lunch at Rich's book shop with Ruth Himmman Carter, manager of the shop, as hostess. Hindus lectures this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Wesley Memorial auditorium.

"There is too much misunderstanding about Russia," he said, "but a great deal of curiosity. That is but natural. Any great revolution is economic and destructive of the old. French revolutions influenced the American revolution and there is no telling how many revolutions were influenced by the Russian revolution. The effects of the Russian revolution are world-wide and probably they effect more basic principles than any one of the past," said Hindus.

It was startling to learn that in Russia, with her 160 million people, there are but two million members of the communist party. "The communist party is in power," he took over the nation because it had a plan. Russia's communist leaders knew where they were going. In this they differ from Hitler and Mussolini who live from day to day. Russia is planning for hundreds of years from now," said Hindus.

"There is no private enterprise in Russia. But contrary to the usual opinion, it is not a dictatorship. It is a dictatorship of the government. Their rewards are greater."

"The price is not so high as you learn that Russia encourages spending—not saving. 'You saved in this country,' said Hindus, 'for a rainy day, for old age security or for children. NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP)—Minor irregularities marked today's brief session of the bond market, but most United States government securities and various corporate issues managed to edge into new high territory for the past year or longer.

Trading was quiet throughout and transfers totaled only $7,800,000, par value, against $8,333,000 last Saturday. The average for domestic corporate bonds eased one-tenth of a point at 85.5. On the week this average was up nine-tenths of a point.

The strike situation in the automobile industry continued to be somewhat of an unsettling factor. A general walk-out, if it occurs, might spread to other industries, it was feared, and affect the recovery progress which has already been made.

While traders and investors were a little nervous, there was little urgent selling apparent. At the same time quiet buying was reported on the mid-reactions.

The persistent strength of federal loans was impressive. Although the turnover in this department was not large, nine of the treasuries and liberties 1-2s established new 1934 prices.

Among the better rails, utilities and industrials were some issues of Allegheny Corporation, Central Pacific, Consolidated Gas, and others.

Weakness of the Reichsmark, over Germany's financial situation, the government's availed 5-12s dropped 1/2 and 3-1/2 points respectively, and the 4-1/2s fell 1/2 point.

Other foreign loans were inclined to ease.

BONDS CONTINUE TO ADVANCE
As Federal Credit Improves;
Further Business Gains NotedImprovement in Employment, Better Retail Trade and Increase in Railroad Traffic

By CHARLES F. SPEARE.

NEW YORK, March 17.—It is a rare market history for bonds to be in such a position of strength as they are today. The professional economists, who have been predicting a depression, are now predicting a recovery. The market is now in a position of strength, and the professional economists are now predicting a recovery.

There is even indication that business will go on expanding in the spring and will rise to even higher levels during the summer. Only a moderate proportion of the money appropriated for public works has been expended.

As the allotted sums are drawn on, the amount of employment, better retail trade and increase in railroad traffic are indicated, says Speare.

Wheat rose about a cent a bushel today, but gains failed to hold in the face of a heavy sell-off in the futures market.

Accelerating the transient upturn of the wheat market were severe drought in the southwest and west, with a sudden drop of temperature.

Wheat futures were in a position of strength, and the professional economists are now predicting a recovery.

ART LEAGUE EXHIBIT
TO OPEN HERE TODAYStudents and Former Students
at High Museum.

Formally opening this afternoon at the High Museum of Art is an exhibit by members of the High Museum Art League, composed of students and former students of the school who have had two or more years of work at the institution.

The 45 pictures exhibited in the show are the work of 18 members of the league. They were selected by Miss Ruth Albrook, president of the organization; Wendell Jackson and Lillian Smith.

Four prizes offered by art patrons to the exhibitors have been awarded to Ernestine Tinsley, Frederick Shelton, Claud Herndon and Lillian Smith.

The prizes were donated by J. J. Haverly, president of the Atlanta Art Association and Walter Hill, vice president; R. L. Foreman Sr.; and a joint prize by S. C. Dobbs Sr. and J. C. Dobbs Jr.

The pictures were selected by Miss Ruth Albrook, president of the organization; Wendell Jackson and Lillian Smith.

The exhibit was opened with a private showing and tea at the museum on Saturday afternoon for members of the Atlanta Art League.

Artists exhibiting include Christine Lacy, Ruth Albrook, Lamar Baker, Wendell Jackson, Lillian Smith, Helen Kaplan, Claud Herndon, Ernestine Tinsley, Ida Blank, Lillian Smith, Frederick Shelton, Marie Lee, Dorothy Jones, Isabel Herndon, Jean Rathbone and Douglas Wells.

The exhibit is hung in the main gallery and will remain up until April 1.

Bonds Hit New High in Week;
Stocks, Commodities Steady

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER.
NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP)—The bond market crept up to new highs since 1931 this week, while other financial markets held almost stationary.

Bonds were aided by further lifting of the Federal Reserve, by Federal Reserve member banks, and by sound money expressions from Washington, including the president's stand against "hard-money" legislation.

Silver metal and stocks of non-ferrous metal producing companies were momentarily reactionary, giving a somewhat heavy cast to the stock market and the more sensitive staples on Thursday.

Stocks and principal commodities, in the main, however, ended the week with negligible changes from last Saturday.

The labor controversy in the automobile industry, with a possibility of a tieup at the season of heavy production, inspired a cautious attitude toward the security markets generally in the final sessions of the week, and even bonds slipped back a trifle from the week's best levels.

Market analysts, however, pointed out that this is frequently a season of caution in the securities markets, for the spring business upturn usually comes in the late March or April.

With the various abnormal forces working at this time, analysts of business trends now find the outlook a bit perplexing, although the lifting of investment funds is widely described as potentially favorable.

Bonds were more active, with a turnover in the stock exchange of $97,000,000 par value, against $75,625,000 in the previous week. The price index of 60 corporate issues, ending the week at 85.5, showed a net gain of a point, the best in five weeks. The index closed .3 of a point under the week's best level, registered on Thursday.

A further gain in excess reserves of reserve system member banks pushed the total to a new high above $1,400,000,000. Short-term money rates remained unchanged. Plans to set up a system to intermediate credit banks to make capital loans to industry, to extend the loaning power of the RFC, attracted considerable attention, as investment funds remained timid, and financing of capital expenditures through the securities markets continued at a standstill.

The stock market was quiet, but experienced moments of firmness, the price index of 90 issues registering a new high for 1934 early in the week. Thereafter, however, there was some drift downward, and closing at 84.9, the index showed a net loss for the week of .6 of one point.

Bar silver at New York ended the week 1-2 cent an ounce lower. Wheat futures at Chicago, however, were virtually unchanged from last Saturday, and cotton at New York off only 15 to 40 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges retained their comparative stability. Sterling was a little firmer, and some of the far eastern sagged with silver.

FEDERAL RELIEF WILL END APRIL 1

Former Government Workers To Receive Benefits Under New 3-Point Policy.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(UP)—Easter Sunday—two weeks from tomorrow—will mark cessation of an emergency program through which the Roosevelt administration provided necessities of life to millions of Americans for almost a year at a cost of more than $1,000,000,000.

After April 1 relief workers no longer will be federal employees. They will receive benefits through local sources under President Roosevelt's new three-point, long-term, relief policy, which congress has underwritten with a $500,000,000 appropriation.

Civil works, through which the government fed, clothed and housed 4,000,000 Americans during the winter months, no longer will exist. The CWA ranks will have been reduced by approximately 2,500,000 persons. Federal pay checks will be dispensed with. Approximately 1,500,000 persons who will survive the CWA demobilization will receive a minimum wage of 30 cents an hour for work from officials of the particular community, or county, in which they live.

To Aid in Resources. The federal government will continue to contribute resources to the unemployed and destitute, but its activities will be supervisory rather than direct.

The president's three-fold relief program was conceived on a long-time planning rather than emergency basis. Under its terms, states, cities and counties will administer aid on the basis of need under the following interpretation by federal emergency relief administrator, Harry L. Hopkins: "A person in need is one who has no resources, with no member of his family employed, and who, unless he gets a job, can not pay his rent or buy food."

The president's new policy will benefit these groups:

1. Needy city dwellers.

2. Farmers.

3. Families "stranded" in single-industry communities.

Sufficient Supplement. The rural relief program, which stipulates that farmers shall be given sufficient work to supplement their farm income, has been started in drought-stricken areas of North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas and Minnesota. A recent conference in Atlanta is expected to permit its inauguration, on a large scale, in southern states. Federal officials now are negotiating with relief administrators of western states.

It was learned that the government planned a public works program for rural areas, embodying work on roads, highways, national parks and other projects allied with rural needs.

Transplantation of thousands of "stranded" families, particularly those in mining regions, is contemplated by the government, in co-operation with local officials. This phase of the program is still in the formative stage.

In cities, there will be flexible work projects, administered by municipal authorities, designed to offer work not to exceed six months.

Relief families of the federal department of the CWA of assistance. Since its formation in November, it has handled more than 200 cases, a majority of which pertain to the adjustment of mortgages on homes, small loans on personal property and the adjustment of tax matters. According to Irving S. Nathan, attorney in charge, adjustment of installment contracts held by families on relief also represents a

Pacific Mutual Holds Regional Session Of Its Agents and Managers in Atlanta

Executives attending the Pacific Mutual regional meeting here: Seated, left to right, Frank C. Woodbury, vice president; Henry S. Dudley, vice president and treasurer; Lawrence W. Morgan, vice president. Standing, left to right, Emory L. Jenks, general agent, Atlanta; R. N. Rafferty, eastern agency supervisor; G. W. Patterson, general agent, Charlotte, N. C.; J. W. Dickinson, state agent, Anderson, S. C. Staff photo by George Cornett.

The Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company held one of its annual regional agency meetings at the Atlanta Athletic Club last Friday. The general agents and managers from North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, together with approximately 100 Pacific Mutual underwriters from those states, attended the meeting.

The home office, which is located in Los Angeles, Cal., was represented by Howard H. Dudley, vice president and treasurer; Frank R. Woodbury, junior vice president; L. W. Morgan, junior vice president; and R. N. Rafferty, eastern supervisor of agencies. The Carolina and Georgia agencies are directed by G. W. Patterson, general agent, Charlotte, N. C.; J. W. Dickinson, state agent, Anderson, S. C.

At the luncheon following the morning session, the home office officials were welcomed to Atlanta and the southeast by Walter C. Hill, president of Retail Credit Company.

Following is a list of the vice chairmen representing all sections of the state, who were elected by the members of the commission at the organizational meeting to assist Chairman Moore and the other officers to give Georgia the finest possible representation at Chicago:

Colonel T. L. Huston, Brunswick; George

Dean N. R. High Moor, of Trinity cathedral, Pittsburgh, Pa., long identified with Atlanta as rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, is to deliver a lecture at the Piedmont Driving Club at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, April 3, under the auspices of St. Catherine's Guild of St. Luke's.

While in Atlanta Dean Moor will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Glenn at their residence, 30 Westminister drive.

Dean Moor's visit to Atlanta will be in the nature of an ovation. Probably no minister ever occupied a pulpit in Atlanta who was held in more affectionate regard by his congregation than Mr. Moor, and this expression of esteem was by no means confined to his own congregation, for he was universally popular.

No outstanding were his services in Atlanta that he was called to Pittsburgh as dean of Trinity cathedral the most prominent Episcopal church of that city.

A reception will immediately follow the dean's lecture at the Piedmont Driving Club. The ladies of St. Catherine's Guild are now actively engaged in the effort to make this not only the outstanding lecture event of the year but notable as a social event.

The public is invited to the lecture and to the reception, the admission fee being $1, tickets obtainable by addressing St. Catherine's Guild or by applying in person at St. Luke's.

Revival Services Open in Decatur Churches
United revival services, sponsored by the First Presbyterian and the First Methodist churches of Decatur, will begin tonight at the latter church, with Dr. D. P. McGeech delivering the first sermon. Thereafter until the special services end on Easter Sunday he will speak at 3 o'clock each afternoon. Dr. H. B. Trimble, of Emory University, will speak at the 11 o'clock service Sunday.

Dr. Walt Holcomb, pastor of the First Methodist, who is filling an out-of-town engagement Sunday, will occupy the pulpit at the services each night, beginning Monday. Special vocal and musical programs are planned during the revival.

PLANS FOR EXHIBIT REVEALED BY MOORE

World's Fair Display Will Seek To Attract New Industries to Georgia.

Georgia's exhibition at the Century of Progress in Chicago this year will embrace the idea of attracting more industries to the state, more buyers of farm lands, more tourists, more outside capital, and to show the quality and diversity of state products, it was said Saturday by Wiley L. Moore, chairman of the governor's recently appointed fair commission.

"Our exhibit last year was ranked at least third best of all the states and this year we expect to make it far greater—from the standpoint of interest as well as value to our people," Mr. Moore declared. "We plan to feature a big watermelon cutting and peach festival if the funds permit."

In accordance with the desire of Governor Talmadge, the 1934 exhibit will be financed as far as possible from contributions of citizens all over the state. Each county has been given a quota, and county chairmen have been appointed in preparation of a drive for funds.

Scott W. Allen, chairman of the 1933 commission, in recognition of his service in that capacity, has been appointed treasurer of the new body; Russell R. Whitman, secretary and general director in 1933, has been elected to the same position; Virgil Shepard has been reappointed director of exhibits, and will be assisted by state committees on agriculture, industry, education, publicity, recreation and other activities; Mrs. Eva Drew, the governor's secretary, has been named assistant secretary. State headquarters have been established in the Palmer building here.

Famous Old Cabaret Burns in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—(AP)—Fire early today destroyed the place, which another generation in sideburns and leg-o-mutton sleeves knew and popularized as New Orleans' first cabaret.

Bizarre parent of the modern-day night club, it was the town's most celebrated "hot spot" in the nineties but its negro band was silenced, its lights darkened, its tables and chairs stacked when prohibition turned its famous imported wine lists into mere souvenirs. Its blind proprietor, the late Frank Toro, who knew all local celebrities by voice, scorned to compete in a speakeasy era in which guests were admitted after inspection through a peep hole.

PASSENGER GAIN SHOWN BY AMERICAN AIRWAYS

American Airways' planes during February carried 6,216 fare-paying passengers, representing an increase of more than 11 per cent over the same period last year, it was announced Saturday by Richard B. Johnson, city traffic manager of the company.

With a daily average of 33,950 miles, the company's planes, he said, served 67 major cities in 20 states and the province of Quebec. Express tonnage carried last month showed a gain of 174.63 per cent over the same month in 1933, and marked the fourth consecutive month that the increase has been more than 100 per cent over the comparable month of the preceding year.

Express tonnage carried last month showed a gain of 174.63 per cent over the same month in 1933, and marked the fourth consecutive month that the increase has been more than 100 per cent over the comparable month of the preceding year.

SIX MURDER TRIALS ON DOCKET OF COURT

G. E. Cann Will Face Jury in Frazier Slaying Tuesday.

Six murder cases, including the case of G. E. Cann, charged with the fatal shooting of Arthur R. Frazier, are on the calendar for trial in Fulton superior court during the present week. Cann, who is charged with killing Frazier in a domestic fracas in a Central avenue rooming house, is scheduled for trial before Judge E. E. Pomeroy on Tuesday. All other murder trials for the week involve negroes.

Morris Pack and Martin Love, accused of swindling Mike and Charles Deraey out of $9,000 in a Ponce de Leon avenue apartment several weeks ago, are slated for trial before Judge Pomeroy on Thursday. The Deraey brothers, Greek merchants, reported their money was taken after they had been drugged in weird rites conducted by a "professor," who is still a fugitive, and Pack and Love.

Walter J. Cutcliffe will appear Tuesday in city criminal court to answer to a charge of lottery operation. Police are said to have found a trunkful of lottery tickets in Cutcliffe's possession.

GIRL, 27, CONVICTED IN DEATH OF DOCTOR

READING, Pa., March 17.—(AP)—Miss Frances Sepe, 27-year-old former stenographer, today was convicted of murder in the first degree with life imprisonment as the penalty for the killing of Dr. Paul R. Hess.

With a daily average of 33,950 miles, the company's planes, he said, served 67 major cities in 20 states and the province of Quebec. Express tonnage carried last month showed a gain of 174.63 per cent over the same month in 1933, and marked the fourth consecutive month that the increase has been more than 100 per cent over the comparable month of the preceding year.

Savannah Runners

Beat G. M. A. Cadets

Savannah High's cross-country team set a new record in competing G. M. A., 26 to 32, Saturday afternoon at College Park. Two of the Bluejackets finished the course in time of three G. M. A. stars.

Rivers, Savannah, was the first to break the finishing tape and his time was 13 minutes and 8 seconds, a new record. D. L. Brader, Savannah, came in second, with Crews and Brader, G. M. A., following in order.

Others finishing in order were: D. L. Brader, C. Johnson, G. M. A., Saffold, Savannah; Pierce, Savannah; Davis, Savannah; Norton, Savannah; Boyd, Savannah, and See, G. M. A.

There was one of the most spectacular cross-country races ever run at G. A. and the course measured 2 1/2 miles.

Wolfe, Dublinsky To Meet in Memphis

Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 17. —(AP) —"Kid" Wolfe, of Memphis, and Jerry Dublinsky, of Chicago, welterweights, will fight here May 15 in a match sponsored by the Memphis City Carnival Association.

Bob Knowden, carnival committee, said tonight Jack Dempsey had agreed to referee if other engagements did not interfere.

The fight will be the feature sports attraction of the annual cotton carnival.

Atlanta Plant Entered in Safety Drive

DETROIT, Mich., March 17.—With the declaration that "safeguarding our employees from accidents is, in my opinion, the greatest and most important task before us at all times," William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors Corporation, has sponsored an international safety contest among 60 factories of General Motors. The plants are located in 23 cities in the United States and four cities in Canada.

The contest includes the General Motors plants in Atlanta which the Chevrolet Motor Company and Fisher body division.

Two trophies will be given early in 1935 by Mr. Knudsen: one for the plant having the lowest number of hours of work lost because of accidents per 1,000 hours worked during 1934 and the other for the plant showing the greatest relative improvement in accident prevention during 1934.

"It is my sincere hope that this safety contest will contribute, in some small measure, in making 1934 a safer year for General Motors people," said Knudsen in a communication to the local plants.

"I appreciate that a great many new employees have been added to our pay rolls during the past few months and that many of these people, through their enthusiasm in securing employment, have overlooked the necessity and importance of being safety conscious. This adds to the task of making General Motors a safe place to work."

"Safety is not the responsibility of any individual or group of individuals but is the responsibility of every employee."

"I shall watch with interest the progress of the various units in this contest and I hope that it will be my pleasure to present the trophies to the two units winning them."

The cities with factories entered in the contest are: Anderson, Ind.; Atlanta, Ga.; Bay City, Mich.; Bloomfield, N. J.; Bristol, Conn.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Cleveland, Ohio; Dayton, Ohio; Detroit, Mich.; Flint, Mich.; Harrison, N. J.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Janesville, Wis.; Kansas City, Mo.; Lansing, Mich.; Lockport, N. Y.; Memphis, Tenn.; Meriden, Conn.; Norwood, Ohio; Oakland, Cal.; Oshawa, Canada; Pontiac, Mich.; Regina, Canada; Rochester, N. Y.; St. Catharines, Canada; St. Louis, Mo.; Saginaw, Mich.; Seattle, Wash.; Tarrytown, N. Y.; Toledo, Ohio; Walkerville, Canada; and Warren, Ohio.

World Revival Boosts Sales Of Willys Cars

TOLEDO, March 17.—Willys Overland will ship to many Willys 77 cars to practically every country of the world, it was announced here today by officials of the Willys Export Corporation.

Besides Australia, New Zealand and South America, the Willys cars will be shipped to such far-away places as India, Japan, Dutch East Indies, China, Afghanistan, the Philippine Islands, Finland, Mesopotamia and South Africa. Twenty per cent of the present production schedule will be shipped abroad, although it is already indicated that the quantity will not fill the demand.

R. J. Archer, vice president, states that there has been a decisive improvement in many foreign countries, and that sales are being increased because of exchange favorable to export of American products.

Mr. Archer reports that Australia in particular is enjoying a brisk recovery of business and that distributors in this country are asking for more shipments of the new Willys 77 than are readily obtainable. Export business has always averaged from 10 to 15 per cent of the factory's production. The resumption of foreign buying on a more aggressive scale is interpreted as further confirmation of the world recovery, and, along with an expansion of domestic sales, is expected to play an important part in increasing Willys Overland's volume.

In both overseas and domestic markets the company's distributors are featuring low cost, the economy and advanced streamlining of the new Willys 77.

Train Load Of Pontiacs Shipped Dealer

PONTIAC, Mich., March 17.—A 40-car train of new Pontiacs, 4000 left the factory this week en route to Noel V. Wood, Inc., Kansas City, Mo., distributor, according to A. W. L. Gilpin, general sales manager of the company.

"Kansas City and the zone of which it is a part," said Mr. Gilpin, "in line with the trend throughout the United States, is running well over 100 per cent ahead of last year in their demand for Pontiac cars."

This trainload of automobiles which is a major effort to catch up with the unfilled orders, represents the largest single shipment of Pontiac straight eights that ever has been made to Kansas City. A similar trainload left Pontiac for Florida a few days ago.

Dodge Deliveries Keep Up Their Steady Climb

Dealers of Dodge Brothers Corporation in the first nine weeks of 1934 made deliveries of 25,128 motor vehicles—19,312 of which were passenger cars and 5,816 commercial cars and trucks. The favorable state of this delivery volume is shown by the statement of General Sales Manager A. van DerZee that deliveries during the same nine weeks of 1933 amounted to 13,203 units, a comparison indicating an increase of 90.3 per cent or 11,925 deliveries so far for 1934.

Retail deliveries made by Dodge dealers during the week ending March 3 were 3,886 vehicles, or 3,020 passenger cars and 866 trucks; these figures show a gain of 138 per cent over deliveries made during the corresponding period of 1933.

The volume of passenger car shipments to dealers has been mounting at such rapid rate, according to Mr. van DerZee, that the factory's second production line has been placed into operation—this for the first time since 1920.

A significant interest is also shown in Dodge truck deliveries, which rose from 733 in the first nine weeks of 1933 to 5,816 in the like period of the present year—a gain of 666.2

Headlight Measurer Developed Here

Top, an illustration of the new "Light-O-Meter" developed and perfected here in the shops of the United Motors Service, Inc., on West Peachtree street. This machine, a very delicate affair, gives an absolute check on headlights as to correct focus and intensity. This machine is destined to revolutionize the operation of adjusting headlights to conform with the law. During Atlanta's traffic drive the company has offered free service to motorists on this machine. R. B. Wilson, service manager, is shown at the instrument board that registers lighting defects.

Author Tells Atlanta's Part In Making Automobile History

The story of the automobile and the rise of General Motors to its present commanding position in the industry are related by Arthur Pound, industrial historian, in "The Turning Wheel," published today by Doubleday, Doran & Co. Subtitled "The Story of General Motors Through Twenty-five Years," the book is as much a history of the automobile industry as of a single corporation. Atlanta, Ga., plays a part in the book as site of an assembly plant owned by the Chevrolet motor division of General Motors.

Mr. Pound has inclined toward philosophical industrial history since "The Told Baron" appeared in 1930. In "The Turning Wheel," he says Detroit became the capital of American motordom largely because Oldsmobile's success made it easier for pioneer automobile manufacturers to find backing in Detroit than elsewhere in the United States. He had written previous "The Telephone Idea," "The Iron Man in Industry" and other industrial and historical works.

The Turning Wheel carries the self-propelled vehicle from crude steam mechanisms, invented near the opening of the Christian era, down through the ages to the latest radial motor for airplanes. It summarizes the history of transportation as symbolized by the revolving wheel. Mr. Pound considers the wheel one of civilization's foundation stones—the tool of conquering races.

Mr. Pound tells how, after Durant formed General Motors in 1908 on the basis of the Buick Motor Company, he speedily acquired three more of the five-passenger car units now in the corporation. These were Oldsmobile, Cadillac and Oakland (now Pontiac). Retiring when his rapid expansion policy left a banker directorate controlling the corporation, Mr. Durant built up Chevrolet, now the largest General Motors passenger car unit. With the backing of the du Ponts, he then took Chevrolet profits and recaptured control of General Motors.

Growth of General Motors through the war years, its expansion, as regards commercial vehicles, into the Frigidare, into the refrigeration and air conditioning field, and its entrance into aviation on a large scale, are described in more restrained style. Mr. Pound feels that the corporation has reached maturity, and future expansion will be broadening units already owned. He describes employee benefits, and the wider stockholder base. Through consumer research, he says, the corporation seeks to learn what prospective buyers want, and give them the benefits of proving ground and laboratory tests. The key to General Motors' expansion, he points out, may be found in point. There is a rifle fashioned on a lathe to which the principle of the wheel has been adapted. A continent is being surrendered to those who come on wheels."

Vividly Mr. Pound pictures man's early attempts to ride. Flooting logs, coasters and horse-drawn sledges were the first vehicles. Ox carts appear, and golden-wheeled chariots drawn by prancing steeds; stately coaches wind along the roads until covered back by bicycles, automobiles and sky-sweeping airplanes.

The automobile has geared America to the gasoline engine. Mr. Pound indicates. The motorcar sets the pace for family, school, church and business. It has made the nation a neighborhood. The history focuses the spotlight on General Motors as an outstanding, progressive organization whose growth parallels the development of the industry from the days when Oldsmobile began quantity production.

The Duray Brothers, Henry Ford, Elwood Haynes, R. E. Olds and Albert Winton play their parts along with W. C. Durant, Henry N. Leland, Charles W. Nash and Walter P. Chrysler. Some of these men, from the start, were rivals of companies now included in the General Motors fold. Other were trained in General Motors units.

Mr. Durant, organizer of General Motors, is the book's most dramatic figure. Mr. Pound tells how, after Durant formed General Motors in 1908 on the basis of the Buick Motor Company, he speedily acquired three more of the five-passenger car units now in the corporation. These were Oldsmobile, Cadillac and Oakland (now Pontiac). Retiring when his rapid expansion policy left a banker directorate controlling the corporation, Mr. Durant built up Chevrolet, now the largest General Motors passenger car unit. With the backing of the du Ponts, he then took Chevrolet profits and recaptured control of General Motors.

Through consumer research, he says, the corporation seeks to learn what prospective buyers want, and give them the benefits of proving ground and laboratory tests. ## New Reo Cars Will Arrive In Few Days

Reo Sales, Incorporated, local distributor for Reo motor cars and speed wagons, announced that they have received word from Elijah G. Posson, general sales manager of the Reo Motor Car Company that production has started on the new 1934 Reo Flying Cloud. Shipments of this new model are expected to arrive in Atlanta in the very near future. Reports from Lansing indicate that there is tremendous interest in this new model. Orders on hand are the highest in years. Reo's new Flying Cloud incorporates advanced aerodynamic streamlining, long life construction and the Reo self-shifter. The price on the new Reo is understood to be one of the lowest ever to be placed on a Reo Flying Cloud.

Ford Names Ernest Beaudry Parts Distributor

Ernest G. Beaudry, popular Atlanta Ford dealer, has just been appointed Genuine Ford parts distributor for the Atlanta territory. Mr. Beaudry, ERNEST G. BEAUDRY.

Atlanta's oldest Ford dealer, has his organization all organized and functioning 100 per cent. His bins are all full and the company can give instant service to their clients. The appointment of the Ernest G. Beaudry Company, completes the Ford large expansion program for servicing garages and fleet owners. In addition to his company, the Central Motors here, are also serving this territory. This, however, in no way interferes with the other Ford dealers' parts activities. They will continue to serve as in the past.

The word "motors." Growth, he says, has always been in the direction of motor products, even Frigidare having a motor.

Mr. Pound, a native of Michigan, says in his foreword that he has watched General Motors since its organization in 1908. He seems to approve the corporation's present policies as heartily as he enjoyed the romance of its early growth.

"It is apparent that approval is voiced here more freely than the reverse," he continues, "that is because the record is clean and clear."

Other books by Mr. Pound are: "Johnson of the Mohawks" and "The Penns of Pennsylvania."

Ford Dealers Entertain Garagemen

Ernest G. Beaudry, president of the Ernest G. Beaudry Motor Company and the Central Motors, Inc., local Ford dealers, combined their forces and gave a big party to Atlanta garagemen and fleet owners this past week at the Atlanta Athletic Club. This meeting, one of the largest ever held here, announced the appointment of these two firms as official Ford parts distributors in the Atlanta territory. Above are those at the speakers' table. Seated, left to right, R. J. Burke, Byron C. Crawford, Ernest G. Beaudry, E. D. Bottom, branch manager Ford Motor Company; Ernest Armistead, general manager Central Motors, Inc.; and F. H. Boykin, salesman for Ford Motor Company. Standing, M. H. Jones, L. H. Deihl, F. A. Alter, Detroit; O. B. Leverette, J. K. Lester, Detroit; E. L. Hicks and J. N. Thomas, assistant salesmanager Ford Motor Company.

Independent Front Wheel Suspension on Chrysler Sixes

The new Chrysler six is equipped with independent front wheel suspension for very definite and important reasons. This design produces a new smoothness and comfort. It gives a feeling of security and relaxation in driving that does away with usual driving strain—vibration and road shock in the steering wheel are eliminated. Tire economy results from a more constant and uniform contact between the road and the tires, and most important of all is the safety due to this design.

The steering of the car cannot get out of control due to roughness of the road. This is due to the fact that "gallop" and shimmy are done away with, and because each front wheel revolves independently in its own true plane and is not affected by road shocks applied to the other wheel.

The car hugs the road closely. Radiator and fender vibration are greatly eliminated and in operation a greater stability of the car is immediately apparent. Because of the perfect spring control of this design the front spring action can be exactly co-ordinated with the action of the rear springs. This eliminates fore and aft pitching of the car as well as side sway due to roughness of the road and difference in spring action.

Independent front wheel suspension is not a new idea. It has been used successfully for several years by makers of the finer European cars. Chrysler engineers have refined and simplified this type of suspension, and in the new Chrysler six it gives greater strength and simplicity of construction together with unusual driving comfort.

Independent front wheel suspension means that the front wheels of the car are so attached to the chassis that they are entirely independent of each other in spring action.

In the conventional type of suspension the two front wheels are mounted at opposite ends of a rigid one-piece axle, the result being that any vertical movement due to road roughness in one wheel is transmitted to the other wheel.

In the Chrysler independent front wheel suspension, the rigid front axle is done away with entirely. The front wheels are attached to the frame of

Anthony Buick Names Smith Sales Manager

Announcement has just been made by Walter Y. Anthony, president of the Anthony Buick Company here, of the appointment of W. Chess Smith

W. CHESS SMITH JR.

Jr., as retail sales manager for his company.

Mr. Smith takes over his new duties with many years of automobile experience back of him in both the retail and wholesale divisions of the business. He is well known to General Motors dealers in the south, having worked with them for the past several years, as wholesale representative. In this latter capacity his records brought national recognition to both himself and his dealers. In his new connection he will direct the retail sales of the company and advise on many other details of the business.

Bigger and Roomier for 1934

An interesting contrast which shows the greatly increased value in the 1934 cars as compared with their predecessors is afforded by the comparison given in this illustration between a standard Terraplane of 1933 and its successor the standard Terraplane of 1934. The drawing of the 1934 Terraplane has been made to the exact scale of the 1934 car and super-imposed upon it with the center of the front wheel hub coinciding. It will be noted that the 1934 Terraplane, which, incidentally, is the largest car in the lowest price field, exceeds in every dimension. It has a longer hood and due to the different shape of the body, particularly in the rear, considerably more passenger room per inch of wheelbase has been secured. It will be noted that in the 1933 car, like most others of the same year, the curve is inward, whereas on the 1934 model there is an outward flare which adds over eight inches to the inside space in the rear compartment. The bigger, more powerful engine requires a higher, longer hood. The radiator is larger and in every way the dimensions exceed those of a year ago, and yet, because of the improvements in the engine, the larger size has been offset by the increased power and performance has actually been improved. A marked contrast is provided at the rear of the car due to the fact that in the 1934 model the spare tire is housed within the contour of the body.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

EDITED BY RALPH T. JONES

Weaver Brothers And Elviry Billed For Grand Opera at Erlanger

Due to the tremendous success that Amos 'n' Andy enjoyed during their engagement at the Georgia, the management has arranged another outstanding stage attraction for Georgia patrons. This time it is none other than the old favorites, the Weaver Brothers and Elviry. Better known to Georgians, perhaps, as Abner, Clever and Elviry.

The Weaver Brothers and Elviry have always been popular with Georgians and this time the management has reason to believe they will be even more so, since they are bringing along their road show company of 25 people. There will be a stage full of home folks to entertain for an entire hour with all of the antics of rural fun.

This is the first time in several years that the Weaver Brothers and Elviry have visited Atlanta, and it is expected that all the old fans and many new ones will be pleased to learn they are again on their way to the old stage in Atlanta, the Georgia.

The new set includes all forms of rural entertainment, with Clever still "the flower of the flock" and Abner and Elviry in the usual roles, with many added features. They will appear for the entire week beginning Sunday, March 25.

This unusual stage attraction, one of the most popular in the history of the stage, is being presented together with a complete screen program.

"Let's Fall in Love" Plays Empire Today

Two hearts in song time—a luring romantic melody beating at once in the heart of Edmund Lowe and Ann Southern, stars of the new Columbia musical romance, "Let's Fall in Love," is the attraction at the Empire theater, Georgia avenue at Crow street, Sunday only. The film features a number of popular hit numbers by Harold Arlen.

Monday and Tuesday bring to the Empire America's favorite romance, "Little Women," starring Katharine Hepburn. Others in the cast are Joan Bennett, Edna May Oliver, etc.

"Horse Play" comes on Wednesday with Slim Summerville and Andy Devine. Thursday brings "Mary Stevens M. D." starring Kay Francis and Lyle Tabor. Others in the story are Glenda Farrell and Una O'Connor.

Friday has the screen's two best comedians, W. C. Fields and Allison Skipworth in "Billie and Gus." The attraction for Saturday will please the kiddies when they see "King of the Wild" with Rex the wonder horse, also "Tarzan the Fearless."

CONDUCTOR GABRIELE SIMEONI.

Ticket sale for the two weeks season of grand opera to be presented at the Erlanger theater by the New York Opera Association will open Monday morning. Seats will be available both at the Erlanger theater box office and at the Cable Piano Company. The season will open on Monday evening, April 23, with the double bill of Cavalleria Rusticana and I Pagliacci for the opening performance.

This engagement will be the second attraction at the Erlanger under its re-opening under new auspices. For two days, Friday and Saturday, April 21 and 22, Katharine Cornell and her company will be the attraction. It is understood that she will present her great Broadway success, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

The New York Opera Association is an organization of distinguished young opera singers who come to Atlanta more enthused over their hopes of helping in the revival of grand opera interest here than in their salaries. If this was not true it would be impossible to present grand opera at the prices which will prevail. One dollar will be the highest price asked for any seat in the house for any performance.

Director Franck, head of the organization, is famous for his remarkable success in opera productions in the larger cities. He presented performances at the Polo Grounds, in New York, at which his audience numbered 35,000 and before similar crowds at the Chicago stadium. He is the only opera impresario ever to give performances at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, other than the Metropolitan Company itself.

Gabriele Simeoni, youthful conductor for the company, is famous both in Europe and America as one of the greatest of the younger groups of operatic baton-wielders. He is known as the "Young Toscanini." He conducted the productions in the Polo Grounds at New York, in Chicago and in London.

Monday evening, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci." Tuesday evening, "Carmen." Wednesday evening, "Rigoletto." Thursday evening, "La Traviata." Friday evening, "Aida." Saturday matinee, "Lucia di Lammermoor." Saturday evening, "La Forza del Destino."

Monday evening, "Il Trovatore." Tuesday evening, "Maria." Wednesday matinee, "Rigoletto." Thursday evening, "Samsen et Delilah." Friday evening, "Norma." Saturday matinee, "Carmen." Saturday evening, "La Gioconda."

Going to have another stage attraction at the Georgia. The Weaver Brothers and Elviry. Of course you remember them. The Arkansas Travelers? The rub act that made the next best of the kind look like rank amateurs? They say they have a company of 25 this year. Personally, all I want is the Weaver Brothers and Sister Elviry themselves. Can't get too much of that trio.

And a week next Friday midnight, at the 8 theater, there is to be a performance for whites of a sepiu revue entitled, "Frolics of 1934." With Butterbeans and Susie. And a fan dancer. Huh!

Famous Crater Lake, in Oregon, is dependent for its water entirely upon moisture from the skies, having no known outlets or inlets.

Five Indian towns of prehistoric times have been discovered in southern Peru by an archaeological expedition.

On Wednesday only, a film musical with the screen's funniest comedians, four Marx brothers, in "Duck Soup."

Thursday and Friday, a film musical with the screen's funniest comedians, four Marx brothers, in "Duck Soup."

Friday and Saturday, a film musical with the screen's funniest comedians, four Marx brothers, in "Duck Soup."

"The Masquerader" At Buckhead Today

"The Masquerader," one of the most successful pictures of 1933, opens the week's entertainment at the Buckhead theater, where it will play today and Monday. Ronald Colman plays the famous dual role while Elissa Landi is the wife who discovers that the man she has thought, for weeks, is her husband is really the husband's cousin and double, masquerading in another man's personality.

For Tuesday and Wednesday the Buckhead has secured the striking story of a doctor in a country town, "One Man's Journey," with the central role portrayed by Lionel Barrymore and with May Robson, beloved star of "Lady for a Day," giving a striking performance in a prominent support role.

Thursday only the Buckhead will present "Ladies Must Love," the whimsical story of a group of Broadway goldiggers and the men out of whom they make their livelihood. June Knight is the leader of the lady grafters and Neil Hamilton is the man who turns out to be her only true love.

For Friday and Saturday one of the most delightful and pleasing of the recent wave of musical romances, "Sitting Pretty," will be seen on the Buckhead screen. Jack Oakie is at his best and the girl who used to delight Atlanta in person, Ginger Rogers, gives the finest performance of her career.

Suitable short subjects, chosen with utmost care for their entertainment values, will be found on each program during the week.

"Henry the Eighth" Billed at Tenth St.

"The Private Life of Henry the Eighth," the feature attraction at the Tenth Street theater Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday stars Charles Laughton in the title role. Mr. Laughton's performance in this, his latest vehicle, is reputed to be his best to date, and has been highly acclaimed by press and public alike.

Thrills and romance are combined in "Smoky," coming Thursday. The story, by Will James, concerns a famous horse, his life and his vicious hatred for man. The starring roles are carried by Victor Jory, Irene Bentley and Will James, the author.

Alice in Wonderland, starring Charlotte Henry, Richard Arlen, and 20 other featured players, is Friday's feature attraction. The story is adapted from the famous fairy tale of the same name.

Saturday brings "The Son of Kong," successor to the popular "King Kong," Robert Armstrong and Helen Mack have the featured roles.

"Flying Down to Rio" At West End 3 Days

A new style of spectacular musical motion pictures have been launched in Hollywood. Bristling with stunts, glamor and lavishness, studded with brilliant all-star performers, set in a new, exotic locale, and enlivened by 200 dancing players, "Flying Down to Rio," which will be offered at the West End theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, hits a new high peak in onetime Hollywood's cast of stars.

The list of singers is headed by Carmela Ponselle, mezzo soprano, sister of Rosa Ponselle and herself a prominent member of the Metropolitan organization in past seasons. Other sopranos in the company include Emilia Vergeri, dramatic soprano; Florence Misen, lyric soprano; Anna Lodola, coloratura; and Maria Olla, soprano. Also among the stars of the organization are Grace Angel, contralto; Mario Duca, tenor; Ego Martinelli, tenor; Fortunato De Angeli, tenor; Costante Servino, tenor; Martin Rossi, baritone; Eugenio Proserpio, baritone; Ciro de Ritis, baritone, and Sigmund Sjovik, baritone.

The complete list of operas to be given here is as follows: Monday evening, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci." Tuesday evening, "Carmen." Wednesday evening, "Rigoletto." Thursday evening, "La Traviata." Friday evening, "Aida." Saturday matinee, "Lucia di Lammermoor." Saturday evening, "La Forza del Destino."

Monday evening, "Il Trovatore." Tuesday evening, "Maria." Wednesday matinee, "Rigoletto." Thursday evening, "Samsen et Delilah." Friday evening, "Norma." Saturday matinee, "Carmen." Saturday evening, "La Gioconda."

Going to have another stage attraction at the Georgia. The Weaver Brothers and Elviry. Of course you remember them. The Arkansas Travelers? The rub act that made the next best of the kind look like rank amateurs? They say they have a company of 25 this year. Personally, all I want is the Weaver Brothers and Sister Elviry themselves. Can't get too much of that trio.

And a week next Friday midnight, at the 8 theater, there is to be a performance for whites of a sepiu revue entitled, "Frolics of 1934." With Butterbeans and Susie. And a fan dancer. Huh!

Famous Crater Lake, in Oregon, is dependent for its water entirely upon moisture from the skies, having no known outlets or inlets.

Five Indian towns of prehistoric times have been discovered in southern Peru by an archaeological expedition.

Six 'Rhythm Aristocrats' on Capitol Stage

"The Six Aristocrats," pulchritudinous members of Amy Cox's "Rhythm Aristocrats" to be seen on the stage at the Capitol this week.

Many novel and historical settings. Jean Parker, who was seen in "Little Women," also has an important role in the Capitol screen offering.

Monday and Tuesday, "Midshipman Jack," with Bruce Cabot and Betty Furness is a thrilling story of the United States Naval Academy and the midshipmen who train to run the great battleships of the navy. Some of the action takes place on a large submarine chaser. The greatest comedian on the screen, Mickey Mouse, will also be on the screen Monday and Tuesday in "Meller Drama."

Thursday and Friday the glamorous Katharine Hepburn will be starred in "Morning Glory," a heart-touching drama of a small-town girl who tried to win fame as an actress. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. has the leading male role.

Saturday Jack Holt, Fay Wray and Walter Connolly will be in "Master of Men."

"The Bowery" Opens Week for DeKalb

"The Bowery," a comedy-drama of the naughty nineties, starring Wallace Beery, George Raft and Jackie Cooper, with Fay Wray and Pert Kelton, comes to the DeKalb Monday and Tuesday.

The Worst Woman in Paris is the feature of the DeKalb Wednesday. A romance of a had woman who won't be good. The players include Adolphe Menjou, Benita Hume, Harvey Stephens and Helen Chandler.

The feature of the DeKalb Thursday and Friday is "Mr. Skitch." The story concerns a family that lost all their money in a bank failure. The picture stars Will Rogers and Zasu Marshall, with Rochelle Hudson, Harry Green and Florence Desmond.

Victor McLaglen plays the role of a daring, rolicking soldier of fortune in "Bonnie and Clyde," the feature of the DeKalb Saturday.

girls, do acrobatic work. The will feature a "Siamese twins" dance which is original and of great skill. Another of her specialties is a dance in which they represent a hoop going across the stage.

For real singing, the audiences will be entertained by Sibel Hopkins, a blues singer, known as "The Southern Song Bird," who with the Means twins, forms a trio called the "Three Georgias." They do soft harmony and singing and dancing. In all of their engagements in the south, the trio has been well received, as they are very attractive girls and wear beautiful costumes. The entire Capitol stage show is composed of good comedy singing and dancing of the highest type.

On the screen, the Lady for a Day becomes "Queen of Wall Street." The lady here non other than May Robson who is co-starred with Lewis Stone in "You Can't Buy Everything." The picture is a Metro-Goldwyn production.

In this, her newest first-run picture, May Robson portrays the eccentric and miserable character of Hannah Bell, phenomenal financier of 30 and 40 years ago, whose life was devoted to avenging a man who had jilted her in her youth and to make her son, Donny, the richest man in America.

The production is laid in picturesque New York of more than a quarter of a century ago and introduces

Top Film Honors Won by Laughton, Hepburn in 1933

By HUBBARD KEAVY. HOLLYWOOD, March 17.—The court of film royalty opened its doors today to Katharine Hepburn and Charles Laughton.

By the acclamation of their fellow-workers they were chosen last night at a banquet of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences as the best and the actor whose work was the best upon the screen during 1933.

But it was a strange coronation, for neither the queen nor the king was present to wear the crown. Laughton was in England making a picture and Miss Hepburn was in New York.

Second place among the actresses went to May Robson for her part in "Lady for a Day," and third to Diana Wynyard, of "Cavalcade," the picture which was chosen as the best production.

Paul Muni of "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," was second to Laughton among the actors, while Leslie Howard placed third for his performance in "Berkeley Square."

Frank Lloyd was given the award for best direction for his work in "Cavalcade." Frank Capra was second, "Lady for a Day," and George Cukor, third, "Little Women."

Other awards include: Original: Robert Lord, "One Way Passage," first; Frances Marion, "Prize Fighter and the Lady," second; Charles MacArthur, "Rasputin and the Empress," third.

Adaptation: Sara Y. Mason and Victor Heerman, "Little Women," first; Robert Riskin, "Lady for a Day," second; Sonia Warlen and Paul Green, "State Fair," third.

Art direction: William Darling, "Cavalcade," first; Hans Dreier, "Farewell to Arms," second; Gedric Gibbons, "When Ladies Meet," third. Katharine Hepburn's work in "Morning Glory" won her the honor.

Charles Laughton won the British-made film, "The Private Life of Henry VIII."

Wilder Jennings, of Atlanta, Morehouse College student who will receive his bachelor of science degree in June, has been commissioned by the public works of art project of the CWA to execute a large mural which will be placed in the entrance lobby of Booker T. Washington High school, as the result of his selection by a committee headed by J. J. Haverty, president of the High Museum of Art and superintendent of the public works of art project for the southeast.

The mural, symbolizing the ideals of the curriculum of the modern high school, will feature nine figures, representing workers in the arts, sciences and allied industries. It is expected that the project will be completed by May 1.

HASTINGS DOG SHOW WILL OPEN SATURDAY

Hastings semi-annual dog show will be held at their store next Saturday from 9 to 5 p. m.

This exhibition will be sponsored and operated by the Atlanta Kennel Club in the interest of pure bred pedigree dogs. There will be more than 35 breeds represented and the show will be interesting not only to fanciers but to lovers of dogs generally.

American, Canadian, English and international champions will be shown, dogs that won blue and purple ribbons at the Westminster and century of progress dog shows last summer.

At 7:15 Thursday night, Dr. Joseph Yampolsky is president of the society. Dr. Charles H. Richardson, president of the Medical Association of Georgia, will make the address of welcome, and Dr. Marion C. Pruitt, president of the Fulton County Medical Society, will respond.

Among other speakers will be Dr. Barney Brooks, professor of surgery, Vanderbilt University; Dr. Edgar G. Ballenger and Dr. Louis G. Rouglin. Dr. Grullee will speak on "Breast Feeding and Infection," and Dr. Brooks will discuss "The Influence of Simultaneous Ligation of the Veins on the Incidence of Gangrene Following Arterial Obstruction."

Other officers of the fifth district society are Dr. George W. Fuller, vice president; Dr. H. H. Askew, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Edgar Boling, assistant secretary-treasurer; Dr. W. A. Selman, councilor, and Dr. Pruitt.

School of Social Work under the direction of Miss Anna M. Cooke, of the Spelman department of dramatics and oral English.

The special set for the play has been designed and built by Wilmer Jennings, of Morehouse. George G. Smith, of Savannah, will appear in the role of Shylock, and Vashli Norwood, of Philadelphia, a student of the Atlanta School of Social Work, will appear as Portia.

BACK TO THE FARM.

In the 10-year period from 1920 to 1930 there occurred a shift in population from farms to cities amounting to over 12,000,000 people. This tremendous migration was brought about by the industrial inflation following the World War, developing great increases in building, and the manufacture and sale of commodities. Immigration from foreign countries had been practically stopped and, as the demand for workers of all kinds increased, high wages and the bright lights of the city lured millions from the security of their farm homes.

Then came the depression and these millions of former farm residents, together with other millions of city-trained workers, were thrown out of employment, many to become objects of charity.

For several months past The Constitution has urged a substantial and concerted back-to-the-farm movement of former farm families, now stranded in cities and large towns, where they are subsisting on federal relief funds or charity rolls of places where they are located.

It now appears that it is materialized.

The CWA, one of the federal government's temporary relief expedients, will go out of existence April 1, to be replaced by another organization which will provide useful employment for those in actual need.

To provide agricultural relief a widespread, concerted movement will start to put former farm families back into homes on land where they may be self-supporting, given an opportunity to rehabilitate their financial condition and aid in restoring prosperity to the communities in which they are located.

It matters little whether The Constitution's crusade in forwarding this movement had anything to do with influencing the president to decide on using $250,000,000 of the $900,000,000 recently appropriated by congress for farm relief, in "placing thousands of persons, who have made their living from agriculture, into a relationship with soil that will provide them a security that they do not now possess."

The great, outstanding fact is that it is to be done, and the work is to begin immediately, under direction of Harry L. Hopkins. Last week this official held a two-day conference in Atlanta with representatives from 12 southern states, during which he outlined plans for rural rehabilitation, and declared that the administration was determined to give southern farmers a decent living and see that the farmer, who got "a rotten deal in 1928-29, gets an even break now."

Relief directors from the various states were told by Mr. Hopkins that a permanent plan to make the heads of some 600,000 farm families self-supporting as quickly as possible.

In outlining the plan of action, Mr. Hopkins said: "First the farmer must have a small tract of land—decent land; then he must have a house—a decent house in which to live. After that has been done the government can loan him a mule, a cow, a hog, chickens, working tools, seed, and, if necessary, provide him with groceries until he can become self-sustaining. We are going to quit giving relief per se in all rural America. We must make people now on relief rolls self-sustaining." And it was made plain that the program for putting farmers on a self-sustaining basis will be carried out with equal rights to all races.

This movement on the part of the federal government is nationwide, and an opportunity is to be given to any former farmer, irrespective of age or agricultural school training. There is an indication that the "red tape" that so frequently delays government projects will be conspicuously absent in this back-to-the-farm movement, and it may be further speeded by organized effort in various counties in which there are deserted farms.

It has been suggested that the Georgia administrative organization be composed of a state planning board to serve in an advisory capacity, with county advisory committees composed of the county relief administrator, county farm agent, home demonstration agent, ranking teacher of vocational agriculture, and a fifth person selected by this group to make recommendations to the state administrator.

Irrespective of what sort of organization may be set up to handle the movement of farm families back to the soil, it must be remembered that another crop season is at hand.

Given an opportunity to produce ample food and feed crops this summer, with a reasonable acreage in cotton or some other cash crop, thousands of families will require no more than the initial help outlined by Administrator Hopkins as available from government funds; but if they cannot be placed in farm homes until late in the season, next winter will find them again seeking some form of relief, as they have been for the past few years.

Those who are interested in re-populating deserted farms surrounding the towns and cities in which they reside should observe that the most desirable of former farm families, from the standpoint of intelligence, thrift, industry and ambition, will be the first to take advantage of the opportunity that will come to them through the federal government. If they desire to see the deserted farms of their communities repopulated with this class, they should at once organize a local movement to co-operate with government officials, and see that farms which now have no occupants are tenanted under some satisfactory terms before it is too late to plant crops for this season's harvest.

While no definite announcement has been made by Administrator Hopkins of the terms under which former farmers are to be located on vacant farm lands, it is to be hoped that the old system which built up a class of farmers known as itinerant tenants and gypsy croppers will be replaced by one that will result in thousands becoming long-term tenants and owners of small farms.

The long-term tenant or the small farm owner will take a personal interest in his farm and home; he will strive for success and attain it, thus becoming an asset to the community in which he is located. Whereas, the short-term tenant and gypsy cropper, having no ambition, are liabilities. Quick action should be the key-note of this movement.

Twelve million former farm residents must be returned to homes on land before we can hope for prosperity to return to the nation. While government officials are organizing for their part in this great work local parties should be organized and ready to do their part so that the back-to-the-farm movement may start without delay.

YOUTH AND WORK.

Golf professionals, whose names are synonymous with leadership in their profession, gave out an interview while in Atlanta for the recent Atlanta Metropolitan golf tournament which young men in all professions might consider.

The professionals pointed out that since 1921 when Gene Sarazen won an open championship, only one professional golfer had "broken through." By that they meant that only one of the field, in more than 10 years of effort, had been able to achieve international and national fame and title. Denny Shute, the Pennsylvania professional, won the British open last year with four amazing rounds of 73 each at the St. Andrews course in Scotland. It was the most consistent scoring in golf history.

Explaining this lack of golf stars, the professionals said: "The young pros are not willing to work. Too many of them think, when they have won a small tournament or so, or made some unusually low scores, that they have reached the top or do not need to continue working."

"This is their greatest mistake. The game is never conquered. One must devote hours and hours of each day to work. There will come a time when the young player is sick of the game and his profession. He will want to throw away his clubs and quit."

"It is the fellow who is able to go on from there who will 'break through.' Too few of them are willing to make the sacrifice; too few realize the necessity for application and work."

And this advice might apply to any profession in the world—golf or otherwise.

DIRIGIBLES GIVEN CLEAN BILL.

The report of the joint congressional investigation committee on the Akron disaster in effect gives the dirigible a clean bill of health as a valuable adjunct of the defense forces of the nation—when its operations are skillfully directed and carefully safeguarded.

In view of the success with which other nations, Germany especially, have engaged in the operation of lighter-than-air craft, the congressional committee could not have been expected to take a different position than that assumed in its reports, despite the tragic accidents which resulted in the destruction of the Shenandoah and Akron, with large loss of life in both instances.

In substance, the report puts the blame for the destruction of the Akron on the lack of complete weather reports that would have assured the great airship remaining in her hangar on the night that she sailed out to her doom. The committee strongly urges the issuance in future of four weather maps daily, as in Europe, instead of two, as in the United States now.

The committee fully agrees with naval authorities that the construction and operation of dirigibles should be continued, but urges that the navy give more attention to the development of men to command and staff the huge airships. In exempting the commanding officers from blame in connection with its loss, the report takes the position that the flight should have been canceled because of weather conditions, on the basis that "as battleships avoid shoals and other navigation dangers in the absence of a war emergency, so the airship should be handled in a manner reasonably to insure its presence on the scouting line in time of emergency and not to be lost by imprudent operations."

That the lighter-than-air type of flying machine can be safely and usefully operated has been amply demonstrated by the Germans in their development of the Zeppelin. They have flown these great airships to the four corners of the world and they are now engaged in regular transport duty between Germany and South America. They have met with no disasters since the development of the Zeppelin to its present state of efficiency.

If Germany can make such profitable use of airships, so can, and should, the United States. It is clear, however, that there must be a radical change in the policy of our naval authorities in the training of the air personnel, and of frequent transfers, which often send competent officers to land stations and put incompetent men in command in the air.

OUR POOREST-PAID WORKERS.

It would seem from statistics presented in the current issue of Medical Economics, a publication devoted to the study and reporting of sociomedical affairs, that the physicians of America are exempt, to a greater degree than the members of any other profession or trade, from the benefits of the saying that "the laborer is worthy of his hire."

According to Medical Economics, the average American doctor, out of the 128,000 in the country, works for charity one day out of every four, and is unable to collect for still another fourth of his labors.

Here is the concise outline of the doctor's work and the return he receives, as given by this medical journal:

Careful tabulation of the figures given on the return postcards revealed that the average doctor works 50 weeks a year, 62 hours per week. He devotes a little over 15 hours per week, or 24.58 per cent of his total working hours, to medical services for which he expects no compensation.

Add to this the additional quarter of his time for which he charges but cannot collect, and it is apparent that the doctor is in a class by himself—he works half his time for nothing. In non-depression years the American medical professional collects a total of $750,000,000 annually. This means, therefore, that at present the doctors of this country are contributing to the general public professional services worth approximately $175,000,000 a year, or more than $1,000,000 a day, half of it voluntary and half of it involuntary charity. Probably no class of Americans, whether professional men or those engaged in commercial pursuits, have suffered to a greater extent from poor collections during the period of the depression. It is a strange quirk of human nature that the doctor is the first thought of the average person when he is sick—and his bill his last consideration when he is well.

It is not surprising that medical associations all over the country have protested against continued attendance by doctors upon those who can pay and won't. A doctor, like everybody else, must live on the income from his work, and he is entitled to cut off the credit, as does the merchant, of those who refuse to pay their bills.

TOBACCO'S UNFAIR TAX LOAD.

Strong protest against the unfair tax load borne by tobacco, as compared to what other agricultural commodities are paying, is voiced by the Lexington (Ky.) Herald, published in one of the largest tobacco-growing and manufacturing states.

The Herald points out that all war-time tax increases have been reduced with the exception of those on tobacco, which bears a large increase imposed for the purpose of making up for the loss of governmental revenues during the prohibition era.

When the United States entered the war the federal tax on cigars was $1.25 per thousand. As a war measure it was increased to $2.05 per thousand, and again in 1919 to $3 per thousand to meet the deficit which would result from the loss of the huge liquor taxes formerly collected.

With the repeal of the eighteenth amendment many other taxes imposed because of the adoption of the amendment have been repealed.

Tobacco is now the most heavily taxed farm commodity—if not commodity of any kind—with the producer being the chief victim; the grower, according to the Lexington Herald, receiving approximately $100 an acre as payment for the interest on his land, depreciation on his tobacco barn and recompense for risk and toil, while the manufacturer receives from tobacco grown on an acre approximately $300 and the government collects in taxes on that tobacco approximately $800.

The Herald, in urging that congress materially reduce the present tobacco taxes, says:

A reduction of the tax on cigars even to the figure imposed during the war would inevitably increase the use of cigars so as to probably bring to the government as large a revenue as it now obtains for a higher tax and create far greater demand for tobacco. If, as seems just, the increase imposed because of prohibition of the war should be taken from the cigar tax and it be made $1.25 a thousand, as it was before the war, it is only reasonable to believe that the use of cigars would be more than double, with inevitable benefit to the growers of tobacco, to the manufacturers and to the government.

One of the fundamental principles of democratic government is that of equality of taxation. When the product of a farmer who is a tobacco producer is taxed from three to five times as much as the other kind of products his next-door neighbor raises, that principle is violated, at least in spirit.

No commodity should be taxed in greater degree than any other, but there can be no doubt that such unfair treatment is now being accorded to the growers and manufacturers of tobacco.

Georgia, like all other states in which the weed is grown, will be directly benefited by the reduction of the oppressive taxes now being borne by tobacco. It will increase consumption, and better prices and expanded acreage, to meet the increased demand, will follow. The suggested tax cuts of one of the most heavily taxed commodities, but they would constitute a long step towards the return of normal conditions in both tobacco producing and manufacturing sections.

The Pelham Journal says much checker players are loafers. May be they are just waiting for the next move.

The old-timer is the one who can remember when the only initials he had to remember were C. O. D. and B. V. D.

Vassar authorities now permit girls to smoke in dormitories. Maybe the smoke was getting into their eyes.

New York officials are turning to the lottery as a possible means of securing revenue. It appears they are willing to take a chance.

35 States Annually Ship 5,659 Carloads Of Fruits and Vegetables to Atlanta

BY STILES A. MARTIN.

Food Imports Emphasize Opportunity of Success for Back-to-Farm Movement in Georgia.

Despite the fact that more than 300,000 people in Georgia are without work, many of whom applied to the government for relief, 5,659 carloads of fruits and vegetables were shipped into Atlanta during 1933 from states other than Georgia. This information concerning the carload shipments is contained in the annual report compiled and released by the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States department of agriculture. J. Harold Hoover and J. C. Keller are the local representatives and their office is in the Commercial Exchange building, Atlanta.

A total of 8,989 car loads of fruits and vegetables were received in Atlanta during the year of which Georgia furnished 3,330 cars, leading all the other states in carload shipments, and Florida was second with 2,140 cars. California sent 717 cars, while Maine, in the opposite direction and clear across the continent, furnished 275 cars and New York state contributed 92 car loads.

Thirty-five states, other than Georgia, fed us during the year, and in 1933 we received 59 cars of rutabagas, turnips, Cuba sent us four cars of fruit, and other imports included 451 cars of bananas and 27 cars of pineapples.

Of particular interest in the report was the large increase in truck shipments over previous years, and the fact that the state is being flooded with trucks. Motor truck arrivals amounted to the equivalent of 5,025 car loads and was 927 more than the 1932 total received by truck. So there is nothing left to report but that the state is being flooded with trucks. The states sending truck loads which were reduced to car load equivalents were Alabama, 51 car loads; Florida, 2,842; Indiana, 129; Iowa, 3; Kentucky, 32; Maryland, 2; Michigan, 52; Minnesota, 5; Mississippi, 26; North Carolina, 20; Ohio, 4; South Carolina, 21; Tennessee, 149; Virginia, 38, and Cuba, 1.

Some idea of the vast quantity of food shipped into Atlanta last year by states other than Georgia is revealed in the following list which gives the number of car loads of fruits and vegetables furnished by each state.

Alabama, 106 car loads; Arizona, 34; Arkansas, 3; California, 717; Colorado, 107; Florida, 2,140; Georgia, 3,330; Idaho, 1; Illinois, 129; Iowa, 3; Kentucky, 32; Louisiana, 5; Maine, 275; Maryland, 2; Massachusetts, 1; Michigan, 52; Minnesota, 5; Mississippi, 26; Missouri, 1; Nebraska, 4; New Jersey, 42; New York, 92; North Carolina, 20; North Dakota, 9; Ohio, 4; Oklahoma, 1; Oregon, 1; Pennsylvania, 18; South Carolina, 21; Tennessee, 149; Texas, 138; Utah, 6; Virginia, 38; Washington, 141; West Virginia, 22; Wisconsin, 13; Wyoming, 3; Canada, 69; and Cuba, 4. Imports of bananas, 431; coconuts, 27.

The Food Shipped In. In order that we may be clearly shown what percentage of the fruits and vegetables were furnished by Georgia herewith is given a list of the principal products received, the number of car loads and the number of each product furnished by Georgia.

With the exception of a few crops like asparagus and watermelons, the bulk of which were furnished by Georgia, the majority of the items contained in the list were grown outside of Georgia. This is a severe indictment of Georgia farming conditions when it is realized that Georgia grows practically every item in the list, and that the state is capable of producing as fine fruit as is grown anywhere in the United States, as was proven by the fact that this state won first prize for its apples at the St. Louis Exposition several years ago.

Could Be Raised in Georgia. With the exception of a few crops like asparagus and watermelons, the bulk of which were furnished by Georgia, the majority of the items contained in the list were grown outside of Georgia. This is a severe indictment of Georgia farming conditions when it is realized that Georgia grows practically every item in the list, and that the state is capable of producing as fine fruit as is grown anywhere in the United States, as was proven by the fact that this state won first prize for its apples at the St. Louis Exposition several years ago.

Other glaring inconsistencies of Georgia importing its food appears in the items of snap beans, 270 car loads being imported; only 35 of the 95 cars of carrots were Georgia grown; and of the field peas and peas, 78 cars were consumed, the large supply furnished by other states. "Of the eating-peanuts—the kind where you get five for five cents—Georgia did not furnish a single car, and yet this state is one of the largest producers, if not the largest, of peanuts in the south. However, it appears that Georgia is not growing any Spanish type, and none of the larger kind, which Atlanta receives from Virginia and North Carolina.

buys outside the state, such as all meats, lard, cheese, butter and milk, flour, meal, corn, hay. It has been estimated that Georgia spends 20 million dollars outside the state each year alone for hay. Millions of dollars are being sent out of the state for poultry products, eggs and chickens, which might just as well be produced in Georgia.

The best remedy for this foreign importation of food into Georgia would be close co-operation of the farm collector and the agricultural department with the farmers of the state whereby the market of the state would be studied, marketing conditions, such as product, season and how packed, would be noted and the information passed on to the farmers.

Most food is selected by the housewife from its appearance. A good-looking Irish potato appeals to the eye without any reference to where it was grown, therefore it behooves Georgia farmers to study packing and grading requirements and order that their products may make a good showing when put on sale in the stores. So there is nothing left to report but that the state is being flooded with trucks. The states sending truck loads which were reduced to car load equivalents were Alabama, 51 car loads; Florida, 2,842; Indiana, 129; Iowa, 3; Kentucky, 32; Maryland, 2; Michigan, 52; Minnesota, 5; Mississippi, 26; North Carolina, 20; Ohio, 4; South Carolina, 21; Tennessee, 149; Virginia, 38, and Cuba, 1.

Some idea of the vast quantity of food shipped into Atlanta last year by states other than Georgia is revealed in the following list which gives the number of car loads of fruits and vegetables furnished by each state.

Alabama, 106 car loads; Arizona, 34; Arkansas, 3; California, 717; Colorado, 107; Florida, 2,140; Georgia, 3,330; Idaho, 1; Illinois, 129; Iowa, 3; Kentucky, 32; Louisiana, 5; Maine, 275; Maryland, 2; Massachusetts, 1; Michigan, 52; Minnesota, 5; Mississippi, 26; Missouri, 1; Nebraska, 4; New Jersey, 42; New York, 92; North Carolina, 20; North Dakota, 9; Ohio, 4; Oklahoma, 1; Oregon, 1; Pennsylvania, 18; South Carolina, 21; Tennessee, 149; Texas, 138; Utah, 6; Virginia, 38; Washington, 141; West Virginia, 22; Wisconsin, 13; Wyoming, 3; Canada, 69; and Cuba, 4. Imports of bananas, 431; coconuts, 27.

The Food Shipped In. In order that we may be clearly shown what percentage of the fruits and vegetables were furnished by Georgia herewith is given a list of the principal products received, the number of car loads and the number of each product furnished by Georgia.

With the exception of a few crops like asparagus and watermelons, the bulk of which were furnished by Georgia, the majority of the items contained in the list were grown outside of Georgia. This is a severe indictment of Georgia farming conditions when it is realized that Georgia grows practically every item in the list, and that the state is capable of producing as fine fruit as is grown anywhere in the United States, as was proven by the fact that this state won first prize for its apples at the St. Louis Exposition several years ago.

Other glaring inconsistencies of Georgia importing its food appears in the items of snap beans, 270 car loads being imported; only 35 of the 95 cars of carrots were Georgia grown; and of the field peas and peas, 78 cars were consumed, the large supply furnished by other states. "Of the eating-peanuts—the kind where you get five for five cents—Georgia did not furnish a single car, and yet this state is one of the largest producers, if not the largest, of peanuts in the south. However, it appears that Georgia is not growing any Spanish type, and none of the larger kind, which Atlanta receives from Virginia and North Carolina.

Editor Constitution: I have people on the soil, and satisfied, there must come two things that are to be permanent. First, good roads; second, the agricultural sections. Let a person accustomed to paved highways and real lights, and they are hard to lead back to any place minus these modern necessities and conveniences.

The government is wisely working on both these programs. Five times the present amount of miles of paved highways is needed before any very large number of people are going to hurry back to the farms, and mud and drudgery that would come in trying to live on the good roads.

Streams are rushing torrentially down to the seas that could if developed produce all the lights necessary for the agricultural sections. Electric lights are going to cause many a person to live in the rural sections that would not think for a minute of doing so under present lack of light.

This development of electricity will also give the rural sections thousands of more power. And that is going to raise money for the drudgery of the farmers. So every dime that is spent on making better highways and better lights is going to help solve the problem of rural drudgery.

Believes That Safest Plan To Avoid War Is Through Following the Golden Rule

Editor Constitution: In your editorial of March 9, "Ford Right—And Wrong," you take the position that increased armaments do not lead to greater danger of war, that it is the case of nations like the United States. Yet news dispatches in this same issue of The Constitution inform us that England is reacting to the Vinson bill by speeding up their armaments programs.

Of course, we know that we are good, peaceable, and would not be aggressive for anything in the world, and have no territorial ambitions or anything of the sort, but it appears that other nations do not have so exalted an opinion of us.

The Church and Today

My title suggests the question, should the church of today be different from the church of yesterday? If "today" is different from "yesterday," then it seems clear that "the church of today" is different from "the church of yesterday."

Of course, we will agree that whatever is essential to the Christian religion does not change with the changing calendar. But the church is not the Christian religion; it is only its expression, and it is the duty of the church to express the Christian religion in the language of its day.

Miss Carpenter Weds Mr. Edge At Quiet Ceremony at Church

Miss Cora Virginia Carpenter became the bride of James Thomas Edge, of New Orleans, La., formerly of Atlanta, at a quiet church ceremony yesterday afternoon attended only by a few close friends. The bride, who possesses decidedly blonde coloring, was an attractive figure in her three-piece suit of knitted boucle in mandarin rust shade. She wore a large yellow felt hat and other accessories in brown. A shoulder spray of gardenias completed her costume. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a trip, after which they will reside in New Orleans.

Mrs. Edge is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Williston Cox Carpenter, and a sister of Mrs. Daniel Woods White. She attended Washington Seminary and is a member of the Sigma Delta Club. The bride's father is a native of Knoxville, Tenn., and she is descended from prominent Georgia and Tennessee families.

The bride's father is the son of the late Chester L. and Elizabeth Talbot Cox Carpenter. He is a member of the firm of Trammell Scott & Co. and is well known in the sporting world. She is related to families who have been prominent in the northeast and south, including the Root, Packard, Talbot, King and Cox families. The bride's mother, the former Miss Ella Estelle Burney, is the daughter of the late Julius Augustus Burney and Sara Maria Ware Burney, of Dublin and Atlanta. Mrs. Carpenter is active in patriotic organizations through the state, being a member of the D. A. R., United Daughters of 1812, Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims, corresponding secretary of the Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century and of the American Colonists. Among her ancestors were Lieutenant Colonel James McCall, Thomas McCall and Major Hugh McCall.

Mr. Edge is the son of the late Jesse Cobb Edge and Elizabeth May Edge, of Douglas county, Georgia. His father was a well-known lawyer. The bridegroom is a graduate of Boys' High school. He attended Emory University, the University of Colorado and the Atlanta Law school. He is a certified public accountant and a member of the Georgia Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Sigma Delta Kappa national legal fraternity. He is connected in business with the Federal Land bank as an examiner of the farm credit administration for the United States government at Washington, D. C. Headquarters are in New Orleans, La.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts Are Entertained.

An interesting event of Sunday afternoon was the tea at which Miss Estelle Jones entertained at her home on Ninth street complementing Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Roberts, whose marriage was solemnized on March 2, Spring flowers were placed in graceful arrangement throughout the home. The dining room table was overlaid with an exquisite lace cloth and had as its center motif a handsome antique silver bowl filled with yellow snapdragons, talliesman roses and fern. Gracing the bowl on either side were unshaded yellow tapers placed in silver holders.

Assisting Miss Jones in receiving were Mrs. Carolyn Wheldon Jones and Mrs. Rosabelle Eford. Miss Florence Garrard, Miss Inez Dye, Mrs. Ernest Harrison and Miss Pauline Cheek poured tea and coffee. Others assisting in entertaining were Miss Carolyn Eford, Mrs. Joe Garrard, Mrs. J. C. Wise and Mrs. Bruce Chenoweth.

Lee-Roosevelt Auxiliary Hears Mrs. F. C. Beusse

Mrs. Florence C. Beusse, of Athens, state president, department of Georgia auxiliaries, United Spanish War Veterans, made her official visit to Lee-Roosevelt auxiliary No. 13 on Tuesday. Mrs. F. W. Snell, the president, presided.

In her address to the members present, Mrs. Beusse said, "In coming to you with my message I am stressing our seven-point program. Our legislative program is of the most vital importance at this time. Our national legislation chairman, Mrs. Florence H. Becker, of Washington, D. C., is looking to us to back her 100 per cent in her program for this year. Let us not fail her. We have also on our program, child welfare, scholarship, national defense, Americanization, hospitalization, essay and membership. The auxiliaries throughout the state are urged to put on an extensive membership campaign and bring into the organization the hundreds of eligible women not affiliated at the present time with the organization. Our goal is 1,500 members by the time our state convention convenes here in Atlanta, May 6, 7, 8."

Speaking of the annual essay contest, Mrs. Beusse said, "In order to perpetuate the memory of our Spanish War heroes and in order to also teach our younger generation the history of the war with Spain and the later conflict between our 'boys of '98' and the savage Moros and head hunters of the tropical Philippine islands, an essay contest is conducted each year in the schools. The subject this year is 'How the War With Spain Made Our Nation a World Power.' Much has been written on this subject, as the Spanish War was the only war which gave added territory to the United States and brought together the 'sons of the north and the sons of the south' in a common cause."

Mrs. Beusse also spoke on the quota each auxiliary is asked to raise for the state scholarship fund and stressed the wonderful opportunity this fund presents for giving a business education to a daughter or a son of a Spanish War veteran. Each auxiliary is asked to send in at once its quota of not less than $10. Hospitalization plays a big part in the work and the patients at United States hospital No. 62, in Augusta, and No. 48, in Atlanta, must be the special thought of the organization all during the year."

Following the meeting of Lee-Roosevelt auxiliary No. 13, a luncheon was given at Davidson-Paxon's tea room in honor of Mrs. Beusse. She was presented a bouquet of sweet peas and a piece of sterling silver.

Marriage Announced In Hapeville, Ga.

Miss Elizabeth Patterson Weds Dr. James H. Byram At Morning Ceremony at Glenn Memorial Church

Mrs. James Hill Byram, formerly Miss Elizabeth Patterson, lovely daughter of Mrs. Frederick Stanford Patterson, whose marriage to Dr. Byram was impressively solemnized on Saturday morning at Glenn Memorial church. Photo by Elliott's Peachtree studio.

Of cordial social interest throughout the south is the announcement made by Mrs. Frederick Stanford Patterson of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Ruth Patterson, to Dr. James Hill Byram, of Atlanta.

The marriage was solemnized at 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, March 17, in the Glenn Memorial Methodist church. Dr. Wallace Rogers performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and friends. During the ceremony an appropriate arrangement of nuptial music was played on the organ. The lovely bride wore an ensemble of hunter's green wool crepe. The coat was trimmed in bands of leopard fur. Her hat was a black, rough straw of a sailor type, and her accessories were black. She wore a shoulder bouquet of orchids.

Immediately after the ceremony Dr. Byram and his bride left for a wedding trip and they will reside in the Wilsonia apartments after April 1.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Frederick Stanford Patterson. She received her education in the Atlanta public schools, Girls' High school and later continued her studies at Oglethorpe University, where she was a member of the Chi Omega fraternity and received her B. A. degree in literature and journalism. Since then she has studied at the High Museum of Art and has been connected in retail advertising.

On her maternal side she is descended from the Evans, of Evansville, Va. Her grandmother was Miss Elizabeth Marquess, of West Virginia, and her grandfather, W. M. Watkins, of West Virginia, served with the Union soldiers in the War Between the States. The bride's mother was before her marriage Miss Carrie Edith Watkins, of Dallas.

On the bride's paternal side her grandfather was Tilmann Patterson, of Arkansas, Texas, and her grandmother, Miss Ravia Mulkey, sister of Abe Mulkey, well-known evangelist of Texas, and Dr. Madison Mulkey. The bride's father was the late Frederick Stanford Patterson, originally of Dallas, Texas, and later of New Orleans and Atlanta. The bride is the sister of Mrs. W. H. Blair and J. W. Patterson, of Atlanta.

The groom, Dr. James Hill Byram, is on his maternal side the grandson of Dr. and Mrs. John Hill Watkins. Dr. Watkins was a native Georgian and practiced medicine for 50 years in the country of his birth. He also served as a surgeon in the War Between the States.

Mrs. John Hill Watkins was before her marriage Miss Marietta Bedell, a direct descendant of Marquis d'La Fayette, she was born and reared in Auburn, Ala. The groom's mother was before her marriage Miss Lula Watkins, of Palmetto, Ga., who later became Mrs. William Byram, of Atlanta.

Dr. Byram is descended on his father's side from James Byram, of North Carolina, and Miss Sarah Dyer, of North Carolina. The groom's father, William Byram, is a native of Newnan, Ga. The groom received his early education in Newnan, Ga. He then went to the University of Georgia for his pre-medical training, where he became a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

He attended Emory University and became a member of the Phi Rho Sigma, the medical fraternity, and received his degree of medicine. He served his internship at Grady hospital in his pre-medical training, where he became a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Better Films Group To Meet Thursday

The Atlanta Better Films Committee meets Thursday, March 22, in Rich's tea room. The meeting of the executive board will be held at 10:30 o'clock and important matters will be taken up for consideration. A nominating committee will be appointed in view of the annual election to be held in May.

The luncheon meeting for the members and their friends will be held at 12 o'clock. The special feature of the program will be a round-table discussion of the notable pictures of the last year. This discussion will be led by Mrs. Alonzo Richardson. The committee has attained a prominent place in its special field, being considered one of the finest in the country, with much achieved in the field of better pictures.

The Atlanta Better Films Committee attended a preview of the new picture, "As the Earth Turns" last week. This picture is the first in a group designed to redeem the screen from some of the faults that have crept into picture production. This picture will be under discussion at the luncheon meeting.

The price for the luncheon is 40 cents per plate and reservations may be made with Mrs. John Coley Kinsey at Main 5572.

Miss Young Honored.

Assembling a group of the school set was the party given last evening by Mrs. Homer Young at her home on Parkway Drive in honor of her daughter, Miss Dorothy Young, in celebration of her fourteenth birthday. A color motif of green and white was reflected in the effective decorations. Games of cards and contests were featured.

She is at present serving as president of the Phi Kappa Athletic Association and vice president of the Math Club. She was recently honored by being voted one of the eight most representative students on the campus. She makes high honors and is finishing college in three years.

Miss Valera Connell Becomes Bride of Ivan A. Littlefield

Special interest is attached to the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Newton Wylie Connell of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Valera Mathis Connell, to Ivan Allen Littlefield, the quiet ceremony having been performed yesterday at the home of Dr. Louie D. Newton, who officiated.

The lovely bride wore a smart suit of beige loosely woven woolen with a brown hat and other accessories in brown, the costume was particularly becoming to Mrs. Littlefield, emphasizing her beautiful coloring. She wore a shoulder cluster of deep purple orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony, which was witnessed by only members of the immediate families and close friends, the couple left for a trip to Florida. On their return Mr. Littlefield and his bride will reside at 1215 Virginia avenue.

Mrs. Littlefield is the sister of Mrs. James Haydn Davis, of Wilson, N. C., and is a graduate of Girls' High school in Atlanta. Possessing brown eyes and light-brown hair, the bride has a most attractive personality, and a wide circle of friends. Mr. Littlefield is the son of W. J. Littlefield, of Little Rock, Ark. The bridegroom is connected in business with the Railway Express Agency in Atlanta.

Betty Harrison Jones Auxiliary To Meet On Tuesday

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Betty Harrison Jones Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War will meet Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of the junior vice commander, Mrs. Robert Williamson Jr., 706 Parkway drive, N. E.

The meeting will be devoted to the discussion of plans for increasing the membership as the auxiliary is working hard to secure its quota of new members during the national membership campaign which is now under way. The Woman's Auxiliary to the Disabled American Veterans of the World War is a national organization which is carrying out a constructive program. This program includes the maintenance of capable service officers to counsel the veterans; the educational loan fund, which lends scholarships to the children of veterans; welfare and relief work among the needy families of veterans; and hospital work.

The auxiliary and the Betty Harrison Jones Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War will meet jointly Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in Hall No. 2, Chamber of Commerce building, at a membership rally. The entertainment will be furnished by Miss Mildred Arnold and her dancing pupils. Refreshments will be served by the ladies of the auxiliary.

Mrs. Hettie B. Holyfield, commander of the local women's auxiliary, extends a cordial invitation to all wives, mothers, sisters and daughters of the disabled veterans to attend these meetings and acquaint themselves with the work which the auxiliary is doing.

Delphians To Hear Dr. W. W. Memminger

Beta chapter of the Delphian Society has completed arrangements for a lecture-tea to be given at the home of Mrs. W. S. Johns, 934 Lullwater road, N. E., at 3 o'clock on March 22.

To point the year's detailed study by Beta chapter of the development of drama, Dr. W. W. Memminger, whose excellence as a speaker is well known in the south, will talk on "Acting As a Fine Art," illustrating his points with sketches from Shakespeare's plays. Dr. Memminger will be presented by Mrs. C. L. Douglas, president of the chapter.

A short musical program will be directed by Miss Lilly Allen. Keen interest is being shown by Delphians and their invited guests in what promises to be one of the outstanding events of the year. The membership of Beta chapter is composed of Mesdames L. M. Bechnell, J. T. DeLiesse, E. R. Epperson, C. L. Douglas, Carter Harrison, W. C. Herndon, W. S. Johns, J. O. Wilson, J. O. ## West End Garden Club Meets Tuesday

The West End Garden Club meets on Tuesday, March 20, at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. T. A. Branon, 676 Morningside drive, N. E., and Mrs. Brand will act as co-hostess. Mrs. C. M. Tucker will give a complete report on the garden school which was held recently at the Biltmore hotel under the sponsorship of the Habersham Garden Club, and items of interest to flower lovers will be brought out in this report.

Mrs. T. A. Slaughter will give the calendar for the month and the president, Mrs. C. D. Sweat, will appoint the nominating committee at this meeting to recommend the officers for the coming year.

Mrs. Norton Calls Attention to Garden Club Awards During State Convention

Mrs. De Witt Norton, of Atlanta, chairman of publicity for the Garden Club of Georgia, calls to the attention of the various member clubs the different awards that are to be made during the meeting of the state clubs in Atlanta, on April 19 and 20.

Mrs. B. L. Cooney, president of the Peachtree Garden Club and honorary president of the state club, offers annually an award to encourage the study of our native wild flowers. This year the medal will go to the best collection of one species of wild flowers.

The award of the Peachtree Garden Club, also offered annually, is to be given for the outstanding individual achievement, this to have been accomplished within the year since the 1933 meeting of the Garden Club of Georgia. Applications for these two awards must be received by the Peachtree Garden Club of Atlanta, Ga., by April 2, to be considered.

Mrs. Harrison Hines, of Atlanta, is offering an award for the best scrapbook submitted. Mrs. Bolling Sasnett, chairman of programs and slides, offers a prize for the most constructive year's program, either in the form of a yearbook or otherwise. Mrs. Sasnett requests member clubs to send these programs to her at 1708 Peachtree road, not later than April 5.

There is also to be an award for the best garden poem submitted and the name of this judge or group of judges is to be announced later.

Burnett-Davis Wedding Set For April 7

The First Presbyterian church will furnish the setting for the ceremony at which Miss Susie Ella Burnett will become the bride of Frank Tradewell Davis, of Atlanta, formerly of Columbia, S. C., on Saturday evening, April 7, at 8:30 o'clock. Dr. J. Sprole Lyons will officiate in the presence of a representative gathering of friends and relatives of the couple.

Miss Martha Burnett, younger sister of the bride-elect, will serve as maid of honor and Mrs. Arthur Griffith, of Athens, Ga., will be matron of honor. The bridesmaids will include Misses Sally Spalding, Mimi O'Brien, Scott Meador, Helen Lawrence, of Marietta, and Mrs. Freeman Strickland. Gordon Burnett will give his daughter in marriage.

Mr. Davis will have his brother, Roscoe Rogers, of Columbia, S. C., as his best man, and acting as groomsmen will be Douglas Robertson, Arch Avar, A. S. Black, all of Atlanta; T. B. Thackston, of Spartanburg, S. C.; Carlder Seibles and Jack Davis, of Columbia, S. C. The ushers will include Temp Davis, Lawrence McCullough, Herman Jones, Robert Strickland, Clyde Williams and James Alexander.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Burnett will entertain at a reception at their home on Peachtree road, the guests to include a small group of relatives and friends. On their return following their wedding trip Mr. Davis and his bride will reside in Atlanta, where he is connected in business with the First National bank.

Preceding their marriage Miss Burnett and Mr. Davis will be honored at a round of social affairs. Miss Helen Lawrence and Mrs. Lee Sessions will entertain at luncheon Saturday, March 24, in Marietta, complimenting Miss Burnett. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McCullough will be hosts at tea Sunday afternoon, March 25, at their home on Peachtree road, in honor of the couple. Miss Nancy Keeler will entertain Tuesday, March 27, honoring this bride-elect, who will be feted at luncheon by Miss Rebecca Young and Mrs. Lane Young, on March 28. Mrs. Freeman Strickland will be hostess at luncheon Thursday, March 29, and Miss Emily Walker will entertain at tea Friday, March 30, at her home on The Prado, in Ansley Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conklin will entertain at supper Saturday evening, March 31, honoring the couple. Miss Teresa Atkinson will be hostess at an evening bridge party Monday evening, April 2. Mrs. Arthur Griffith will entertain at tea Tuesday, April 3, at her home in Athens and on Wednesday, April 4, Miss Mimi O'Brien will give a supper. Miss Scott Meador will entertain at tea Thursday, April 5, and other parties will be announced later.

Mrs. Thompson Will Celebrate 90th Birthday

Back of the mention that Miss Mildred Thompson arrives in Atlanta this week is the fact that the dean of women at Vassar College will be among the important personages attending the birthday celebration of her mother, Mrs. R. G. Thompson, who will be 90 years old on March 23. The beloved pioneer resident of Atlanta will form the center of attraction at the informal "at home," to be held on that date at her home on Parkway drive, where Mrs. Thompson has lived for more than 20 years.

Silvery white hair crowns Mrs. Thompson's head and her pink and white complexion is the envy of all her contemporaries. In the Women's Pioneer Society, in which she is a charter member, and holds the record of never missing a meeting. After serving the organization for two years as its president, she was elected an honorary president, and Mrs. Thompson is exceedingly active in every phase of the work. She keeps abreast of the times, is thoroughly familiar with current events and her interest in world-wide affairs has never flagged.

Her marriage to the late R. G. Thompson, one of Atlanta's un-builders and promoters, was a Gretta Greene affair, and took place in Knoxville, Tenn., when she was barely 16 years old. During the battle between the states they lived in Nashville, moving to Atlanta in 1869, shortly after the cessation of hostilities. Mrs. Thompson is the oldest member in point of service, of St. Luke's Episcopal church, having joined the little band of communicants long before there was a church erected to house the congregation. Members held services in a building that stood on the site of the Grant building and Mrs. Thompson worshipped in the first edifice built at the corner of Walton and Spring streets. She enjoyed the distinction of attending St. Luke's church when it stood at the corner of Pryor and Houston streets and she belongs to the present church, on Peachtree street, which is topped by an electric cross which beckons parishioners to service. Her work in the woman's guild of St. Luke's has been constructive in nature over the period of the 65 years that Mrs. Thompson has made her home in Atlanta.

Ten children were born to Mrs. Thompson, whose living children are Mrs. G. R. Law, Mrs. J. P. Foster, Frank M. Thompson and

and Miss Aurelia Speer.

Miss Jane Gilman, of

Miss Liza Tway and Miss Rosalind Vereen, of Moultrie

A GAY whirl of informal parties, given in compliment to the trio of attractive visitors and their hostesses pictured above, has featured the social calendar for the past week. Miss Kramer and Miss Speer were roommates at Randolph-Macon Woman's College during their school days, the former having arrived on Wednesday to visit Miss Speer at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Spalding Speer, on Twenty-eighth street. Miss Gilman stopped to visit Miss Bivings at her home on Wesley road en route from Jacksonville, Fla., where she was the feted guest of friends. She was also central figure on two yachting parties in Florida waters, and attended numerous affairs planned in her honor.

Miss Tway and Miss Vereen have recently returned from Moultrie, where they were elaborately entertained at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Vereen. Miss Vereen is a frequent and admired visitor in Atlanta, where she divides her time between visits to Miss Tway and Miss Jean Lucas. Staff photos by Kenneth Rogers.

Georgia Garden Club Program Announced Today

Important dates to be marked on the spring calendar from a state-wide viewpoint, are April 19 and 20, when members of the Garden Club of Georgia will assemble in Atlanta for the sixth annual convention. Headquarters will be established at the Biltmore hotel, and the official hostess to the convention will be the Iris Garden Club, of which Mrs. Bolling H. Sasnett is president. The executive board members will attend the board dinner to be given on April 18 at the residence of Mrs. Arthur Howell on Pace's Ferry road.

The opening session is scheduled for Thursday morning, April 19, at 10 o'clock at the Biltmore, and Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of North Avenue Presbyterian church, will give the invocation. Welcome will be extended by Mrs. Bolling H. Sasnett, president of the hostess organization, and Miss Helen Marshall, of Rome, president of the Seven Hills Garden Club, will respond to the welcome. Thomas Berry, of Rome, president of the state organization, will make her address, which will be followed by the lecture of Alfred C. Hottes, of Des Moines, Iowa, whose subject will be "The Garden's Answer to Our Quest for Happiness." Mr. Hottes is a well-known personage in the United States, being the associate editor of Better Homes and Gardens.

Luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club will be followed by a visit to the Iris Garden Club's garden in Ansley Park, and a tour of the gardens belonging to Cator Woolford, Mesdames William Akers, James Floyd, Preston S. Arkwright, Carl Lewis and R. L. Cooney. Tea will be served in Mr. Woolford's garden in Druid Hills by members of the Druid Hills Garden Club. The annual dinner will be given Thursday evening at the Biltmore hotel at 8 o'clock, when slides of Atlanta gardens, made and shown by F. E. Lee, will be exhibited through the courtesy of the Mimosa Garden Club. Songs will be featured by the Big Bethel singers, through the courtesy of the Rose Garden Club.

Friday's program opens at 10 o'clock at the Biltmore, the invocation to be made by Dean Raimundo de Ovies, rector of St. Philip's cathedral. New business, the awarding of prizes and the election and installation of officers will occupy the attention of the delegates, and will be followed by a luncheon to be given at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country Club, at 1:30 o'clock. A tour will be made of gardens belonging to Mesdames Carson Sewall, Richard Johnston, Edward Inman, H. M. Atkinson, R. F. Maddox, W. H. Kiser, J. J. Goodrum, G. W. Rowbotham and John Grant. The convention will adjourn after tea is served in Mrs. John W. Grant's garden on Pace's Ferry road, the Peachtree Garden Club to be hostess to this social event.

Pearson-Turner Wedding Plans Are Announced

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17. — Miss Sallie Wadhams Pearson and Canon William S. Turner, of Atlanta, Ga., have chosen Saturday, April 7, as the date for their marriage, which will be a brilliant social event solemnized at a high noon ceremony, taking place at St. Thomas' Episcopal church. The ceremony will be performed by Bishop H. J. Mikell, of Atlanta, assisted by Rev. C. Ernest Smith, rector of the church, and will be witnessed by a representative assemblage of relatives and friends of the young couple. Miss Pearson is an only daughter of Colonel William F. Pearson, U. S. A., and Mrs. Pearson, and her fiancé is canon of St. Philip's Pro-Cathedral in Atlanta.

Mrs. Maxwell Tracy, of West Point, daughter of Brigadier General and Mrs. Charles E. Kilbourne, will be matron of honor and the maid of honor will be Miss Lucy Bannard Dodge, daughter of Mrs. L. W. Dodge, of Pittsfield, Mass., and a cousin of the bride-elect.

The bridesmaids will include Miss Jane Bannard Adams, daughter of Mrs. S. B. Adams, Northampton, another cousin of the bride-elect; Miss Ruth Robert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Roberts, of Montclair, and Miss Dorothy Gould Fowler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Fowler, of Washington, D. C.

Rev. John C. Turner, of Jacksonville, Fla., brother of Canon Turner, will serve as best man, and the groomsmen will include Lieutenant Colonel Harry T. Bull, of Washington, D. C.; Harold Rhoades Turner, of Greenville, S. C.; Lieutenant James D. Taylor, U. S. N., of Washington, D. C.; Rev. Frank M. Daley, of Baltimore, Md.; Samuel Y. Tupper Jr. and George B. French, of Atlanta. When President Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy, he and his family were members of St. Thomas' church, and as president of the United States he again is a member of the church which is conceded to be one of the most beautiful edifices in the national capital. The Rev. C. Ernest Smith has been rector of St. Thomas since 1902 and Colonel and Mrs. Pearson and Miss Pearson have worshipped at this church during their several years' residence in Washington.

Miss Smith Weds Mr. Kilgore At Calvary Methodist Church

The marriage of Miss Sarah Frances Smith to Gordon Winfred Kilgore, was solemnized at the Calvary Methodist church on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. W. M. Barnett, the pastor, performed the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The church was decorated effectively with palms banded about the altar and choir loft. Cathedral candelabra holding tall white tapers were used on either side of the altar and a large, white, illuminated cross was placed above the altar. Tall baskets of white Easter lilies added to the decorations. Mrs. William M. Barnett rendered a program of nuptial music, including "Liebestraum," by Liszt; "At Dawn," by Cadman, and "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs-Bond. For the entrance of the bride, party she used the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," and for the recessional, Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." During the ceremony "Ave Maria" by Bach

Gounod was played softly. Millard Lewis, tenor of the Emory Glee Club, sang "Because," by Guy D'Hardelot. The ushers were Jimmie Phillips, of Dothan, Ala.; D. E. Plaster, Derward Kilgore, brother of the bridegroom, and Emory Smith, brother of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Ruth Cocking and Miss Anne Porreca, both of Atlanta. They wore gowns of aquamarine crepe, softly draped at the neck, and finished with tiny covered buttons. They wore small turbans of the same material, finished with tiny veils of brown net and their slippers were brown satin. They carried bouquets of pink Briarcliff roses, tied with pink tulle. The maid of honor was Miss Mary Campbell, and her gown was of aquamarine crepe, fashioned exactly like those of the bridesmaids and her coat was of brown crepe and she carried a bouquet of pink Briarcliff roses. The bride entered the church with her father, Marvin Wesley Smith, and they met the bridegroom and his best man, Roy D. Hutson, at the altar. The bride's gown was of white crepe, a Mirande model fashioned on Princess lines, and the skirt flaring on the sides and back, and achieving a graceful floor length. The neckline was draped into a cowl effect in front, and fastened in the back with a row of small buttons covered in white crepe. The sleeves were puffed to the elbows, and fitted tightly at the wrists to form points over the hands. Her veil was of misty white tulle, fastened to her hair in cap-shape effect, with a coronet of orange blossoms. She wore white crepe slippers and carried a round bouquet of bride's roses showed rich satin ribbon and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Marvin Wesley Smith, mother of the bride, wore a becoming gown of navy crepe with a jabot of white lace. Her accessories were navy and she wore a shoulder bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. William L. Kilgore, of Carrollton, mother of the bridegroom, wore an ensemble of navy triple sheer with navy and white accessories and her corsage was of white lilies. Miss Sibyl Kilgore, of Carrollton, sister of the bridegroom, wore a lovely model of navy and white; Miss Christene Kilgore, sister of the bridegroom, wore beige with beige accessories, and Miss Velma Kilgore, another sister, wore a tan ensemble with accessories to match. The bride and bridegroom left on a wedding journey by motor, destination of which was not revealed. For traveling, the bride wore a stylish navy blue crepe dress, and a navy blue woolen coat. Her becoming hat was an off-the-face model of navy straw and she wore navy slippers and gloves.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Kilgore, Bernard Kilgore, Miss Sibyl Kilgore, Miss Christene Kilgore, Miss Velma Kilgore, Winton Kilgore, all of Carrollton; Jimmie Phillips, of Dothan, Ala.; Mrs. Marion Ward and Bill Dugan, of Montgomery, and Mrs. Frederick Wessels, of Savannah.

Informal Parties Mark Calendar At Ft. McPherson

FORT MCPHERSON, Ga., March 17.—Numbered among the interesting informal parties of the week was the dinner given on Friday evening by General George Van Horn Moseley and Mrs. Moseley at their quarters at the garrison. Covers were placed for Colonel Thomas C. Musgrave and Mrs. Musgrave, Colonel Charles Beatty Moore and Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Lewis Brown Jr., Major Walter Fullerton Macklin and Mrs. Macklin, Captain E. C. Bomar and Mrs. Bomar, Captain J. K. Baker and the hosts.

Major Ira Rader and Mrs. Rader, Captain Hubert Beyette and Mrs. Beyette, and Lieutenant Richard T. Trosky were the official hosts at the semi-monthly bridge party given on Friday evening at the club house at the garrison. Mrs. William Stone was awarded the first prize, Mrs. Willis Hedden the second and Captain Edwin Aldridge the third. The affair assembled 40 members of the military set.

The second of the bridge series of the month will be given on Friday evening, March 23, at the clubhouse. This will be the final entertainment sponsored by the club during the month in view of the fact that the last week in March is holy week.

Major Francis Fuller and Mrs. Fuller are spending the week-end in Rome visiting friends.

Mrs. Crump Garvin and her children, Dannie, Morris and Kiki, are visiting Mrs. Garvin's mother, Mrs. J. L. Tully, at her home in Euflula, Ala.

Lieutenant Christian Clark Jr. is spending the week-end at Fort Benning, where he will attend the West Point dinner to be given Saturday evening at the infantry school.

Mrs. John Oliver, of Mississippi, who has been spending the winter visiting her son and daughter, Captain Albert G. Wing and Mrs. Wing, at their home on Arlington avenue, left Friday evening for Sanford, Fla., where she will visit her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roland L. Dean.

Mrs. Lamar Makes Impression on Writer.

In an article written by Sarah D. Lowrie in the Philadelphia Ledger of recent date, she commented upon the pleasure she experienced in being seated at luncheon next to Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, of Macon. The luncheon was given at the Acon Club in Philadelphia by Mrs. Francis Reeves, and Miss Lowrie wrote: "I certainly enjoyed the scintillating conversation of Mrs. Walter Lamar, of Macon, who indeed seems honored by a public sort, national as well as state. Southern women of affairs are very facile, agreeable persons. I think power sits more gracefully on their shoulders than on ours. They have the art of social amenities and a blythe of personal interest that lets you down humbly from the heights of causes and of propaganda."

Lovely Bride of Recent Date

Mrs. Eugene Abraham Weinberg, who before her marriage at the Georgian hotel, in Albany, on February 18, was Miss Anne Siegel, attractive young daughter of Mrs. Sarah Siegel. Rabbi Abraham Shusterman officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Weinberg are residing in the Lakeview apartments, at 178 Piedmont avenue, N. E. Photo by Rich's Photo Reflex studio.

Club, to be given at St. Simons Island. For many years it has been the annual custom of Mesdames George M. Brown, E. P. Ansley, Vasser Woolley, Hugh McKee, George McCarty, Ruth Moore, of Euflula, Ala., to journey to this picturesque island, lying off the coast from Brunswick, and spend a month at the E. P. Ansley cottage.

Each member of the congenial party has some duty to perform toward making the house party a success. Mrs. Ansley plays the role of housekeeper and the expenses are shared equally by members of the club. The days pass all too rapidly for this congenial group of women, whose lifelong friendship grows mellowed with the passing years. Bridge, walking on the beach, bowling, reading, and motoring over the smooth and winding roads, constitute the diversified forms of amusement provided for members of the Grandmothers' Club.

John W. Rourke III Inherits Cradle.

A quaint, antique cradle of polished mahogany, which little John Wescott Rourke III, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wescott Rourke, at the family residence on Wycliff road, upon his arrival from St. Joseph's hospital with his lovely mother, of ancient workmanship, the cradle was fashioned a century ago in New England by a master craftsman. The carefully turned spools forming the sides of the cradle give evidence of the loving care of the designer, and the old pegs used to fasten the edges are hand-turned.

Presented to the baby's great-grandmother, Mrs. A. V. Gude Sr., the cradle has graced the nurseries of generations of babies in the Gude family, and little John Wescott III will represent the fourth generation to sleep within the confines of its roomy sides. His grandfather, the late A. V. Gude Jr., and his mother, the former Miss Helen Gude, used it during their babyhood days. Exquisite new furnishings of silk and wool, in tones of blue and white, adorn the quaint cradle, wherein the charming new occupant will slumber and dream of fairies.

The baby has inherited his mother's titian hair, and even at his early age, gives evidence of becoming a future beau. He is receiving great admiration at St. Joseph's hospital, where he is the only masculine member included in the eight babies occupying the nursery. A representative of distinguished ancestry, the baby is the grandson of Mrs. Helen O'Brien Gude and of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wescott, of Savannah, and a great-grandson of Mrs. A. V. Gude Sr., of Atlanta.

Miss Gould Leads Dances at Duke.

When the brilliant Pan-Hellenic spring dances were held at Duke University, a lovely Atlanta belle, Miss Marjorie Gould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Gould, was honored by her selection to lead the traditional Pan-Hellenic figure at the opening dance Friday evening. Miss Gould was escorted by Jake Sullivan, of Anderson, S. C., president of the Pan-Hellenic Council. Dressed in a white crepe and carrying a bouquet of roses tied with the Pan-Hellenic colors in streamers, Miss Gould was among the loveliest figures on the dance floor as she led the march with grace and poise.

Dressed in blue and white, the Duke University colors, the gymnasium provided a beautiful setting for the dances. Music for the series was furnished by a well-known Chicago orchestra, which officially opened the series with the playing of "Deep Forest." A lovely photograph of Miss Gould, with those of other sponsors, appeared in a recent edition of the Duke Chronicle. Miss Gould is a student at the University of Georgia, where she is a member of the freshman class.

Xi Psi Phi Frat Gives Senior Ball At Druid Hills Club

Of interest to members of the young contingent was the senior ball given at the Druid Hills Golf Club Friday evening by the Xi Psi Phi fraternity of the Atlanta-Southern Dental College by the active members of the Alpha Eta chapter, in honor of their seniors. Among those present were many members of the social set of Atlanta, visiting alumni and friends from all parts of the southeast.

The grand march was led by the retiring officers who are A. J. Beard Jr., retiring president, and Miss Mary Love Crockett, of Thomasville, Ga.; C. R. Russ, vice president, and Miss Doris Baldwin; J. C. Hill, secretary, and Miss Emily Harvey; J. W. Harper, treasurer, and Miss Irene Boyd. Shaperons were Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Coleman, Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Banks, Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Byrnes, Dr. and Mrs. Anderson M. Scruggs and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harrison.

Prominent alumni present included Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Hawley, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Coleman, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Newman, Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Chittwood, of Fort Payne, Ala.; Dr. Darden J. Euse, Dr. Alex. Stanford, of Greensboro, N. C.; Dr. A. J. Ott, of Tallahassee, Fla.; Dr. J. D. Kiser, of Charlotte, N. C.; Dr. O. V. Lewis, of Piquette, Miss.; Dr. A. L. Townsend, of Birmingham, Ala.; Dr. McDaniel Fowler, Dr. Herbert Smith, of Prattville, Ala.; Dr. R. C. Maxwell, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Gravel, of Thomasville, Ga.; Dr. and Mrs. Bill Seay, of Thomasville, Ga.; Dr. Ralph Aiken, Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Banks, Dr. and Mrs. Edmonds, Dr. and Mrs. F. T. Webb, of Piedmont, Ala.; Dr. and Mrs. Sink, Dr. Frank Tillery, of Columbus, Ga.; Dr. and Mrs. Llewellyn, of Gadsden, Ala.; Dr. Spike Wells, and Dr. George Kendrick, of Winter Haven, Florida.

Open Forums Held At Club Institute

The club institute of the Fifth District of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, conducted by Mrs. L. O. Freeman and held on Friday at the Atlanta Woman's Club, featured open forums on "What My Club Means to Me" and "The Value of Club Institutes." Discussions were led by Mrs. W. L. Ballenger and Mrs. J. E. Stevenson, and by Mrs. John F. McDougall, president of the district, who defined institutes as "schools of methods giving specific training in organization and administration and in the work of the departments and divisions instituted by the general federation." For nine successive years institutes have been held by the fifth district, with increased attendance and efficiency marking each of these annual occasions.

At the club institute, purpose and procedure. In the main, clubs are organized for study, sociability and recreation, or a combination of these purposes. These three types of clubs were discussed by Mesdames C. R. Stauffer, E. W. Brodgon and I. F. Stern, respectively. Topics considered under "Construction Process" were "Membership Duties and Responsibilities," by Mrs. J. T. Livsey; "Admission," by Mrs. Wellington Stevenson; "Ethics," Mrs. Norman Pool; "Federation," Mrs. Harvie Jordan.

An interesting period of the day was devoted to the election of district officers and chairmen, a large number of whom were present and brought brief messages concerning the work of their various departments and divisions. Twenty-seven clubs were represented, and in spite of the unfavorable weather a large group of members of the district attended this institute.

Atlanta Arts Trio To Give Concert.

A concert has been arranged by the Atlanta Arts Trio to be given at Glenn Memorial church Sunday afternoon, March 25. The Emory University Women's Club is sponsoring this concert as a compliment to its many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Arrive for Residence.

Interesting additions to social circles are Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hamilton, of Los Angeles, Cal., who arrived recently to establish residence in the city and have taken an apartment at the Cox Carlton hotel, where they are receiving a cordial welcome from Atlanta.

Mrs. Hamilton was formerly Miss June Ashley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ashley, of California. She was raised in a picturesque town of Leucadia, south of Los Angeles, in the heart of the fruit country, and her childhood was spent in the beautiful California climate. She received her preparatory education in her native state, but completed her education in Washington state, where she was identified as an admirer favorite with the school and college set.

From her mother, who was Miss Caledonia Macdonald, of Covington, Ky., she inherits her Irish type of beauty, for she possesses deep blue eyes and brunet tresses, with a fair complexion. She is fond of riding, and her enthusiastic love of the races. Perchance her love of riding and horses is also inherited from her Kentucky mother, a belle of yesteryear. Mr. Hamilton is from the west coast, and claims Portland, Ore., as his home. Since his marriage, he and his charming wife have traveled extensively and they will fit perfectly into the cosmopolitan set of Atlanta.

Weds at Quiet Ceremony

Mrs. Olin Brown Jr., who before her marriage at a quiet ceremony on Saturday evening, March 3, was Miss Mary Elizabeth Arnett, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Arnett. The Rev. W. H. Reed officiated at his home on Burns drive. Following a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Brown are residing with the bride's parents on Burns drive, S. W. Photo by Lewis Photo studio.

Mrs. Daingerfield Gives Talk at Club On Launching of Garden Pilgrimage

Plans are progressing toward the launching of the state-wide garden pilgrimage in Georgia to be directed by the Planters' Garden Club of Atlanta, of which Mrs. L. G. Daingerfield is president, and at whose suggestion the movement was launched. In giving out her opinion at a recent mass meeting held at the Piedmont Driving Club upon the value and the interest abounding in the pilgrimage, Mrs. Daingerfield expressed herself in saying:

"Georgia abounds in historical interest far ante-dating all other belongings of the home-makers of our country. Back to the gardens of the Franciscan missions on Santa Catalina as early as 1500, where there are some of the oldest gardens in the world, and in the gardens of the work of restoring old places which have been wrecked through the evil fortunes of war, the dying out of the families of their original owners, the march of landmark obliterating progress does not merely mean to rebuild them."

"Restoration means to remake as nearly as possible old gardens and old homes in their original and distinctive patterns, which in Georgia are essentially unique and Georgian. We do not want copies from Virginia, from New England or elsewhere. But to retrieve and keep alive for all time, the essence of our Georgia ancestor."

"It goes without saying that the organization of a week of garden tours throughout the state will require the united effort of every woman, whether a garden club member or not; of every Kiwanian, Rotarian and chamber of commerce member; of every individual who can help in the discovery of the by-ways as well as the highways which lead to places of interest."

"Even during the depression days, Virginia collected $30,000 from visitors to her historic gardens. Half of this went to the individual owners to help maintain the beauty of their gardens, and the other half went to the restoration of some historic spot. The Atlanta zone comprises the counties of Fulton, old Campbell, DeKalb, Cobb, Clayton and Spalding. I want every individual to write to all those of their acquaintance within the prescribed zone, to collect all possible data as to roads, tourist accommodations, meal places, as well as the homes and gardens in the neighborhood. Send this information to your club secretaries, who in turn will give it to the zone secretary to be appointed."

Mrs. Rucker's Description. Mrs. Lillian Rucker writes in an entertaining fashion concerning the homes and gardens in Athens. She is zone chairman for the garden pilgrimage, and says:

"Athens, a city founded after the University of Georgia was located here, has more types of southern architecture, early American, Greek revival and colonial than any city in Georgia. Here are wooden houses with tall slender pillars, red brick churches, and these were once Corinthian columns, the cottage type of the Victorian era. In these homes are preserved many of the treasures that was the south's in the golden era of slavery and big plantations, for the homes were built here for the families to send their children to college or to Lucy Cobb and then there would be the migration to the plantation in the summer. Beautiful portraits of velvet-clad men and women in silver and glass that has graced the banquet halls of men who served in the cabinet of the United States of America. Swords and guns are sacred to the memory of those of Cobb's Legion or the gay cavalier who assisted Jeff Davis as he journeyed in exile through Georgia."

"The homes of especial historic interest for those who will make the garden pilgrimage will be the home of the supreme court, 1845, is commemorated by the Athens Women's Club, who now own his home, also where the home school of the Sossow-ski used to be."

"The home of Howell Cobb is on Hill street and the home of his father, John Cobb, is at the end of the street behind the Episcopal church, and these were once surrounded by a lawn and flower gardens on a four-acre lot. Howell Cobb was secretary of the treasury under President Buchanan, speaker of the house, chairman of the provisional congress that met in Montgomery and whose

Atlanta Chapter, U.D.C., To Hold Benefit Bridge Party Wednesday

The executive board of the Atlanta chapter U. D. C. held the fourth of a series of benefit bridge parties at the chapter house, 826 Juniper street, N. E., on Wednesday, March 21, at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. A. R. Colcord, president of the chapter, has appointed Mrs. Frank Davenport as general chairman. Tables are $1 each or 25 cents a player. There will be a number of prizes and homemade cakes will be a specialty. Light refreshments will be served.

Charles Lochridge, bridge expert of New York, will be present and talk on bridge or answer questions or problems. Mrs. Lochridge is secretary of activities of the Knickerbocker Club of New York, and has recently concluded a series of lectures on the Winslow system over the radio. He has also served on the editorial staff of the Bridge Forum, where he conducted the "Corner of Knotty Problems." He was a member of the four horse-men's team of the Knickerbocker club and has won more than 40 cups in different bridge tournaments.

Those desiring to make reservations are requested to do so early, as there is only a limited space for tables, by calling Mrs. Colcord, Raymond 3070; Mrs. Davenport, Hemlock 5641-W, or the chapter house, Jackson 2164. Players are requested to bring cards and pencils.

Visits to the home of Alice McLeelland, at 1001 14th street, and to Stone Mountain will relieve the tedium of winter. Teas and receptions by the fifth district, and by the local councils will add to the pleasure. There will be plenty of comfortable conference rooms, exhibit space and committees to take care of individual requests.

Governor Eugene Talmadge, State Superintendent M. D. Collins, City Commissioner J. H. Sutton will contribute to the program.

The general convention will open on Monday at 10 o'clock, and will continue through Wednesday evening. There will be special observance of Child Welfare week, with exhibits, displays, literature, publicity, publications, reading and extension.

Zone chairmen are especially welcomed to the meeting. It is predicted that this convention will be the largest in the organization's history.

Mrs. Nicholes Tells What Student Aid Does For State Girls

Mrs. H. M. Nicholes, in her report of the June Scott Woodruff memorial fund which she was chairman, wrote as follows: "Let us turn backward in the flight of time and peep into a home at 90 East Linden street in July, 1908. We see a woman in deep meditation with two letters in her hand. She had been called on in these letters to make a great decision, a decision which vitally concerned the future of an ambitious and worthwhile young Georgia girl, and perhaps the future of hundreds of other young girls of this state." The decision to establish the Student Aid Foundation did affect hundreds of girls in Georgia and the three girls whose little stories follow are examples of the many.

The following is the story of one student aid girl: Eight years ago a girl borrowed money to complete her education. Within two years she had returned the loan. The next year she helped a sister to enter college and the year after she aided a brother. Each succeeding year she managed to see that these two continued their college work and finally she undertook to send her youngest sister to Athens. The first sister whom she helped has graduated and the brother and the last child is in her senior year.

The letter following is from the oldest girl: "I am enclosing $100 to apply on sister's old loan. I had not planned to pay up this loan for her, but as it is so uncertain whether she will get a position when she finishes, I have decided to try to get her loans paid up to this year so as to have nothing hanging over her but this one year's loan. I am so happy that she could go back for her degree this year. She seems so happy and we all feel so grateful to Student Aid for the help you have given to us. It does not seem possible that we have so nearly reached the goal—all of us with a college education."

A second story runs thus: A young girl, just graduated from a high school in a small town, had made every effort to find work. Nothing was available—she had no parents and no home except the room of a sister who was working in a larger place and doing all she could for the younger child. The situation was becoming quite desperate when several interested women turned to Student Aid although they realized that a large loan would be inadvisable for this girl. Just the right thing came to hand—a small loan provided a three years' training course in a good hospital and a fine and conscientious nurse will eventually serve some community.

A letter from a third Student Aid girl speaks for herself and others: "In regard to —, I want to tell you some things about this young lady. She is completing this year a four-year program of girls' club work in the county and has done outstanding work each year. There are two other sisters in the family doing equally as well and a younger sister who will take up this training as soon as she is old enough.

In educating her girls in helping to educate three other girls in this family. The beauty of it to me is that a little encouragement and financial aid goes such a long way when we find the right girl. I shall always feel so humble and thankful for the assistance I received through the student aid."

Miss Woodward Relates Story Of Meeting

By MISS MARION WOODWARD, Vice Chairman of Student Aid Committee.

The Student Aid Committee of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs met at the home of Mrs. Charles J. Haden on March 2. Several applications were considered but only one senior loan was granted. The collection from repayments has been unusually good for the past two months and this is encouraging at this particular time since all funds have been exhausted by the large list of loans made each month and it has therefore been impossible to build up a balance for summer school and September loans.

One very interesting phase of the work of student aid was discussed at this meeting, namely, as to what constructive suggestions could be made to girls whose grades do not merit loans from the foundation, but whose character and strength of purpose deserve help. To this end, it was proposed that various types of educational and other loans be presented to the committee at different times. It is readily seen that, by a closer affiliation with these educational institutions, girls coming to Student Aid for loans may be led into professions for which they are best adapted. It has been found in many instances that an immediate loan may sometimes be a handicap rather than a benefit.

For instance, last fall a teacher who was assigned a position with a very small salary had asked that a loan be made her so that she could stop teaching for a year and go on with her education. The chairman, after taking up the matter with the committee, advised the girl to continue her teaching this year, since things were so unsettled, rather than to go into debt. The young woman has been increasingly grateful for this advice; has lived very carefully and by June will have a nice sum laid by to take a summer school course.

The efficiency of the Student Aid Foundation depends upon this group of women who meet so faithfully the first Friday of each month and who consider so carefully the needs of every applicant. It is their earnest purpose to carry on the ideals established 25 years ago by the founders of Student Aid for girls in Georgia.

Mrs. Kesler's Request.

As chairman of scrapbook in the ninth district of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Stanley Kesler, of Jefferson, notes that few of the clubs are sending in reports to the official club page in The Atlanta Constitution and asks that presidents of clubs in the ninth district send reports of their activities either by mail or by direct to her. Many clubs will find a blank where there should be a report in the scrapbook when it is exhibited at the district meeting in Toccoa. It is impossible to complete files without material.

Student Aid of Georgia Federation Establishes Founder's Memorial Fund in Celebration of Its Twenty-Fifth Birthday Anniversary

Nine of the above women were called together at the home of Mrs. Frank Woodruff in July, 1908, to consider student aid work for the girls of Georgia. A month later a larger group met to complete the organization of a committee to direct this new educational project and 15 women were enlisted then in the interests of the undertaking. "Had it not been for these women, student aid in Georgia might have been neglected or delayed." Therefore, it has been considered appropriate by the present student aid committee, with Mrs. Charles J. Haden as its chairman, to honor these 15 women as founders on this twenty-fifth anniversary of student aid work and this issue of the club

By MRS. MARY CONNALLY SPALDING, Chairman of Founders' Memorial Fund Committee of the Student Aid Committee.

Most great people do things simply and do not realize their own greatness or the importance of the thing they are doing. I know these women, who founded it 25 years ago did not realize that they were making history, by calling a meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Woodruff, for the purpose of securing a loan of $35 to help a Georgia girl finish her education. They only knew that they wanted to be used for good. After all, nothing really matters in life except the good we do in the world and pass on, so that those who follow us in spirit may get an enlarged vision from us.

Women like those who founded student aid do not die. The spirit of their work comes to stand in our midst today—to bid us in their names and for their sakes to "carry on." If the love, the work and the money, which has been put into student aid for 25 years had not been given that much blessing would have been lost. The love would not have gone out to 526 Georgia girls; the work would not have been done by these devoted women and the money would have gone where most of everybody's money went—into the depression. The salt would have lost its savor, the light would have been hid under a bushel. Therefore, we submit this report asking for your enthusiastic co-operation.

First Meeting. The first meeting of the student aid committee, which resulted in the permanent organization of the committee as the student aid foundation of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, was called together at the home of Mrs. Frank Woodruff, in July, 1908. These women met to answer a request of Dr. William Allen, secretary of municipal research of New York, asking if there was any agency from which a loan could be secured for a Georgia girl, in order that she might be able to finish her education.

The women called together for this first meeting were Mesdames Frank Woodruff, H. B. Wey, E. G. McCabe, John King, Orley, Robert Emory Park, Hugh Willett, Bolling Jones, Robert Zahner and Emma Garrett Morris. Mrs. H. B. Wey was chosen as chairman, and Mrs. Frank Woodruff as secretary.

Another meeting was called August page is dedicated to them and the service they have rendered. On the top row, reading from left to right, are: Mrs. Frank Woodruff, at whose home student aid was founded; Mrs. H. B. Wey, who was chosen the first chairman of the student aid committee; Mrs. David Woodward followed Mrs. Wey as chairman of the student aid committee, and Mrs. Charles J. Haden, the present chairman of the student aid work. On the second row from left to right are Mrs. John K. Otley, who was an outstanding leader in federation activities; Mrs. Bolling Jones was at this time a prominent member of the state executive board; Mrs. Emma Garrett Morris, who was the representative of the college group; Mrs. Hugh Willett, whose club interests were state wide; Mrs. M. A.

These memberships are to be enrolled with each gift of $10 or more—our first goal to be 500 memberships or more. These memberships are to be solicited from individuals and can be taken out in the name of the person giving the $10 or as a memorial in honor of some other person living or dead. This honor roll of names is to be kept on file in the records of the student aid foundation in the bureau of archives and history of the state of Georgia in the Rhodes Memorial hall, in Atlanta.

Anyone may contribute as many memberships or memorials as they desire to help to raise the fund to proportions of usefulness—$100, $500 and $1,000 gifts will be listed as endowments.

We suggest that, during the period of collections, the money be placed in a savings bank at interest and all of the interest be added to the principal with a goal of $5,000 or more. When the fund reaches the $10,000 mark, it may be considered wise to take the money out of the savings bank for a better investment. Then if the student aid is in need of money for loans, let one-half of the interest of the fund be added to the principal and the other half be paid in January of each year into the treasury, for use view but can never properly value the assets in the development of the girls themselves. The scholastic requirements, standard of character, the recognition of obligation to duty are requisites carefully investigated before granting a loan so that there is a distinct merit in being a Student Aid girl. The monthly reports and letters received from the girls who have graduated and are in various positions of teachers, 4-H Club work, homemakers, trained nurses and business women are convincing proof of the successful investments in the loans made. in the same way that all other student aid funds are handled. This will automatically and continually increase the fund itself and add to the usefulness of the foundation.

Founders' Memorial Fund. In order to honor these women who had the first vision of the service we now render and the larger service we hope to render, we propose to begin a fund to be called "the founders' memorial fund" which is to be accumulated by the collection of life memberships.

When the girls make the repayments (from half the income of the fund) the money shall go into the general checking account of the student aid foundation to be used again as all other money is handled.

It shall continually be the effort of the student aid to add new memberships and endowments. An agreement shall be drawn up by the board of trustees and the student aid committee stating:

1. That this fund shall be kept separate from all other money.

2. That one-half of the income shall annually go back into the principal of the fund for further investment.

3. That one-half of the income shall annually be paid to the general treasury of the committee for loans.

4. That every 10 years this agreement shall be approved, or, if necessary, readjusted in such a way as the changes and progress in the methods of education require for the usefulness of its operation.

5. That we also ask that a copy of this report be preserved with the agreement, to be drawn up by the trustees and the student aid committee, so that we may be fully understood by those who follow us in this work.

Club Leaders Indorse Founders' Memorial Fund In Letters

The following prominent clubwomen heartily approve the new project of the Student Aid Foundation—the Founders' Memorial Fund. These women have all been associated with this work for many years in various capacities. Mrs. J. W. Gholston, president of the Georgia Federation, has watched the progress of this foundation with keen interest and has made many helpful suggestions.

Mrs. J. K. Otley is one of the founders of Student Aid and of the board of trustees since its organization and is one of its most valued and constructive members. Mrs. E. M. Bailey, second vice president of the Georgia Federation, has been closely connected with the work in the past few years and is a sympathetic supporter of this new undertaking. Mrs. A. V. Gude, who has loyally given the longest service of any member now on the committee, is also keenly interested in the Founders' Memorial Fund.

Mrs. Gholston says: "It is a privilege and a pleasure to extend greetings today to Mrs. Charles Haden, chairman, and the Student Aid committee, upon the 25th anniversary of the founding of Student Aid, and in addition, commend to the members of Georgia Federation and the friends of education the fostering of the Founders' Memorial Fund."

"We are agreed that no investment brings greater returns than education. No better place for investment than right here in Georgia. No object more deserving than our young womanhood. The records of Student Aid Foundation, through this quarter century of service, in assisting more than 500 girls in higher education, is a mighty tribute to the efforts of its faithful leaders, wise counselors, and beneficent educational program of Georgia Federation."

The Founders' Memorial Fund, presented today, is an opportunity to place in trust a donation in honor of someone near and dear to you, at the same time helping to bring the blessing of an education to some deserving Georgia girl. No object more deserving than our young womanhood. The call for help was never greater. "The purpose of education is not to make a living, but to make a life."

Mrs. Bailey, although with no children of her own, expresses the love of the great mother heart when she writes, "I enclose find my check for $10 in memory of 'All Little Girls.' May they grow into fine women a credit to student aid and our federation."

Mrs. Otley writes: "I have had a part in many happy birthdays (my own and others), but never one dearer in memory or richer in results than that of student aid foundation in July, 1908."

"Every year this great evangel of professional education for Georgia girls has grown stronger and more helpful, and I, personally, have been drawn more closely to the splendid men and women under whose loving care it has progressed so admirably. Every year I am increasingly grateful to have been in at the beginning of this thrilling enterprise which will never have an ending."

Mrs. A. V. Gude says: "I hope that this will be a great success and that soon you will have a goodly sum for the founders' memorial and I feel sure that you have done a fine thing."

List of Memorials, Life Memberships Are Announced

The following list of gifts to the Founders' Memorial Fund was started in October of last year by Mrs. Mary Connally Spalding's gifts of $10 each, in memory of her mother, Mrs. E. L. Connally, and Mrs. E. G. McCabe. The list has not been published before since the memorial fund was not formally undertaken until February 2, 1934, when the plan was presented by Mrs. Spalding, chairman of the Founders' Memorial Committee, to the Student Aid Committee as a whole with Mrs. J. W. Gholston, Mrs. John K. Otley and Mrs. Z. L. Fitzpatrick attending and adding their indorsement to the project.

List of memorials and life memberships includes: In memory of Mrs. E. L. Connally, $10; Mrs. E. G. McCabe, by Mrs. John Spalding, $20; in memory of Dr. Albert T. Spalding, by Junior Business Women's Class of the Second Baptist church, $10; in memory of Dr. E. L. Connally, by Mrs. John Spalding, $10; in memory of her little daughter, Dorothy Gholston, by Mrs. J. W. Gholston, $10; life membership for Mrs. M. A. Bailey, $10; life membership for Mrs. Charles J. Haden, by Miss Marion Woodward, $10; in memory of Mrs. David Woodward, by Mrs. Charles J. Haden, $10; in memory of Mrs. Hugh M. Willett, by Mrs. Charles J. Haden, $10; life membership for Mary Virginia Bryan, by Mrs. John Spalding, $10; life membership for Wilma Clarissa Burnett, by Mrs. E. V. Carter, $10; life membership for "All Little Girls," by Mrs. E. M. Bailey, $10, making a total of $130.

made in all parts of the state there is the friendly oversight of these outstanding women to lend assistance to the girls when needed.

These district presidents and chairmen are: First district, Mrs. R. M. Girardeau, president; chairman, Mrs. Morgan Hodges; second district, Mrs. A. B. Conger, president; chairman, Mrs. Otis Woodward; third district, Mrs. A. C. Mays Jr., president; chairman, Mrs. Thurman Whaley; fourth district, Mrs. Hartford Green, president; chairman, Miss Julia Bush; fifth district, Mrs. J. F. McDonald, president; chairman, Mrs. E. M. Helbig; sixth district, Mrs. W. B. Smith; seventh district, Mrs. Ralph Butler, president; chairman, Mrs. Cleveland Green; eighth district, Mrs. R. G. Dickerson, president; chairman, Mrs. E. R. Dimmock; ninth district, Mrs. H. P. DeLaPerriere, president; chairman, Mrs. Royce Branson; tenth district, Mrs. W. W. Clayton, president; chairman, Mrs. W. W. Clayton.

The young women in Georgia, under the enthusiastic leadership of Mrs. T. O. Taber, are contributing active support, which is one of the strong holds of the foundation. The board of trustees is composed of business and influential women with the president, Ben S. Read, president of the board and of the foundation.

CONCENTRATING is a form of putting all your eggs in one basket. It is necessary while working, but there is definitely such a thing as exaggerating the importance of going through life with your mind set on one object only. A genius can get away with it, but only a genius. Obviously, from a feminine angle, the most dangerous form of concentration is on one man. If even a happily married matron shouldn't think there is only one man in the world, how much more dangerous that point of view is for a girl who wishes to get married or merely to have a good time!

Every now and then a girl has the ability to give the impression that she is always surrounded by admirers and can arrange things with so much cunning that the main man in her life doesn't suspect what position he occupies. There is a trick to it so as not to discourage him entirely by making him feel that it is hopeless to struggle against so much competition.

In this hectic day when you practically have to wave a banner to attract attention to yourself it is unwise to go around like a little mouse. But if you always apply yourself to making a great effect you eventually become ridiculous or, worse, people grow so accustomed to your grand entrances or startling remarks meant to make a break in the conversation that they become entirely oblivious to them.

Apparently men prefer to look upon their girls as helpless little things, none too bright. They have not yet reached the stage where they recognize a woman's right to work for her living. And they can see nothing illogical in the fact that while they expect you to show an intense interest in their jobs they consider the girl who so much as mentions hers, a dull companion. Concentration on your job is indispensable in an office — out of it, it is de trop. That is if you want to have anything to do outside of office hours.

This Thing of Living in the Country

—By—
GEORGE ADE

CAN you stay in the country without becoming a rube? Do you have to be in among the tall buildings in order to get all the "ism" at first hand, and be wise to the under-currents of gossip, and in contact with high-gear intellects, and quick on the trigger, and not as a potato?

Most of the early king-pins of our beloved and bewildered country lived in stately but isolated mansions with quiet lanes approaching them. They visited the centers of population, but never lingered long. George Washington was a country jake if ever there was one, but he wore satin and lace. Benjamin Franklin was the most prominent city slicker of his day, with headquarters shifting from Boston to Philadelphia to Paris to New York, but the clothes he wore cost about $8 a suit and he looked like a come-on for any three-shell man or gold-brick salesman.

If you will let me blab about myself for a minute, I'll explain why I am still guessing as to whether it is better to be a big duck in a little puddle or a sardine in the Atlantic ocean. I was born on the outskirts of a very small town in Indiana. Later we moved into the very heart and center of the township metropolis, exchanging the music of the frogs for "Molly Darling" as played on the melodeon, and the change was not much of an improvement.

About the time my legs became too long and I worried about the appearance of my hair, I was transferred to a college which has since grown into Purdue University (see football and basketball scores). The adjoining city had a population of 20,000 souls, admitting that all of the boys who loafed around the 92 saloons had souls.

I worked on two daily papers and saw all the shows at the Grand Opera House, without paying to get in, and then I hurried my self into the boisterous activities of Chicago. For ten years I served time on a big-town daily, nothing off for good behavior. After becoming known as the author of six so-called books and several plays that survived and made money, I moved clear out into the country, possibly making the mistake of going back to the old home neighborhood, where they were already on to me. But, after returning to the tall grass, I spent as much time in New York and Europe and Florida and the West Indies and China and Japan as I did among the corn fields and the cow pastures. When I wasn't in overalls I had on my satin-faced tuxedo and wore studs that looked like pearls. Went around the world twice and kept on turning out comedy dramas and musicals until I learned that no author can collect royalties while lying horizontal in a well-kept cemetery.

I came to be on speaking terms with Paris and London and strange foreign climes even while paying taxes in Indiana. The labels on my luggage proclaimed me as a world traveler and cosmopolite but whenever I got back to Hazelden farm I reverted to type and was just a blank Indian who was supposed to be a republican but who always voted for a lot of democratic candidates. Socially a non-descript and politically a turn-out, regarded by all regulars as a cross between a government mule and a cotton-tail rabbit who didn't know which way to jump. A well-meaning goof who wrote pieces for the magazines but who was a little curdled below the straw hat and kept liquor in his house, but not very long.

Anyway, I had established a hop-skip-and-jump record which enable me to pose as an expert on the general conduct of all kinds of people in all kinds of places. So I am prepared to say that the knowest individuals are those who grow up in the sticks and then migrate to the bright lights, without losing any of the pop-eyed curiosity or the gaping interest of the confirmed yoke. I am glad I was not born in a crowded city, even if I do continue to feel inferior to the guaranteed Knickerbockers, all graduates of Harvard and persons who actually prefer artichokes to corn on the cob.

On every rainy day the petrified bachelor wishes that he had a loving wife and a flock of kiddies, and on the first of every month the married householder thinks of the old happy days when room rent was reasonable and lunch was free. The large idea being that no matter where you happen to be, you are always wondering if you wouldn't be more contented somewhere else. The

say, "Well, Old-Timer, you certainly have got the right idea." And when they drive away toward a metropolis, to meet all my bud-

ancholy and wonder if I am just a squirrel out on a lonesome branch, sizing up the same old landscape.

Some of our boys of the gay nineties headed to the east and are now living in apartments. Others remained on the native heath to become members of the school board and attend the weekly luncheons of the Rotarians.

Let us take the case of the lad who has made a meteoric ascent from the quick lunch counter to Park avenue. He has learned the truth of something I wrote years ago: "Early to bed and early to rise, and you will meet very few prominent people." He sees all the head-liners in parade instead of reading about them in the papers. He goes to the first night shows at the gaudy playhouses. He may watch the giant liners dropping down the harbor and heading for the Old World. He knows all the head waiters and is invited to go places and do things. The folks across the hall-way are total strangers and never drop over to borrow the lawn-mower. He can sleep late in the morning and doesn't even hear the scrambled noises of the city. He is within easy taxi distance of art museums, musicales, exclusive clubs, magnificent libraries and famous lecture halls but he seldom goes near any of these uplifting headquarters because he already has more culture than he knows what to do with.

Every day he gets new low-down slants on the great and the near-great. Juicy scandals come first hand. If he is invited to attend a reception in honor of some shaggy genius who has written a best-seller, he stays at home and works a jig-saw puzzle. All the riches of the earth are spread out before him but his most ardent longing is for a New England boiled dinner or the kind of strawberry shortcake not to be found at any high-priced restaurant.

How about the brother who has gone hay-seed? Nothing is happening within eight miles of him and the only big news is that the cow, Elizabeth, has just given birth to a spotted calf. He is surrounded by a dense calm. An airplane in the sky causes as much excitement as a flight by Lindbergh. Everything in this world is relative. Out on the level plains an ant-hill is a mountain. In the rural township a good fist-fight between two local burles is something to talk about for three days. If a local juvenile becomes a night rider with an acquired thirst for ginger ale shot with "alky," everybody hears about it except the editor of the weekly paper.

All the neighbors know what the other neighbors know what the other neighbors eat for breakfast. Put in a telephone call (by turning the crank on the buzz-box) and when central answers, do you give a number? You do not. Every subscriber is supposed to have a number in the printed directory but one ever consults the directory and the average party-liner doesn't even know his own number. Here is the conversation:

"Hello, Ella, I want to talk to talk to Jim Brady. Do you s'pose he's still at home?"

"No, I saw him in front of the Gem store about 10 minutes ago talkin' with Mark Foreman. I think he went down to the service garage to get his car. You know, he had a blow-out last night and skidded into a light pole and bent one of his fenders."

"You don't say! Is he insured?"

"Yes, he's insured. It was the right fender in front."

"All right, give me service. (Pause) Hello, Elmer, is Jim Brady there?"

"Hey, shut off that radiol Jim, George wants to talk to you."

You will find in the country good paved roads, fresh vegetables, fresh air and fresh high school students wearing sweaters and meal-bag trousers. The speaking pictures are new and well handled. Beach pajamas but no beach. Sport clothes but no sport. Speak-easies in farm houses. There are no servants, although persons who need money consent to do housework for other people who have money. Some residents are hard up but no one starves to death and there are no breadlines. Big league baseball keeps many of the residents steamed up and all of the kings, queens and two-spots of Hollywood are known by their first names. Democracy remains triumphant and technocracy is just another long word. "Mister" is seldom heard.

Those who need only eight hours of slumber have to get up at daybreak. It's great if you wish to avoid crowds and are fond of milk.

Can-Can of Paris Music Halls Boon to Tourist Trade

PARIS.—Big movie specials, daily contributing more than their bit toward recovery, now are credited with being a world beacon shining bright in the fog of economic despair.

Specifically, those who depend upon the entertainment and refreshment of tourists in Paris for a livelihood are pointing to "Nana," new Samuel Goldwyn production starring Anna Sten, as one big reason for stimulating a revival of tourist interest in the naughtiness of the Montmartre sector.

It's all on account of the "can-can" dance, which is part of the picture now electrifying the amusement world, and a sinuous girly rhythm that brought arched brows and gasps of delighted amazement to music hall patrons in the days when lacy things were ultra-daring. It is said to have originated in the music halls of Paris.

The slogan of these music hall proprietors today is "On with the dance, let joy be unrestrained;" and the success of "Nana" indicates that Paris will not be alone among the world's cities to surrender to the wiles of the "can-can."

The customary acts offered tourists, according to one Parisian "Earl Carroll," must be too tame and modest; they demand something extraordinarily strong and spicy, and although it once may have been termed "vulgar," the "can-can" obviously is the answer.

The momentary exposure of lacy underwear and a graceful limb evidently possesses sex-appeal beyond the wildest imagination of a briefly-costumed and fan-dance satiated public. And that is why the "can-can" is being offered today in music halls, as well as to millions of movie patrons. All in all, it is a dance calculated to make the unapologetic male topple into a reckless coma, and feel like tossing away every loose coin in his pockets. And that is where the French music hall proprietors come in. Many fanciful delusions have been practiced to catch the wary American tourist, particularly. French courts have revealed in their minutes, the unusual dodges perpetrated by managers of all types of resorts to coax out the much-kicked about, but still highly prized American dollar.

A Madam Ixo brought suit for breach of contract against a well-known tourist agency which dared to advertise that it would show visitors the seamy side of Parisian night life, even to the hideous hide-outs of criminals in the Catacombs, where gendarmes scarcely dared tread, and the thugs and Apaches in the unspeakable cellar dens. When Madam Ixo explained that her contract was to play the role of "Lioness Mouffetard Quatre," a desperate wanton wanted by the prefect of police for all manner of crimes, the entire French citizenry laughed aloud.

Madam Ixo, one-time singer in the Opera Comique, was supposed to dress in rags and put on a wild show in a dimly lighted Catacombs' cave, along with other "thieves" and "murderers" for the benefit of the gullible rubber-necked tourists. Her pay was to have been thirty francs a day; and she named 25,000 francs as the amount for which she would settle.

Her climax was the signal for the beginning of a dance routine calculated to shock the already "twisted" tourists. Two Italians in an Apache turn would knock over a couple of stooges in a wild entry; then came the belle of the "can-can" with her ensemble, hair disheveled, eyes flashing, voice reverberating. Some of the "flicked looking companions of the set-up" would further frighten the guests by asking them to join in the steps. But the idea was carried too far, and with the constant development, or undevelopment of veil and fan dances; the tourists found the Parisian underworld novelty rather apathetic.

How well it did work for a spell, however, in putting visitors in a spendthrift and reckless mood can best be cited by the case of Jean Renner, a twenty-dollar a week bank clerk. In 36 hours he had drawn on well over a thousand dollars of his firm's funds; and subsequent bills for entertainment of the charmers brought into his life a night at Madam Ixo's den, ran his dereliction well over the two thousand mark.

The stupefied boy was charged twelve dollars for a cigar of doubtless vintage and unknown brand, and four dollars for a package of cigarettes. There was the matter of commission for everybody in on the deal, you see. When the ever-present flower girl approached his table, he picked out two carnations for his lady pals. They shouldn't have cost more than 50 cents each at New Year's swankiest horticultural vendors, but he parted, still in a romantic stupor, with ten dollars. It was a gay reception, and the mood of gaiety was prolonged by his companions to a visit at the Palais Royal, drinks, tips to doormen, and then another peep at the "can-can."

At 5 o'clock on the third morning he had seven dollars left of his entrusted twenty thousand. He tried to get something on a new two-hundred-dollar watch from a doorman, and was offered eight dollars; when he asked his good girl friends for a loan of five iron men, they turned from him like 1-e-faced corporals of the guard.

Small wonder, then, that the "can-can," with all of this added subterfuge, should have died a sudden death.

But the men folks, and women, too, the modern connoisseurs of what is attractive in girls, again are going in a big way for the revived "can-can." Parisian tourist trade proves it, and the reception accorded "Nana," even allowing for the alluring personality of the new and very voluptuous Miss Sten, clinches it.

It may go so far that the originator of the steps will be sought out, and a bust struck off in his honor, for having added other world leaders in snapping the world out of its doldrums.

IN THE recent rush and roar of the Niagara of bankruptcy proceedings—and the fierce cascade isn't over yet—the names of Broadway and Hollywood actresses have emerged with startling persistence.

In some of the most striking of these cases, the feminine stars have been officially adjudged totally innocent of any attempt to juggle with figures, conceal or color the facts. They have accordingly had their liabilities cancelled and have been discharged.

In other cases, where the bookkeeping records have been misplaced or lost, no such decision has been possible.

The referees in such insolvencies all along have been careful to discriminate between mere carelessness about money matters, including excessive generosity to friends, and, in the eyes of the law, unforgivable extravagance.

This is the second article of a series dealing, clinically and scrupulously, with a theme of surpassing interest to almost everyone today.

Copyright, 1934.

"WHAT became of all our money? Gosh, Judge, I don't know." Rosetta, of the celebrated Duncan Sisters, speaking. She had been asked where the $900,000 fortune amassed by herself and her sister Vivian had vanished. And Rosetta seemed honestly non-plussed.

About a year ago in Los Angeles the Duncans filed voluntarily a petition in bankruptcy. They specified liabilities of $405,097 and assets of $22,500. At the creditors' hearing before Federal Referee in Bankruptcy Rupert B. Turnbull, S. H. Duncan, father and business manager of the two sprightly little performers, appeared in their behalf.

Duncan painted an impressive and slightly pathetic picture of the plight in which Vivian and Rosetta found themselves enmeshed. But his dramatic statements occasionally fell on unresponsive ears.

Briefly his story was that the girls had earned millions at the box-office, mainly through their elaborate musical comedy version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," called "Topsy and Eva," had won world-wide fame, and now were flat broke.

Referee Turnbull was not unduly sympathetic. Said he: "You've trifled long enough. Answer my questions or you may find yourself in a much more unpleasant place than this court. All your daughters seem to have left is $400,000 worth of debts and apparently somebody has all the money."

Duncan admitted that he "understood" the motion picture version of "Topsy and Eva" had grossed approximately $6,000,000. But he added that the girls had received only "nominal profits" from the film venture.

Referee Turnbull expressed an enthusiastic desire to examine Duncan's records. "Why, my house is littered with them," exclaimed the theatrical man. "It would take several trucks to cart them down here." "Get the trucks," he was instructed. "And bring all the papers."

OUT of this terrific snarl of confusion, creditors, dissatisfied with the audit, demanded that the Duncans' discharge in bankruptcy be denied. Large sums, it was asserted, had been spent by Vivian and Rosetta for stocks, bonds, jewelry and real estate, but the records involving these transactions could not be found.

The upshot of the long drawn-out wrangle was that the sisters were refused a discharge in bankruptcy. They took the matter with philosophic calm, but both insisted that they had been nothing worse than injudicious and over-generous.

Vivian told how she and Rosetta had fallen for a gold-mine sale that netted them nothing but grief. In fact, they had purchased two gold-mines, which were practically perfect, except that there wasn't any gold in them.

So far in this series, attention has been focused principally on the woes of Broadway and Hollywood feminine stars. Let us now, by way of contrast—and comparison—see what has happened to male stars of stage and screen when they found themselves insolvent.

The case of Harry Langdon instantly comes Keaton. Now apparently Harry was through.

Just how through he was financially was divulged when the comedian filed a petition in bankruptcy, in Los Angeles, in which he listed liabilities of $62,637 and assets of $700. His chief debt was to the Federal Government—a matter of $30,000 in income tax.

Harry blamed a lot of his money griefs on periodic payments which he was forced to make to his first and second wives. He also contended that Wife No. 2 hampered his art—he was filling a vaudeville engagement at the time—by standing in the wings and "advising" him how to act.

Remember Buck Jones? This famous film cowboy listed his liabilities as $135,852, of which amount $90,500 was secured and $45,352 unsecured. His assets he gave as $650—$500 in furniture and two horses valued at $75 apiece.

What were described as "various cafe debts and personal obligations" were listed, with about one hundred actors and "bit players" listed as Jones's creditors. They had, it was said, done $9,288 worth of acting for Buck, who hadn't paid them.

Two other old-time masculine movie favorites who have felt the sting of insolvency were Francis X. Bushman and Charles Ray. The case of the latter was somewhat poignant.

In the old silent days, after he had been groomed into starship by the late Thomas H. Ince, Charlie soared to tremendous heights of popularity. He was especially noted for his deft portrayals of shy country boys, and conceded to be alone in his field.

Ambitious, he sought to branch out with his own company. The latter was incorporated and an expensive production of "The Courtship of Miles Standish" was undertaken.

THE venture was a flop. Ray found himself in greatly reduced circumstances and attempted a stage comeback, with feeble results.

Bankruptcy proceedings were obviously inevitable. They were instituted in Los Angeles. At the time this was written no decision had been reached in the case.

In Chicago the troubles of Francis X. Bushman came to light. The former he-man motion picture star listed $107,084 as his liabilities. He said he had no assets except his clothes. If his attire in court was any criterion Bushman's sartorial taste was excellent. He wore a blue coat, snowy flannels and a blue shirt with tie to match.

The bankruptcy zone knows no bounds. In New York City recently so well-known an actress as Helen Menken came to the fore with the official statement that she was broke.

record a rather unusual motive for her voluntary plea.

She owed, she claimed, $20,000 and for the "sake of her peace of mind," she just must enter the lists of the insolvents. This statement was amplified by her attorney, as follows:

"Miss Menken found herself embarrassed by these old debts to such a point that her career as an artist was endangered," he added. "She will soon be in a position where she can and will be able to repay these obligations, but she needs peace of mind and immediate freedom from financial worry so she can continue her career."

Broadway was keenly interested in the Menken case, since she is one of the "street's" outstanding performers. She made her first smashing hit in "Three Wise Fools"; followed this up by her startling performance in the eventually banned play, "The Captive," and is now playing Queen Elizabeth in the Theatre Guild's produc-

BOYS AND GIRLS---UNCLE RAY IS HERE! Popular Author Writes

Are you reading Uncle Ray's Corner each day in The Constitution? If not, you are missing a real treat. Uncle Ray is an author and writer of children's stories. He likes to write about things which are true and worth-while to know. Every week day, except Saturday, he tells a story about history, nature, science, travel, adventure, invention or other interesting subjects. Some days Uncle Ray amuses his readers with jokes and riddles or explains how to execute tricks of magic. tion of "Mary of Scotland."
A group of six talkie stars—all ladies—on the West Coast support the theory that it's often awfully difficult for a screen luminary to keep completely out of debt.
Take Blanche Sweet, the radiant blonde actress, one of D. W. Griffith's discoveries in silent days and the former wife of Marshall Neilan, the director.

MISS SWEET recently filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities listed at $13,819 and assets of only $200.
Esther Ralston said she was in even worse plight. Her debts had pyramided to more than $53,000 while, though she gave her assets as $131,000, she declared that nine-tenths of this sum represented real estate holdings, all heavily subjected to various annoying encumbrances.

Sweet-faced Alice Joyce, a popular screen figure for many years, was another voluntary petitioner, with $47,794 worth of liabilities and assets including $158,096 in five promissory notes signed by her former husband, James B. Regan, Jr., and his father, the well-known New York hotel owner.

But Alice's only tangible, negotiable assets were, she indicated, household goods estimated to be worth $2,675; a $250 motor car, and $24.75 in cash.

Cute Merna Kennedy, once leading woman for Charlie Chaplin in "The Circus," was another girl in the toils of insolvency. According to her petition, she had accumulated debts of $4,868.56, her assets being exactly nil.

As often proves to be the case, Merna owed the Government $112.48 income tax. She also owed taxes to the City of Los Angeles, and there were unsecured claims listed at over $4,000.

Gertrude Short, who used to bowl 'em over in comedy shorts, was also sunk in indebtedness to the tune of $1,346. She cheerfully admitted that she had no assets of any kind.

The dashing Evelyn Brent has recently been in financial hot water, too. Data on her money troubles were scarce, but it is of record that she filed a petition last year, professing liabilities of $33,955 with no visible assets.

She described herself as "actress, unemployed," as so many ladies of one-time eminence on the screen and stage have done.

Just to prove that financial indiscretions—often arising from misguided generousities and general carelessness in the matter of bookkeeping—are not the exclusive prerogative of actresses, let us study, briefly, a characteristic case in another field.

EVERYBODY knows or should know the fictional work of Nina Wilcox Putnam. Mrs. Putnam is widely known for her crackling, glittering short stories and novels, usually inventively slangy and gay.

But the author wasn't so merry when she filed a plea of discharge from debt in Los Angeles, where several of her books were filmed. She said she was "in the red" for more than twelve "grand." Her assets she set at $1,977. She made the almost inevitable income tax claim, and exhibited bills from beauty parlors, restaurants, doctors and her clubs.

One of the most recent and spectacular cases of bankruptcy concerned blonde Mae Murray, who, playing opposite the late Wallace Reid in the old days of the "silents," was a box-office sensation.

Miss Murray, the original Nell Brinkley girl in a revue on the Century roof, and a Follies graduate, upon her withdrawal from the movies, married Prince David Mdivani, one of the three Georgian brothers, all of whom have contracted the habit of wedding American beauties.

In filing her voluntary insolvency petition, Princess Mae listed total liabilities of $228,196. Of this large amount $109,740 was in secured claims.

A most unusual feature of the proceedings was that, unlike so many of her sisters of the stage, Mae listed assets of $324,400, a sum large enough to cover the debts that had been incurred. The paradox, however, was only apparent, since the bulk of these assets comprised real estate holdings, set at $232,000.

Last week the dramatic collapse of the very fashionable Lucinda Gown Shop in New York City was described. This venture, whose salon became the smart rendezvous for feminine stars of the stage and screen at the cocktail hour, was conducted by Mrs. Lucinda Reichenbach, pretty widow of Harry Reichenbach, the spectacular press agent.

HEAR what Lucinda has to say about the conduct of the shop and why it went broke. "It was the charge accounts that did it. Bills, bills, bills! And not just once in a while. It was a daily occurrence.

"Let me tell you something curious in this connection. You'd think, wouldn't you, that these charge accounts would be opened—and never settled—by a lot of little nobodies; chorus girls, movie extras and 'stand-ins' and the like?"

"Nothing of the sort! My experience has been that the small-timers are much more honest in their business dealings than the big, important stars. Very often you can't trust those babies.

"Oh, I don't mean all of them. Many of the big-timers of stage and screen are distinctly regular. But not all.

"I can assure you that if it hadn't been for some of the feminine stars of Broadway and Hollywood—especially Hollywood—the Lucinda Gown Shop might today be a thriving proposition."

THE reader may recall that dashing Peggy Fears, once "glorified" by Florenz Ziegfeld and later the wife (now estranged) of promoter A. C. Blumenthal, had a "piece" of the Lucinda Gown Shop.

When she was summoned to appear at a hearing of the bankruptcy proceedings in connection with the shop, Peggy was frankly bored. She said she'd rather go to jail than tell where she got the money she sank in the venture, and as for producing her cancelled checks—"Oh no, I wouldn't think of that!"

She explained: "I got up at nine o'clock one morning and bought the place and went back to bed."

NEXT WEEK—In the third and final installment of this series will be considered and analyzed a peculiarly rich and variegated number of bankruptcy cases. Outstanding among them are those of Belle Bart, the astrologist; Belle Livingstone, the night-club hostess; Nita Naldi, of the screen, and Nell Kelly of the musical comedy stage.

Children say that Uncle Ray's articles are "better than story books." You will enjoy the simple, friendly language and the heart-to-heart Saturday talks. Uncle Ray has been writing for boys and girls for many years—in newspapers, magazines and books. You would enjoy meeting him in person, because he loves children and always has something interesting to say to them. Teachers in many schools clip Uncle Ray's Corner each day and, when the class schedule brings the pupils to a particular subject, post on the bulletin board a series in that field. Virtually every article has a present or future value as supplementary reading.

SECKATARY HAWKINS AND HIS FAIR and SQUARE CLUB

THE RAID OF THE RATS.

MONDAY.—We boys were tired of being bothered by the Gideon boy. Seemed like he was too smart for us. And when he spilt our kite-flying last week it made Dick Ferris sore. Dick is our captain. We held our meeting in the clubhouse today after school, and Dick says: "If none of you fellows can catch this Gideon boy and put a stop to his trouble-making, I am going to tell Judge Granbery to take charge and let the sheriff catch him. I'm tired of this whole business."

But Jerry Moore says: "No, we're not going to get the sheriff to help us fight our fights—we are big enough to take care of ourselves."

And Dick says: "All right, then get busy and catch the Gideon fellow."

After our meeting adjourned, Jerry Moore took me around to the side of the clubhouse and showed me some footprints in the mud there.

"Look, Hawkins," he says, "Gideon was here again last night."

I looked at the footprints in the mud. "Yeah," I said, "those are his footprints all right."

And Jerry says: "Yeah, and look! you don't see any footprints of his dogs, do you?" And again I had to tell Jerry he was right. Every time Gideon came around before, he had his four Eskimo dogs with him. But now there wasn't any sign of a dog's feet. Only Gideon's queer shoes, with the broad toe.

"Well, Jerry," I said, "what about it?"

And Jerry smiled. "You know what I'm going to do?" he asked. And I shook my head and said "No, what?"

Jerry answered: "I'm going over to the Pelham side across the river and get Lanigan!"

"What!" I exclaimed. "That pal of Briggens?"

Jerry nodded his head and grinned.

"But, Jerry!" I said. "Those Pelham fellows are our enemies. We can't use one of their gang to help us."

But Jerry said he'd been talking to Lanigan, and Lanigan wanted to break away from the Pelham gang and join our club.

TUESDAY.—Jerry was waiting for me when I came down today. He looked worried. I said: "What's the trouble, Jerry?"

And he answered: "I can't find Lanigan. None of his Pelham pals knows where he is. And I've been hunting all over for him. I went down to his house—it's a shack on the Pelham side up the river piece. Lanigan and his pop live alone in the shack. His pop says Eddie—that's his boy's first name—says he's been gone since right after breakfast this morning."

I had to laugh a little. "Well," I said, "seems like you'll have to get along without Lanigan. Maybe he's gone into the woods to hunt. Like Hobbs says that there's been a deer seen in the Pelham timber during the winter—maybe Lanigan's gone to try and get his daddy and himself."

some venison to eat—they must get awful tired eating fish every day."

WEDNESDAY.—Some of the boys didn't have their dime-a-week dues ready last Monday, so our captain pushed off the pay day of dues until today. I collected the dimes and gave it to Dick Ferris, our captain. He put it away in our little tin box under the loose board in the clubhouse floor. I happened to look over his shoulder, and I said to him, as he started to put the tin box back under the floor: "You'd better put the lid back on the tin box, Dick."

And he said: "By George, Hawkins! That just reminds me—there wasn't any lid!"

I says: "There always was a lid to it."

And he says: "Yes, I know, but if you happened to see me take that tin box out of the hole in the floor just then, you know there wasn't any lid on it."

I put my arm on his shoulder and said: "If you say there wasn't any lid, then I know there wasn't any. But we both know there was, don't we, Dick?"

He looked at me, sort of frightened. "Yeah!" he said. "But you don't think I was telling a lie, Hawkins, do you?"

I said: "No. Put back the box." He put it back. And I said no more. But I wondered! The lid couldn't have popped off of the tin box by itself. Yet it was gone. As Dick put the box back under the floor I noticed that there was in it a good many dollar bills.

THURSDAY.—Today Jerry Moore found Lanigan—the Pelham kid. When I got down to the clubhouse, Jerry told me Jerry brought Lanigan over to our side of the river this afternoon and showed him Gideon's footprints. So I knew then that at last Jerry had Lanigan on the trail of Gideon. I went around and saw, by the footprints of Jerry and the footprints of Lanigan, where they started to follow the footprints of Gideon's latest trail.

I followed them down to the hollow, and there I says to myself: "Well, I guess Jerry and Lanigan will be enough to follow that trail to the finish, and I might as well go back."

I walked back over the trail of the footprints to the clubhouse. I saw something sticking out of the ground in the path before me. It was a pocket knife with a horn handle and three blades. I picked it up and rubbed off the mud. I saw it had some initials scratched in one end—these initials were "G. G." And I said to myself: "This is Gideon's knife! Maybe his first name is George—that accounts for the double 'G' initials—anyway, I'm sure this is Gideon's!" I put the knife in my pocket and went back to the clubhouse. Dick Ferris came up to me and says:

"Hawkins, I'm going to have this clubhouse guarded day and night. Tonight Lew Hunter will be on guard to watch for Gideon."

I nodded my head and put my hand on Dick's shoulder. "Fine!"

I said. "You never can tell what might happen with this Gideon fellow around."

And then Lew Hunter came up to me. "Hawkins," he says, "I'm not a coward, but I wish this guard duty could be given to somebody else."

I said: "Don't worry about it, Lew. I will come down and keep you company for a while tonight—in case you need help, y'understand, Lew?" And then I hurried away because I had to be home to supper before Pop came home.

one another. And then came the sudden sound of footsteps running up the river bank toward us. We turned to look, and there was Jerry Moore and Lanky Lanigan. "There he goes!" hollered Jerry, wildly. "Come on, you fellows, it's Gideon! Catch him—give him, Lanigan—don't let him give you the slip this time!"

Lanigan passed us like a puff of wind, so swift he ran. We hurried after him, to the back of the clubhouse. There he all stood still. Nobody was there. We

"Ah!" I says to myself, "so it was that big rat that scared me on the window sill last night."

When the other boys came down I told them Gideon brought us a rat. Bill Darby wanted to go right home and fetch a rat trap. Dick Ferris said we would hold our club meeting first. So we did, and Lew Hunter got up and told all the boys what had happened last night. While Lew was talking Dick Ferris held up his finger emptied the box of rats in our clubhouse."

Just then Dick Ferris came up to me with our tin box in his hands. "Look," he said, "all our dollar bills chewed up by those rats."

SATURDAY.—Today I took the torn money down to Doc Waters, and he said he would see if he could get some new money for it from the bank. He says to me: "Hawkins, this Gideon boy is getting to be a nuisance—you boys better get hold of him and bring him to Judge Granbery soon, or no telling what trouble you might get into."

I said we would work hard. Then I went down to the clubhouse and told the fellows. "Look here," I said, holding up the pocket-knife with Gideon's initials on it. "He's bound to come back for this. And we must keep up our guard around the clubhouse and wait for him. And when he comes, be ready to nab him."

Just then we heard a squeal and two rats went scampering across the floor. We all jumped. Our captain said: "Anybody would do such a thing to us—to pester us with rats—say, fellows, we've got to make up our minds to match wits with this Gideon fellow."

Which we did.

Dear Pen Pals:

Quite a number of our club members have written to me, saying that they would like to be aviators when they grow up. I, too, have always imagined it would be great fun to soar through the air in a great-winged airplane or perhaps go sailing through the clouds in one of those sausage-shaped balloons, called Zeppelins. But I'm not sure how I would feel about it, once I was off the ground. You've got to get air-minded first, I suppose. People who had never seen an automobile were timid about taking their first ride in one. But nobody has any fear of automobiles any more, although there are accidents occurring every day. I guess a time will come when everybody will feel as safe in an airplane as people now do in automobiles.

It seems to me that this subject is one of the most interesting today for boys and girls. How aviation has progressed in the last few years, the different types of flying machines and the passenger service, plus the improvement in the air mail and the time-saving made possible—well, I'd just like to have all my pen pals write me what they think about it all. We are living in such a wonderful age that writing letters is made easy because there are so many wonderful things to write about. Then, too, there is a chance of winning a book for your letter.

Now let's call the meeting to order and introduce a lucky pen pal who wins a book this week. These books contain the earlier adventures of our club down on the old river bank. Let us remind you again that even if you won one, you should not stop trying, for there are ten volumes of these adventures, and you have a chance of winning the whole set—that is, if you remember that a quitter never wins and a winner never quits. Here's one from a pen pal in dear old Georgia:

Dear Seck: I am a country boy, 9 years old; just far enough in school to read the "funnies" for myself, and I nearly always start at the bottom and go up, so as to read your daily strip first.

Pets are the best things to have at all—so much more than toys and if a boy lives in the country he can have so many. We have five pets, two dogs and three kittens. And it's the hardest thing for me to know which I love the best. I believe, though, I love the little yellow kitten, "Freddie," best, for he was so nice to me when I was sick in bed with measles. I could just scratch on the bed-covers, and here he'd come! And if I just wiggled my toes under the cover design work. The foliage is heavy and the flowers are more showy. The various sorts are admirably adapted to rock gardens, old-fashioned gardens, pots, hanging baskets, and borders around other flowers. They combine well with other flowers in attractive vase arrangements.

Few of our flowers are as fantastic in form as the snapdragon (antirrhinum-majus). At the same time, the colors attract us. There are delicate pinks, yellows and deep maroons. Seed may be sown indoors when an early start is desired, but they bloom nicely when planted directly in the open soil.

Centaurea or cornflower comes in a popular blue, purple, rose or white sort. The double varieties are fuller, more symmetrical and larger, so that these are by far the best to cultivate. The various sorts are good cut flowers, especially the sweet suitans and cornflowers.

As a cut flower the China-aster is highly popular and generally admired for its colors; rose-pink, white, violet, purple, red, light pink and lavender. It has splendid keeping qualities and the flowers stand round usage.

Clarkia is a native of our western states and was first found by members of the Lewis-Clark expedition. Hence the name. The flowers are single and double and range from deep rose through lilac and light pink to white. An outstanding characteristic is the drooping buds before they open and the fact that single blooms normally have four petals. The plants rarely grow over two feet tall, and bloom from July to October. Clarkia is very hardy and seeds may be sown out doors early in the spring.

Cynoglossum, which is a lovely for high heels. "It makes me wish I was a man. Even if the lower third of him is foot, he can find as shoe to fit it."

(Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution.)

The next minute we saw Gideon—he was carrying a box.

After supper I asked Pop could I go out for an hour or two, and he looked at me and said: "I do wish you would stay away from that clubhouse after dark."

I says: "Pop, you don't think I've got enough nerve to take care of myself, do you?"

And he says: "Certainly I do, but there's no use takin' chances. I says: 'Pop, you know I'll be careful—just like you always said you were, when you were my age.'"

And Pop said: "Oh, well! In that case, you may go—but just for an hour, remember!"

So I went down to the clubhouse. The moon was shining bright. I could see Lew Hunter walking around the clubhouse slowly, with the gun on his shoulder. I stopped and hooted like an owl. Lew turned quickly and slipped the gun from his shoulder.

"Is that you, Hawkins?" he whispered. And I answered: "Yeah! Let's sit right down here in a quiet, dark place and wait and see what happens."

And then all of a sudden we heard the crackling of twigs. The next minute we saw Gideon—yes, it was him—he was carrying a box and sneaking out from the shadows of the river bank—he looked around as if to see if anybody was following, and then silently disappeared behind the clubhouse. We couldn't see him any more, from where we stood, and Lew wanted to run around and take a look, but I motioned him to be quiet. We heard the sound of a clubhouse window being raised. Then we heard a ripping sound—as if a board was being torn off of a box—

Then came a funny sound—like a squeal! Yes, sir, a squealing sound. And right afterwards a mixture of sound like a whole lot of squealing things fighting could see Lanigan, half way up toward the main road—he was stopping—now he turned and looked back. Now he was coming back toward us, walking slowly, breathing hard. None of us said a word till he came near.

"Dog gone!" he says, "Where did he go to?"

Jerry Moore looked sore. "By Golly," says Jerry, "after we've followed him all evening, he gives us the slip at the finish!"

"Well," I said, "there's a soap box over yonder under an open window of our clubhouse. We might as well close the window and go home, unless we can find out why that wooden box is under our window—maybe Gideon used it to climb in." I stepped on the box and raised my hand to pull down the window. Just as I did so, an ugly thing slid over my fingers and shot away into the clubhouse. I snatched back my hand and jumped down. The other boys looked at me kind of frightened.

"Better let that window open for tonight, Hawkins," says Jerry. "We better get home quick as we can."

Which we did.

FRIDAY.—I was the first to arrive at the clubhouse today. As I unlocked the door, I heard a scampering in the floor and saw a big rat jump under the old battered organ on which Lew Hunter all of a sudden and said: "Listen!" We all kept still and listened. Sounded like a little bell tinkling somewhere.

"What is it?" asked Jerry Moore. We listened again. Tinkle-tinkle-tinkle came the sound again. Seemed like I'd heard that sound before. It wasn't a bell. Where could I have heard it? Then all of a sudden I remembered!

"Quick!" I yelled—"Quick, Jerry, somebody's in our tin money box."

In a second every chair was turned over, every fellow was helping to pull up the loose floor board, and just as we got it up—

"Shoo!" a hundred rats jumped out of the hole and ran around the floor. We all jumped back, scared—rats, rats, rats! Oh, boy, they were running everywhere, under the table, over the chairs, over the organ, up on the window sills, running like they were crazy, trying to get out of our way, while we were trying to get out of their way. I don't know which were scared the most—the rats or us. Bill Darby had sense enough to open the door. Jerry Moore was as mad as a wet hen.

"This is an outrage, Hawkins," he says. "Gideon brought these rats to our clubhouse in that soap box last night."

And I said: "Sure, now we know what made that squealing sound—he just opened the window and blue forget-me-not-like flower, has been introduced to our gardens and catalogued as the Chinese forget-me-not. It grows two feet tall with long sprays of deep, clear blue flowers produced for a rather short season in the early summer. It makes a splendid blue border plant and a rather good cut flower.

Eschscholtzie, the state flower of California, is a silky golden yellow flower which blooms very profusely. We have both singles and doubles in a great range of colors — creamy-white, carmine, deep pink, orange, lemon and coral-pink. The California poppy spreads over the ground, but grows about a foot tall. The leaves are grayish green and add much to the simple beauty of these flowers which appear profusely from June until frost.

Lupines are attractive plants bearing pea-like flowers in whorls upon long, graceful spikes. Lupines bloom during the summer and grow two or three feet tall, making a fine border and an exquisite cut lower. Do not transplant lupines.

The pansy, it would seem, is one of the most alluring of all garden flowers. Its little faces make most of us laugh when we look at them. The pansy is an ideal border or bedding plant.

WHAT TO DO IN MARCH.

MULCHING—This is the last chance for giving the rose and perennial bed a good mulching with peat moss and sheep manure. The mulch should hold moisture in the beds throughout the winter, and be of vital importance. A mixture of peat moss, peat moss and woods earth is best.

FERTILIZING—A fairly heavy application of bone meal or sheep manure will be sufficient for the roses, as well as around the shrubbery, perennials and vines. Use raw bone meal for bulbs and shrubs.

PRUNING—March is the best month for pruning all kinds of bushes. Err on the heavy side of pruning rather than on the light side. Most roses should be pruned back 8 to 12 inches from the ground. They should be given a thorough spraying with Bordeaux mixture immediately after this pruning.

SPRAYING—Now is the time for the last dormant spraying of the fruit trees.

petunias because they are the most profuse flowering of any annuals. The colors have been improved to such an extent that there are now varieties to please us all, clear blues, rich purples, violets, pinks, whites and striped sorts; the giant doubles are marvels of the breeder's art; the frilled sorts are popular—but why Perennials.

The garden's gold is greatly enhanced in autumn by the sorts of rudbeckias, especially the goldenglow, which is the double form of rudbeckias. The snowy character of the plants makes them especially useful in bold masses for the border. The goldenglow is valued where they are outbuildings, fences and unsightly objects to be hidden. All of the sorts make excellent cut flowers.

The breeding heart or dicentra is one of our most showy old-fashioned flowers, loved by everyone. It grows from two feet to four feet tall and spreads out almost the same distance. The leaves are a light, transparent green, with heart-shaped flowers, pink and rosy crimson in color, produced in sprays along the stems.

Candytuft, a low-growing evergreen shrub, is in reality one of the best flowers in its class. It grows from nine inches to twelve inches high and spreads out making low mats which are covered with flat, dense, clusters of the purest of white flowers. The foliage of the candytuft is evergreen making it one of the best plants grown for edging purposes.

The moss phlox or phlox subulata grows wild and blooms early in the spring. Because of its spreading habit it is usually found growing on the surfaces of rocks, in fields or over dry banks. In the rocky it is often planted in dry corners because it withstands drouth so well, and its dense growth soon makes an admirable ground cover. Each species has a hundred of small clusters of pink and white flowers come out in the spring. It is also splendid for borders, between stepping stones, and so forth.

Lilies of the valley grow well in shady spots where some other flowers become pouty and will not grow. A good soil, well prepared, and heavily fertilized and a fair degree of moisture, will suit the needs of this lovely plant excellently.

Violets are the true favorites of all. The wild violets may be used for naturalizing in the informal areas of the garden, even beneath shrubs. The forms of tufted pansies, because of their long season of bloom, are excellent for edging plants. As rock garden subjects, violas are unexcelled.

with "Ben-Gay" — it goes deeper...routs pains faster

"Ben-Gay," the original baume analgesique, penetrates right to the spot of the pain it goes deeper - through skin, flesh, muscles, into the very joints themselves - it stays in longer. This almost immediate hypensensitizing (pain relieving) effect of "Ben-Gay" has never been equaled by its many imitators. It is infinitely more effective than they are. Keep a tube handy - use it promptly and generously. Don't suffer pain an hour longer. Every box of the original carries the red "Ben-Gay."

BETWEEN-SEASON FROCKS

Paris Sends Us This Striking Collection of New Fashions for Every Hour of the Day

HERE we are just about to start a new season again! And again comes the pleasant task of replenishing the wardrobe.

The Paris couturiers have outdone themselves in presenting a fashion picture that is smart, colorful and interesting in detail.

Particularly effective are the new under-the-coat dresses that are so gay. If they are black (and, of course, there isn't a season of the year when black isn't in demand) they are emphasized with white; if prints are used, the patterns are bright with lively colorings, and the new solid colors are mellow and soft, for the most part, members of the pastel family.

Necklines are high, and the most popular sleeve is long, or at least covering the elbow. Sleeve fullness varies—shoulder interest is still stressed by many couturiers; but again we find a strong tendency to place the fullness at the elbow or in puffs that flare between the elbow and wrist.

—ripples, kick pleats, and graceful, shallow, pleated ruffles are all used. But this in no way interferes with the straight line of the silhouette.

And, of course, you'll include a smart tailor in your Spring wardrobe—for this gives every indication of being a tailor-made season. You'll love the youthful lines of the new suits and the lovely blouses that go with them. They are neither frilly nor fussy, but incline rather toward the sports shirt type. Many of these reveal neat turn-down collars, breast pockets and soft bosoms. Some are finished with bows at the neck. Men's shirting is a favorite fabric. Tie silks and silk jerseys are good choices, but satin makes the smartest of chic blouses.

Accessories are designed to harmonize with the new mode. Note the group sketched today at the lower edge of the page. Off-the-face hats will be most in demand—and why not when they're so universally flattering? The tiny model shown below is of brown felt, and it boasts a square pleat that runs up the back and is open at the top. Two striking bits of the new costume jewelry include a lovely set of gold clips with long strasse stones—they may be used as earrings or to trim a frock or hat.

The charming dress bag of brown velvet is Rose White's inspiration, and it boasts a mirror-crystal ring and a zipper fastening under the flap.

For the tailor we suggest the polka-dotted leather set of bag and cigarette case. It is also available in red and white. The clasps are of mirror-crystal and marcasite.

A LOVELY PRINT

LUCILE PARAY

THE lovely tailored model of blue crepe de Chine sketched above features a white pique collar and winged jabot. The belt is self stitched and clever knots of the material, stitched flat, add to the sleeve interest. The silhouette is slim, but a becoming fullness achieved by means of slight ripples lends grace to the skirt.

MARCEL ROCHAS

LYOLÈNE

A PETIT TAILLEUR OFFERED by Lyolene, in beige homespun. This little suit goes gay with a blouse and jacket-lining of red figured yellow flannel.

TAFFETA

IT'S quite the rage! This very youthful model in black, printed with blue polka-dots, is one of Worth's favorites. Note the ruffle collar, the short sleeves and the basque bodice. Skirt fullness is achieved in the front with a group of soft ripples.

WOOL

THIS charming beige wool frock is smart enough to grace any informal afternoon occasion. There is an attractive gleaming collar, cleverly cut, of black crepe. The belt is of the same fabric and is finished with a sparkling clasp of brilliants.

WORTH

ARE YOU READING MIGNON'S "THINGS THAT MAKE WOMEN MORE BEAUTIFUL" EVERY MONDAY, WEDNESDAY AND FRIDAY IN THE CONSTITUTION?

SHE'S CHAMPION POLAR BEAR MOTHER—Sultana, at the Milwaukee zoo, gave the public its first peek at her eleventh baby, recently. She is the only one of her species to raise cubs to maturity in captivity.

DOROTHY KIRBY—GETS ONE OUT OF THE SAND—Miss Kirby, of Atlanta, the 14-year-old woman's golf champion of Georgia, is shown here blasting the ball out of the sand. She is rated as one of the best young prospects in golf. (Kenneth Rogers.)

RUGGED SYMBOL OF PEOPLE'S FAITH ERECTED—A new Easter cross, rising more than 1,000 feet above the level of San Francisco bay and visible for 50 miles, was dedicated with impressive ceremonies recently. It is made of concrete. The cornerstone contains water from the River Jordan and rocks from the Garden of Gethsemane.

THE POLICE WON THIS BATTLE—Philadelphia police and detectives capturing Walter Bevin, 55, after they had fought a gun battle for an hour to dislodge him from a dwelling where he had barricaded himself with two 15-year-old girls whom he had lured there.

CREATOR OF "TARZAN"—Edgar Rice Burroughs, famous creator of "Tarzan," at his desk at Tarzana, Cal., which was named for his fiction character. Burroughs insists he is opposed to all forms of work. The story of "Tarzan" appears daily and Sunday in The Constitution.

LOUISE PREPARING FOR 1936 OLYMPIAD—Louise Roberts, 19-year-old Atlanta girl, won a place on the 1932 Olympic swimming team, but on the day that the games opened she was removed to a hospital with appendicitis. She is now beginning to train for the 1936 contests.

A VIEW OF THE $3,000,000 FIRE—which hit the heart of the shopping district in Birmingham, recently.

NEW TYPE BED may solve problem of saving persons with broken backs from permanent deformity. Katherine Braggerty, Chicago artist's model shown below, suffered a broken back in an auto accident—the new bed is expected to save her beauty.

WHAT IS IT?—Citizens of Newport Beach, Cal., have a sea monster mystery all their own. Caught in a net, a huge fish weighing 1,000 pounds, with five pair of gills and 18 feet long was hauled to shore, but it still has the experts guessing.

THE AMERICAN PROCESSION--AN INTENSELY INTERESTING PICTORIAL REVIEW OF A NATION'S PROGRESS THROUGH HALF A CENTURY

THIS FIFTH AVENUE scene was taken in 1897. The inspection of the contents of the baby-carriage is taking place almost exactly where one now enters the front door of the Empire State building. Notice the firm grasp in which the skirt in the center of the picture is being held. (Harper & Brothers)

THIS IS HOW JULIA MARLOWE looked in 1892, at the age of 22. Miss Marlowe's fame reached its height when she appeared in "Barbara Frietchie" (1899), and in Shakespearean roles with E. H. Sothern, whom she married. (Harper & Brothers)

WE SHOULD LIKE TO KNOW what tune is being played for the dancing in this scene of light diversion, taken on a Coney Island boat in the nineties. Perhaps it is "Daisy, Daisy, Give Me Your Answer True"; "On the Banks of the Wabash, Far Away" (words by Theodore Dreiser, music by his brother); or that livelier song to which the troops marched to the Spanish war, "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." (Harper & Brothers)

SPEAKING OF COSTUMES, regard the attire of ladies in official circles in Washington. The charming Mrs. Grover Cleveland is here surrounded by the wives of her husband's cabinet officers. Mrs. Hoke Smith, of Atlanta, sitting at lower left. (Harper & Brothers)

THE EXACT DATE of this scene of frivolity is uncertain; but those who remember the feminine bathing suits of the nineties will recognize the costumes above as quite orthodox. Note the loose checked garment of the gentleman making off so determinedly. (Harper & Brothers)

THIS DETERMINED-LOOKING WOMAN was determined to defeat the demon rum, and was hard at work at the job a full twenty-one years before there was any Anti-Saloon League. She is Frances E. Willard, who founded the Women's Christian Temperance Union in 1874, and 10 years later was one of the organizers of the prohibition party. A good deal of water—and of rum, too—has flowed under the bridge since then, hasn't it? (Harper & Brothers)

THE PHARAOH'S COMMAND

WHEN THE HIGH PRIEST PRONOUNCED THE SENTENCE OF SACRIFICIAL DEATH ON HOTE, HIS MOTHER AND THE APE-MAN, TARZAN SOUGHT AN APPEAL TO THE PHARAOH.

THE PRIEST REPLIED: "TUTAMKEN IS GONE ON A FAR JOURNEY, AND MOLOCH'S WRATH MUST BE APPEASED AT ONCE." BUT HE KNEW THAT THE PHARAOH WOULD SOON RETURN, AND FEARED THAT THE SACRIFICE WOULD BE HALTED.

SO THE VICTIMS WERE LED FORTH SPEEDILY TO THE SACRIFICE. AS THE RED HANDS OF MOLOCH DESCENDED TO CLUTCH THEM...

...TUTAMKEN RETURNED, AND ENTERED THE TEMPLE TO REPEAT THE PRAYERS WHICH THE HOLY SCROLLS ORDAINED AT THE END OF THE JOURNEY.

"FASTER! FASTER!" CRIED THE HIGH PRIEST TO THE SERVITORS WHO OPERATED THE HEAVY CHAINS THAT MOVED THE ARMS OF THE DEVOURING IDOL.

BUT TARZAN SAW THE PHARAOH AND CRIED THE JUNGLE CALL OF DISTRESS. TUTAMKEN RECOGNIZED HIS FRIEND, AND RAN TO STOP THE SACRIFICE.

THEN TARZAN RELATED HOW HE HAD RESCUED NIKOTRIS, AND IN RETURN HE PLEADED THAT HOTE AND RA-NOON BE SPARED, SAYING: "LET THEIR GUILT REST ON ME."

TUTAMKEN ANSWERED: "THE RANSOM I OFFERED FOR NIKOTRIS, MY SISTER, WAS SEIZED BY THE BRIGANDS. RETRIEVE IT, TARZAN, AND YOU SHALL ALL GO FREE."

TWO SOLDIERS OF THE PHARAOH'S BODYGUARD WERE ASSIGNED TO ACCOMPANY TARZAN ON HIS BERILIOUS MISSION, BUT...
